England Did Not Read November's Prediction But She Has Statesman Not Our Amateurs

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

RECOVERED FROM her attack of Hitlerian horror over Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia (nothing succeeds like success), England has found time after to collect how she got possession of fair Africa and other regions reaching all around the globe.

Righteous indignation at Mussolini's invasion of England gives way to worry about the drop in foreign trade, that trade being England's life blood.

Thanks to sanctions, established by British order, England has lost twenty millions of exports to Italy alone this year; in these competitive days forty millions are something.

Great Britain's mind is now on national safety, and business, strictly; the heathen in Ethiopia and elsewhere must look after himself.

MUSSOLINI ANNOUNCED, sanctions having been lifted, that "Italians would not be resentful." But Mussolini, like the elephant, has a long memory, and the "no resentment" statement will not be taken too seriously.

After the lifting of sanctions by England and the 51 other varieties of "sanctionist nations," including the "We Too" United States, Mussolini's words were by no means humble or reassuring. Said he:

"On this day, July 15, in the 14th year of the Fascist era, the white flag has been hoisted on the turrets of world sanctionism. It is merely a sign of surrender, but one could wish that it were a symptom of a return to common sense."

THAT DOES NOT sound particularly humble or non-resentful. England knows that some half-baked statesmen have made her ridiculous, seeing no farther than their noses in the Ethiopian matter, forgetting that the most vulnerable thing on earth just now is the far-reaching British empire; the British fleet no longer important and the English channel no more a protection for England than old Governors Island in New York harbor is protection for that city.

THE ENGLISH KNOW the situation, although, like the gambler caught cheating, they "do not like to be told about it." When Hitler advanced to the Rhine, England decided to let France take care of that situation, which meant tearing up the Versailles treaty.

"Face-saving" made it necessary to do something, so England sent Hitler a typically British, diplomatic questionnaire, demanding to know his intentions. Days, weeks passed. Hitler replied ingeniously by sending no answer to all, which meant, "please attend your business, I'll attend to mine."

THE LONDON "Evening Standard" in an interesting cartoon, gives the real answer.

The British foreign minister is seen, sitting at his desk; in walks Hitler with Mussolini back of him, both doing the goose step and holding their thumbs to their noses, dragging, on a leash, a reluctant little Daschhund,

DRUG FORTUNE HEIR PUT UNDER ARREST

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Kornelius Peter Van Schaack, 27, drug fortune heir, was arrested tonight on a charge of disorderly conduct on his estranged wife's accusation that he carried off their two young children.

He was held on that charge by Police Magistrate J. J. Peters, of suburban Wilmette, after Peters refused to issue a warrant Mrs. Van Schaack offered to sign on a kidnaping charge.

Van Schaack, who admitted taking the children, Arden Claire, 4, and Cornelius Peter, third, 3, from their mother's home and returning them two hours later, was held in $50 bond to await hearing on the disorderly conduct charge.

Van Schaack was arrested as he returned the children home in his automobile. He said he had taken them to dinner.

VIRGINIA PINE SAYS SHE AND RAFT MAY WED SOON

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Virginia Pine, blonde motion picure actress, said today that she and Actor George Raft "probably will be married this year."

"I think we will be married as soon as he gets a divorce," said Miss Pine, who was formerly the wife of Edward J. Lehman, Jr., Chicago merchant.

Miss Pine seemed more sure than she did yesterday, when she said on arriving from London:

"I haven't heard anything about reports that I'll marry George Raft if and when he secures a divorce."

IMMINENT BATTLE MAY CHANGE TIDE OF WAR IN SPAIN

Two Sides, Freshened By Reinforcements, Feint For Advantage In Attack

CAPITAL ENLISTS EVERY POSSIBLE DEFENSE MEANS

Struggle Bitter At Sea As On Land; Planes And Ships Hammer At Cities

PARIS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—France tonight launched an appeal to world powers not to intervene in Spain's civil war, coupled with a warning to any nations backing the rebels.

The government officially announced its investigation had shown that "foreign powers" were supplying the Spanish rebels with war materials, which fact "forced" France to reserve her liberty of judgment in supplying arms to the Leftist government.

By Alexander H. Uhl
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

MADRID, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fascist and loyalist militia feinted today in imminent hand-to-hand struggles which may turn the tide of Spain's civil war.

Freshened by reinforcements pledged anew to their goals, the armies of Gen. Francisco Franco, the rebel leader, and the Leftist adherents of the Madrid regime stalked each other north of the capital city and at Zaragoza, northeastern insurrectionist stronghold.

Every man capable of bearing a gun was mobilized at Zaragoza to fling his strength against loyalist troops marching on the city from east and west.

Madrid itself enlisted every ounce of energy it could muster to withstand expected assaults from the northern rebel army.

After 15 days of conflict, which may

BIG FARM INCOME SEEN THIS YEAR

Returns May Be Largest In Six Years As Result Of Long Drouth

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—With farm prices at the highest general level since 1930 as a result of the protracted drouth, market analysts today forecast that 1936 farm income might be the largest in six years, barring further serious crop losses.

Farmers' income in the first half of the year was $335,000,000 greater than a year ago, the government estimated. Since then, the rise in prices of important agricultural commodities—in some cases the sharpest since war days—was believed by most observers to have more than offset the serious crop losses due to heat and lack of rain.

Traders cited the danger of a world wheat scarcity as grain prices spurted upward in foreign and domestic markets. There was no sign of the deluge needed to halt the steady deterioration in midwestern fields.

Forecasters promised generally fair and warm weather for the mid-continent. They foresaw the possibility of week-end local showers only in the northern reaches of Minnesota and Wisconsin, upper Michigan, North Dakota and possible the western end if South Dakota.

In effect, the drouth has taken away

NO 'BUILD-UP' FOR FRENCH FILM STAR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The movie maestros are giving Simone Simon, sparkling French actress, a refrigerated screen debut.

Her first picture, just previewed, will go to the movie audiences "cold"—unattended by the advance "build-up" which has accompanied many actresses to the screen.

In other years film bosses have fanned the publicity flames too high for some new stars. Fingers have been burned.

The most recent example was Sam Goldwyn's exotic Russian actress, Anna Sten, for whom whistles were blown and bells banged nearly a year before she came to the screen. Her pictures nose-dived in the United States, although European audiences are said to have made up Goldwyn's losses.

Audiences, the producers have found, don't agree with everything they read.

MANGHAM YOUTH FATALLY INJURED

George Piro, Former Football Player, Dies Of Injuries After Car Crash

BROOKHAVEN, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP) Gilbert Miller, 20, son of Judge D. M. Miller of Hazelhurst, was instantly killed and George Piro, 19, of Mangham, La., was fatally injured in an automobile collision with another car north of here last night.

Piro died in a hospital this morning.

Officers said Sam L. Wactor, a member of the board of supervisors, was the driver of the car which struck the machine in which the young people were riding.

Wactor said the accident was unavoidable. He told officers that he stopped his car immediately and went back to the wrecked car to render aid.

In the excitement that followed, he said, someone drove his car to Brookhaven, giving rise to the report that the accident had been caused by a hit-and-run driver.

Wactor said the car in which Miller and nine companions were riding, driven by Miss Dewey Rea of Monticello, was attempting to pass another car and that he was forced off the pavement onto the shoulder of the road, but could not avoid hitting the other car.

George Piro, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident near Brookhaven, Miss., Friday night, was a football player at Mangham high school last season, according to reports from Mangham. He and two other youths, Raymond Nash and Theo Jones, who were also in the wreck, but uninjured, had been working in Wesson, Miss., where they had planned to enter school this fall.

Piro is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Piro of Mangham, two brothers and two sisters.

TWO ARRAIGNED FOR AUTOMOBILE THEFTS

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Two Jackson auto shopkeepers were arraigned before United States Commissioner B. C. Ricketts here today on charges of violating the national motor vehicle theft act.

Si Wheat, Jr., was charged with having transported a stolen automobile to Sherman, Tex., from Jackson. He pleaded innocence, but was held under $7,500 bail to await grand jury action.

Officers said they were seeking to connect Wheat with the sale of 10 stolen automobiles disposed of in Sherman.

B. E. McMichael, proprietor of an auto repair shop here, was placed under $3,000 bond after pleading innocence on a charge of transporting a stolen car from Jackson to Bastrop, La. McMichael's stenographer, Mrs. L. Hemphill, and her 19-year-old son, Robert James, also employed by Michael, were similarly charged, but were released under $750 bond each.

ROOSEVELT AT HOME

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arrived at his Dutchess county home here at 9:45 p.m. (E. S. T.) tonight, ending a vacation and business trip that began from Washington the night of July 10.

City Orders Fault Finder In Effort To Remedy Poor Reception Over Radio Here

CENTENNIAL WILL HONOR THIS CITY

'Monroe Days' Will Be Observed At Fort Worth Next Sunday And Monday

Next Sunday and Monday, August 9 and 10, will be observed as "Monroe days" at Frontier City, Fort Worth's celebration of the Texas centennial.

William "Bill" Perhamus, post commander of the Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion, who has been named by Mayor Bernstein as chairman of the Monroe days at the Frontier centennial, returned last week from Fort Worth filled with enthusiasm over the plans for the observance of Monroe days.

"Monroe will be given a great boost at the Frontier centennial," he said. "Through widespread newspaper publicity by the Fort Worth papers, special radio broadcasts and through the special facilities that will be afforded the people of Monroe to enjoy the attractions at Frontier City, Monroe will occupy a large place in the events at Fort Worth during the two days set apart in honor of the Queen City of the Ouachita Valley."

Mayor Bernstein said Saturday that he hoped to be able to go to Fort Worth for the observance, and would be accompanied by Mrs. Bernstein, in the event that her health will permit the trip.

"I hope there will be a large attendance of Monroe people at Frontier City those two days," said the mayor. "It is a distinction to Monroe to have this attention, and I know it will be a most enjoyable experience for everyone who goes."

Mr. Perhamus, describing the attractions at Frontier City, said they "surpass anything of the kind I have ever seen."

The attractions include the extraordinary musical show, "Casa Manana," given on an enormous re-

Commissioner Rodriguez Promises Thorough Search For Causes Of Trouble

(By The World Radio Editor)

The city of Monroe has ordered a fault detector to locate the source of radio reception interference and will start a canvass of the city as soon as the machine arrives.

This good news for radio owners was received yesterday in a letter from W. D. H. Rodriguez, commissioner of finance and utilities. Commissioner Rodriguez' letter is as follows:

"In reply to your request for a statement from me on the subject of radio interference within the city of Monroe, allow me to advise you of the policy which I have adopted in this matter, as follows:

"I have ordered shipment of a radio fault detector for use by our light and power department. This instrument will be used to determine if radio reception is being interfered with by any of the equipment belonging to the city. Should any city equipment be found at fault, correction will be made to the greatest possible extent. This work will be continued as one of the regular duties of our electric line department, but only insofar as city equipment is concerned.

"It does not lie within the scope of my duties; nor have I any authority as a public official to go into private homes or business houses for the purpose of finding sources of radio interference. I have no legal right to do so, and no desire to exceed my authority.

"As you probably know, some types of electrical equipment produce static electricity and therefore cause interference with radio reception. In certain types of equipment this fault can not be remedied at all. I am referring to equipment owned by private individuals and private business establishments. Perhaps you, who have given this matter such able leadership and publicity, can find a way to determine sources of radio interference in private homes and busi-

Women Take Steps To Get Sewer System Installed

Organization of a women's civic league, designed to arouse public interest in the need for a sewerage system in those sections of the city which at present have no such municipal sanitary service, was indicated Saturday when a petition was presented to the Monroe city council-commission urging that action be taken to meet the situation.

The petition was signed by the following residents of the northeastern section of the city, who are described as members of the new organization:

Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, Mrs. W. C. Oliver, Mrs. C. W. Wallace, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. C. E. Slade, Mrs. Carl H. McHenry, Mrs. R. L. Wood, Mrs. J. E. Godfrey, Mrs. A. J. Emerson, Mrs. B. D. PLEA OF GUILTY ENTERED BY BOY IN TEMPLE CASE

Lad Freed Under $1,000 Bond To Await Action By Federal Grand Jury

SAYS HE DIDN'T PLAN TO TRY TO COLLECT $25,000

Spokesman For Family Of Child Movie Star Suggests Leniency

GRANT, Neb., Aug. 1—(AP)—Sterling W. Powell, 16, who admitted writing a letter threatening the life of Shirley Temple, child film star, unless her father paid him $25,000, was free under $1,000 bond tonight to await action of a federal grand jury.

Powell, a voracious reader of film and detective magazines and a motion picture fan, pleaded guilty to an extortion charge before United States Commissioner A. F. Streitz at North Platte today and was bound over to the next term of federal district court which begins June 8, 1937.

Sheriff Howard Bechtel of Perkins county, Powell's home, signed the $1,000 bond and brought the boy back here.

He said that Powell had told him "he never meant to go through with it" and did not go to the specified place to look for the money.

The letter demanding the money was addressed to Shirley's father, George F. Temple. Written last May, it ordered him to drop $25,000 "from an airplane near Grant, on May 15" or "the life of Shirley Temple will be endangered."

Temple, at Eureka, Calif., told authorities the letter was not noted

GOVERNOR MAKES SEVERAL CHANGES

State's Legal Staff And Other Important Bureaus Reorganized By Leche

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Louisiana's legal staff and other important bureaus were reorganized today under appointments of Gov. Richard W. Leche.

Some of the appointments were in keeping with new legislative statutes broadening departments. Others, including a number of minor appointments, were in line with regular administrative duties to fill vacancies.

Atty. Gen. Gaston L. Porterie announced the appointment of Joseph A. Loret, of Baton Rouge, as an assistant attorney general. His office is an addition. Mr. Loret is at present a lecturer on the code of practice in the Louisiana State university school of law. He will continue his lecture courses.

James O'Connor, of New Orleans, was elevated from second assistant attorney general to first assistant, succeeding George M. Wallace. Mr. Wallace was appointed executive counsel to the governor, a newly-created position.

Lessley P. Gardiner, already connected with the attorney general's office, will serve as second assistant attorney general in the Baton Rouge office while Mr. O'Connor will be in

RAILROAD WORKER ATTACKED IN CAFE

Because he refused to purchase a bottle of beer for a stranger who was intoxicated, H. M. Frierson, car inspector for the Missouri Pacific railroad, was attacked and severely beaten "by the stranger Saturday morning about 6:45 a.m. in the Plum street cafe, according to Frierson's statement of the attack. Police arrested Herman Harris, a WPA worker, as the man who made the alleged attack.

Frierson said that he stepped into the cafe with a fellow workman while on his way to work, to purchase some tobacco, and was sitting at the restaurant counter when the man approached and requested him to buy a bottle of beer.

When Frierson declined to buy the beer, the man threatened to kill him if he refused, according to Frierson.

Frierson was said to have been struck a severe blow a moment later while he was unaware that he was about to be attacked, and was knocked off the counter stool to the floor, and then kicked.

Frierson was treated at St. Francis sanitarium for lacerations and bruises. He remained a patient there last night, but his physician said he probably would be removed to his home today.

Police Officers H. B. Parker and L. G. Parker arrested Harris. He was still held in the city jail last night.

AIRMAN DIES

LOUIS BLERIOT

BLERIOT, FAMOUS FLIER, SUCCUMBS

French Airman Who First Flew English Channel Dies Of Heart Attack

PARIS, Aug. 2 (Sunday).—(AP)—Louis Bleriot, 64, the famous French aviator who first flew the English channel, died today.

The outstanding aviator of his day, Bleriot crossed the channel from Calais, France, to Dover, England, in an airplane on July 25, 1909.

He outdistanced a destroyer which had been assigned to direct his course, completing the hop of 23.5 miles in 38 minutes.

Bleriot, who became an engineer after his air career, succumbed suddenly of a heart attack during the night. He had been confined recently because of heart weakness.

Louis Bleriot was the Lindbergh of his day.

His pioneer flight across the English channel was as daring a feat in 1909 as was Colonel Lindbergh's transatlantic trip through the air in 1927.

Notwithstanding the 18 years that intervened between their epochal flights, it is not unlikely that the names of Bleriot and Lindbergh will be closely linked in aeronautical history.

By being the first to accomplish the seemingly impossible feat of their respective times, each was responsible for a direct move in the progress of aviation. Lindbergh's interest toward flying is said to have been partly inspired by the stories of Bleriot's early fame. When the Spirit of St. Louis made its historic landing at Le Bourget, the French flyer's name was one of the first to be uttered by the young American.

How aviation advanced between those two flights is indicated by the fact that when Lindbergh spanned the Atlantic, Bleriot's feat had become a commonplace, every-day event.

Born at Cambrai, July 1, 1872, Bleriot was the son of a manufacturer and thus came in contact with things mechanical since his boyhood. He went to a technical school and took a degree in engineering. After his military service, spent for the most part as a second lieutenant of

PARALYSIS' SPREAD BELIEVED CHECKED

(By Associated Press)

Only five new cases of infantile paralysis Saturday in a southern outbreak led health authorities to express renewed hope that spread of the disease gradually was being stalled by extensive preventive measures.

Dr. J. N. Baker, Alabama health officer, said the disease "appears now to be definitely on the down swing," and Georgia authorities again pointed out the malady had not reached epidemic proportions in that state.

Alabama reported three new cases Saturday and Georgia and Mississippi one each, to bring the total stricken in these states and Tennessee to 347. The death list rose to 23 with the report of the death of a child at Gleason, Tenn.

OREGON PRISON INMATES GET NO FOOD AFTER RIOT

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Seven hundred howling prisoners shattered window panes, banged cell doors and turned the Oregon penitentiary into bedlam today in a shouting demand for food, denied them after a fatal riot yesterday.

Pang of hunger failed to break the rioting spirit of the convicts.

Warden James Lewis refused dinner to the rioters last night and they were given no food today. Preparations were made for trouble when the first meal is served, possibly Sunday morning, and the convicts filed to the dining room.

GLADYS M'KNIGHT LAYS BLAME UPON DELAYED SUPPER

Says She Slew Parent With Hatchet While Youth Cried 'Hit Her Again'

RADIO RELIGIOUS SINGER ADMITS PART IN MURDER

Husband Of Victim Finds Body Upon Return From Work; Girl Unshaken

By J. Newman Wright
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Gladys MacKnight, 17, called the "most cold blooded girl" he had ever seen by Chief of Police Cornelius O'Neill, calmly confessed today she hacked her mother to death with a hatchet while her young sweetheart cried "hit her again."

A late supper which delayed their tennis game was blamed by the pair. Chief O'Neill said, for the quarrel between mother and daughter which preceded the slaying in the kitchen of the MacKnight home last night. O'Neill said the girl's apparently ungovernable temper had been the cause of repeated verbal clashes between the two.

After signing statements describing the crime in detail, Chief O'Neill said, the girl changed from tennis clothes to a pink summery dress for the arraignment at which she and her companion, Donald Wightman, 18, radio religious hour singer, were ordered held for the grand jury on first degree murder charges.

Her unconcerned manner contrasted sharply with the extreme nervousness of young Wightman as they stood before Recorder Raymond J. Cuddy. His hands were twitching as he clung to a railing but the girl was smiling affectionately at him during the brief session.

O'Neill said Wightman was the first to "break" after the pair were arrested in Jersey City following a ride to Somerville, during which they stopped once to buy beer and sandwiches and once to hug and kiss each other. The girl confessed only after being shown Wightman's signed statement, O'Neill said.

"Gladys, I have told the police the truth, and I want you to do that also," O'Neill quoted Wightman as saying.

"So what?" was her reply, the chief said.

Later, O'Neill said, she told of the killing, and events before and after it.

O'Neill said the girl's story was that her mother had been sharpening a bread knife, and had brandished it during the heated argument. A hatchet which had been used to tack a carpet lay nearby.

Wightman, who had been in another room, rushed into the kitchen and pinioned Mrs. MacKnight's arms when he saw the knife in her hand, they were quoted as saying. The girl then picked up the hatchet and struck her mother on the head, O'Neill said, then Wightman released his hold and Mrs. MacKnight slumped to the floor, moaning and writhing.

"Hit her again," Wightman said, and the girl bent over her mother and hacked her to death, the confession asserted.

After the slaying, the confession said, the two shoved the mother's body under a table, where it would not be visible from the outside, washed the blood from their hands, and started out in a car owned by the girl's father, Edgar MacKnight, a cable company

TWO MEN INJURED IN HIGHWAY CRASH

S. C. Kennedy, 49, Calhoun farmer, suffered a fractured hip, multiple lacerations on the head and face and general contusions, and Lieut. Robert A. Bowman of the CCC camp at Calhoun suffered cuts and bruises yesterday morning about 10:0 a.m. when the car in which they were riding was in a collision with a sand truck on the Calhoun road about 11 miles from Monroe.

The driver of the sand truck was reported uninjured. His name was not learned.

The collision was reported to have taken place when the drivers of the car and truck each were attempting to pass a wood truck which was either parked on the road or which was traveling so slowly that it appeared to be parked.

The wood truck was parked or moving eastward, headed in the direction in which Lieutenant Bowman was driving his car, it was reported. The sand truck was proceeding westward.

Both the driver of the car and the driver of the wood truck were said to have endeavored to steer their vehicles into the ditch when it became apparent that there would be a collision, reports of the accident said.

Kennedy was brought here to St. Francis sanitarium. Lieutenant Bowman was brought to his residence, 803 St. John street.

DRUG FORTUNE HEIR PUT UNDER ARREST

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Kornelius Peter Van Schaack, 27, drug fortune heir, was arrested tonight on a charge of disorderly conduct on his estranged wife's accusation that he carried off their two young children.

He was held on that charge by Police Magistrate J. J. Peters, of suburban Wilmette, after Peters refused to issue a warrant Mrs. Van Schaack offered to sign on a kidnaping charge.

The magistrate ruled there was not sufficient evidence to support an abduction warrant.

Van Schaack, who admitted taking the children, Arden Claire, 4, and Cornelius Peter, third, 3, from their mother's home and returning them two hours later, was held in $50 bond to await hearing on the disorderly conduct charge.

Van Schaack was arrested as he returned the children home in his automobile. He said he had taken them to dinner.

VIRGINIA PINE SAYS SHE AND RAFT MAY WED SOON

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Virginia Pine, blonde motion picture actress, said today that she and Actor George Raft "probably will be married this year."

Miss Pine seemed more sure than she did yesterday, when she said on arriving from London:

"I haven't heard anything about reports that I'll marry George Raft if and when he secures a divorce."

MADRID, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fascist and loyalist militia feinted today in imminent hand-to-hand struggles which may turn the tide of Spain's civil war.

Freshened by reinforcements, pledged anew to their goals, the armies of Gen. Francisco Franco, the rebel leader, and the Leftist adherents of the Madrid regime stalked each other north of the capital city and at Zaragoza, northeastern insurrectionist stronghold.

Every man capable of bearing a gun was mobilized at Zaragoza to fling his strength against loyalist troops marching on the city from east and west.

Madrid itself enlisted every ounce of energy it could muster to withstand expected assaults from the northern rebel army.

After 15 days of conflict, which may

BIG FARM INCOME SEEN THIS YEAR

Returns May Be Largest In Six Years As Result Of Long Drouth

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—With farm prices at the highest general level since 1930 as a result of the protracted drouth, market analysts today forecast that 1936 farm income might be the largest in six years, barring further serious crop losses.

Farmers' income in the first half of the year was $335,000,000 greater than a year ago, the government estimated. Since then, the rise in prices of important agricultural commodities—in some cases the sharpest since war days—was believed by most observers to have more than offset the serious crop losses due to heat and lack of rain.

Traders cited the danger of a world wheat scarcity as grain prices spurted upward in foreign and domestic markets. There was no sign of the deluge needed to halt the steady deterioration in midwestern fields.

Forecasters promised generally fair and warm weather for the mid-continent. They foresaw the possibility of week-end local showers only in the northern reaches of Minnesota and Wisconsin, upper Michigan, North Dakota and possible the western end if South Dakota.

In effect, the drouth has taken away

NO 'BUILD-UP' FOR FRENCH FILM STAR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The movie maestros are giving Simone Simon, sparkling French actress, a refrigerated screen debut.

Her first picture, just previewed, will go to the movie audiences "cold"—unattended by the advance "build-up" which has accompanied many actresses to the screen.

In other years film bosses have fanned the publicity flames too high for some new stars. Fingers have been burned.

The most recent example was Sam Goldwyn's exotic Russian actress, Anna Sten, for whom whistles were blown and bells banged nearly a year before she came to the screen. Her pictures nose-dived in the United States, although European audiences are said to have made up Goldwyn's losses.

Audiences, the producers have found, don't agree with everything they read.

MANGHAM YOUTH FATALLY INJURED

George Piro, Former Football Player, Dies Of Injuries After Car Crash

BROOKHAVEN, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP) Gilbert Miller, 20, son of Judge D. M. Miller of Hazelhurst, was instantly killed and George Piro, 19, of Mangham, La., was fatally injured in an automobile collision with another car north of here last night.

Piro died in a hospital this morning.

Officers said Sam L. Wactor, a member of the board of supervisors, was the driver of the car which struck the machine in which the young people were riding.

Wactor said the accident was unavoidable. He told officers that he stopped his car immediately and went back to the wrecked car to render aid.

In the excitement that followed, he said, someone drove his car to Brookhaven, giving rise to the report that the accident had been caused by a hit-and-run driver.

Wactor said the car in which Miller and nine companions were riding, driven by Miss Dewey Rea of Monticello, was attempting to pass another car and that he was forced off the pavement onto the shoulder of the road, but could not avoid hitting the other car.

George Piro, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident near Brookhaven, Miss., Friday night, was a football player at Mangham high school last season, according to reports from Mangham. He and two other youths, Raymond Nash and Theo Jones, who were also in the wreck, but uninjured, had been working in Wesson, Miss., where they had planned to enter school this fall.

Piro is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Piro of Mangham, two brothers and two sisters.

TWO ARRAIGNED FOR AUTOMOBILE THEFTS

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Two Jackson auto shopkeepers were arraigned before United States Commissioner B. C. Ricketts here today on charges of violating the national motor vehicle theft act.

Si Wheat, Jr., was charged with having transported a stolen automobile to Sherman, Tex., from Jackson. He pleaded innocence, but was held under $7,500 bail to await grand jury action.

Officers said they were seeking to connect Wheat with the sale of 10 stolen automobiles disposed of in Sherman.

B. E. McMichael, proprietor of an auto repair shop here, was placed under $3,000 bond after pleading innocence on a charge of transporting a stolen car from Jackson to Bastrop, La. McMichael's stenographer, Mrs. L. Hemphill, and her 19-year-old son, Robert James, also employed by Michael, were similarly charged, but were released under $750 bond each.

ROOSEVELT AT HOME

City Orders Fault Finder In Effort To Remedy Poor Reception Over Radio Here

CENTENNIAL WILL HONOR THIS CITY

'Monroe Days' Will Be Observed At Fort Worth Next Sunday And Monday

Next Sunday and Monday, August 9 and 10, will be observed as "Monroe days" at Frontier City, Fort Worth's celebration of the Texas centennial.

William "Bill" Perhamus, post commander of the Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion, who has been named by Mayor Bernstein as chairman of the Monroe days at the Frontier centennial, returned last week from Fort Worth filled with enthusiasm over the plans for the observance of Monroe days.

"Monroe will be given a great boost at the Frontier centennial," he said. "Through widespread newspaper publicity by the Fort Worth papers, special radio broadcasts and through the special facilities that will be afforded the people of Monroe to enjoy the attractions at Frontier City, Monroe will occupy a large place in the events at Fort Worth during the two days set apart in honor of the Queen City of the Ouachita Valley."

Mayor Bernstein said Saturday that he hoped to be able to go to Fort Worth for the observance, and would be accompanied by Mrs. Bernstein, in the event that her health will permit the trip.

"I hope there will be a large attendance of Monroe people at Frontier City those two days," said the mayor. "It is a distinction to Monroe to have this attention, and I know it will be a most enjoyable experience for everyone who goes."

Mr. Perhamus, describing the attractions at Frontier City, said they "surpass anything of the kind I have ever seen."

The attractions include the extraordinary musical show, "Casa Manana," given on an enormous re-

(By The World Radio Editor)

The city of Monroe has ordered a fault detector to locate the source of radio reception interference and will start a canvass of the city as soon as the machine arrives.

This good news for radio owners was received yesterday in a letter from W. D. H. Rodriguez, commissioner of finance and utilities. Commissioner Rodriguez' letter is as follows:

"In reply to your request for a statement from me on the subject of radio interference within the city of Monroe, allow me to advise you of the policy which I have adopted in this matter, as follows:

"I have ordered shipment of a radio fault detector for use by our light and power department. This instrument will be used to determine if radio reception is being interfered with by any of the equipment belonging to the city. Should any city equipment be found at fault, correction will be made to the greatest possible extent. This work will be continued as one of the regular duties of our electric line department, but only insofar as city equipment is concerned.

"It does not lie within the scope of my duties; nor have I any authority as a public official to go into private homes or business houses for the purpose of finding sources of radio interference. I have no legal right to do so, and no desire to exceed my authority.

"As you probably know, some types of electrical equipment produce static electricity and therefore cause interference with radio reception. In certain types of equipment this fault can not be remedied at all. I am referring to equipment owned by private individuals and private business establishments. Perhaps you, who have given this matter such able leadership and publicity, can find a way to determine sources of radio interference in private homes and busi-

Women Take Steps To Get Sewer System Installed

Organization of a women's civic league, designed to arouse public interest in the need for a sewerage system in those sections of the city which at present have no such municipal sanitary service, was indicated Saturday when a petition was presented to the Monroe city council-commission urging that action be taken to meet the situation.

The petition was signed by the following residents of the northeastern section of the city, who are described as members of the new organization:

Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, Mrs. W. C. Oliver, Mrs. C. W. Wallace, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. C. E. Slade, Mrs. Carl H. McHenry, Mrs. R. L. Wood, Mrs. J. E. Godfrey, Mrs. A. J. Emerson, Mrs. B. D. PLEA OF GUILTY ENTERED BY BOY IN TEMPLE CASE

Lad Freed Under $1,000 Bond To Await Action By Federal Grand Jury

Spokesman For Family Of Child Movie Star Suggests Leniency

GRANT, Neb., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Sterling W. Powell, 16, who admitted writing a letter threatening the life of Shirley Temple, child film star, unless her father paid him $25,000, was free under $1,000 bond tonight to await action of a federal grand jury.

Powell, a voracious reader of film and detective magazines and a motion picture fan, pleaded guilty to an extortion charge before United States Commissioner A. F. Streitz at North Platte today and was bound over to the next term of federal district court which begins June 8, 1937.

Sheriff Howard Bechtel of Perkins county, Powell's home, signed the $1,000 bond and brought the boy back here.

He said that Powell had told him "he never meant to go through with it" and did not go to the specified place to look for the money.

The letter demanding the money was addressed to Shirley's father, George F. Temple. Written last May, it ordered him to drop $25,000 "from an airplane near Grant, on May 15" or "the life of Shirley Temple will be endangered."

Temple, at Eureka, Calif., told authorities the letter was not noted

State's Legal Staff And Other Important Bureaus Reorganized By Leche

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Louisiana's legal staff and other important bureaus were reorganized today under appointments of Gov. Richard W. Leche.

Some of the appointments were in keeping with new legislative statutes broadening departments. Others, including a number of minor appointments, were in line with regular administrative duties to fill vacancies.

Atty. Gen. Gaston L. Porterie announced the appointment of Joseph A. Loret, of Baton Rouge, as an assistant attorney general. His office is an addition. Mr. Loret is at present a lecturer on the code of practice in the Louisiana State university school of law. He will continue his lecture courses.

James O'Connor, of New Orleans, was elevated from second assistant attorney general to first assistant, succeeding George M. Wallace. Mr. Wallace was appointed executive counsel to the governor, a newly-created position.

Lesley P. Gardiner, already connected with the attorney general's office, will serve as second assistant attorney general in the Baton Rouge office while Mr. O'Connor will be in

RAILROAD WORKER ATTACKED IN CAFE

Because he refused to purchase a bottle of beer for a stranger who was intoxicated, H. M. Frierson, car inspector for the Missouri Pacific railroad, was attacked and severely beaten "by the stranger Saturday morning about 6:45 a.m. in the Plum street cafe, according to Frierson's statement of the attack. Police arrested Herman Harris, a WPA worker, as the man who made the alleged attack.

Frierson said that he stepped into the cafe with a fellow workman while on his way to work, to purchase some tobacco, and was sitting at the restaurant counter when the man approached and requested him to buy a bottle of beer.

When Frierson declined to buy the beer, the man threatened to kill him if he refused, according to Frierson.

Frierson was said to have been struck a severe blow a moment later while he was unaware that he was about to be attacked, and was knocked off the counter stool to the floor, and then kicked.

Frierson was treated at St. Francis sanitarium for lacerations and bruises. He remained a patient there last night, but his physician said he probably would be removed to his home today.

Police Officers H. B. Parker and L. G. Parker arrested Harris. He was still held in the city jail last night.

AIRMAN DIES

LOUIS BLERIOT

BLERIOT, FAMOUS FLIER, SUCCUMBS

French Airman Who First Flew English Channel Dies Of Heart Attack

PARIS, Aug. 2 (Sunday).—(AP)—Louis Bleriot, 64, the famous French aviator who first flew the English channel, died today.

The outstanding aviator of his day, Bleriot crossed the channel from Calais, France, to Dover, England, in an airplane on July 25, 1909.

He outdistanced a destroyer which had been assigned to direct his course, completing the hop of 23.5 miles in 38 minutes.

Bleriot, who became an engineer after his air career, succumbed suddenly of a heart attack during the night. He had been confined recently because of heart weakness.

Louis Bleriot was the Lindbergh of his day.

His pioneer flight across the English channel was as daring a feat in 1909 as was Colonel Lindbergh's transatlantic trip through the air in 1927.

Notwithstanding the 18 years that intervened between their epochal flights, it is not unlikely that the names of Bleriot and Lindbergh will be closely linked in aeronautical history.

By being the first to accomplish the seemingly impossible feat of their respective times, each was responsible for a direct move in the progress of aviation. Lindbergh's interest toward flying is said to have been partly inspired by the stories of Bleriot's early fame. When the Spirit of St. Louis made its historic landing at Le Bourget, the French flyer's name was one of the first to be uttered by the young American.

How aviation advanced between those two flights is indicated by the fact that when Lindbergh spanned the Atlantic, Bleriot's feat had become a commonplace, every-day event.

Born at Cambrai, July 1, 1872, Bleriot was the son of a manufacturer and thus came in contact with things mechanical since his boyhood. He went to a technical school and took a degree in engineering. After his military service, spent for the most part as a second lieutenant of

(By Associated Press)

Only five new cases of infantile paralysis Saturday in a southern outbreak led health authorities to express renewed hope that spread of the disease gradually was being stalled by extensive preventive measures.

Dr. J. N. Baker, Alabama health officer, said the disease "appears now to be definitely on the down swing," and Georgia authorities again pointed out the malady had not reached epidemic proportions in that state.

Alabama reported three new cases Saturday and Georgia and Mississippi one each, to bring the total stricken in these states and Tennessee to 347. The death list rose to 23 with the report of the death of a child at Gleason, Tenn.

OREGON PRISON INMATES GET NO FOOD AFTER RIOT

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Seven hundred howling prisoners shattered window panes, banged cell doors and turned the Oregon penitentiary into bedlam today in a shouting demand for food, denied them after a fatal riot yesterday.

Pang of hunger failed to break the rioting spirit of the convicts.

Warden James Lewis refused dinner to the rioters last night and they were given no food today. Preparations were made for trouble when the first meal is served, possibly Sunday morning, and the convicts filed to the dining room.

GLADYS M'KNIGHT LAYS BLAME UPON DELAYED SUPPER

RADIO RELIGIOUS SINGER ADMITS PART IN MURDER

Husband Of Victim Finds Body Upon Return From Work; Girl Unshaken

By J. Newman Wright
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Gladys MacKnight, 17, called the "most cold blooded girl" he had ever seen by Chief of Police Cornelius O'Neill, calmly confessed today she hacked her mother to death with a hatchet while her young sweetheart cried "hit her again."

A late supper which delayed their tennis game was blamed by the pair, Chief O'Neill said, for the quarrel between mother and daughter which preceded the slaying in the kitchen of the MacKnight home last night. O'Neill said the girl's apparently ungovernable temper had been the cause of repeated verbal clashes between the two.

After signing statements describing the crime in detail, Chief O'Neill said, the girl changed from tennis clothes to a pink summery dress for the arraignment at which she and her companion, Donald Wightman, 18, radio religious hour singer, were ordered held for the grand jury on first degree murder charges.

Her unconcerned manner contrasted sharply with the extreme nervousness of young Wightman as they stood before Recorder Raymond J. Cuddy. His hands were twitching as he clung to a railing but the girl was smiling affectionately at him during the brief session.

O'Neill said Wightman was the first to "break" after the pair were arrested in Jersey City following a ride to Somerville, during which they stopped once to buy beer and sandwiches and once to hug and kiss each other. The girl confessed only after being shown Wightman's signed statement, O'Neill said.

"Gladys, I have told the police the truth, and I want you to do that also," O'Neill quoted Wightman as saying.

"So what?" was her reply, the chief said.

Later, O'Neill said, she told of the killing, and events before and after it.

O'Neill said the girl's story was that her mother had been sharpening a bread knife, and had brandished it during the heated argument. A hatchet which had been used to tack a carpet lay nearby.

Wightman, who had been in another room, rushed into the kitchen and pinioned Mrs. MacKnight's arms when he saw the knife in her hand, they were quoted as saying. The girl then picked up the hatchet and struck her mother on the head, O'Neill said, then Wightman released his hold and Mrs. MacKnight slumped to the floor, moaning and writhing.

"Hit her again," Wightman said, and the girl bent over her mother and hacked her to death, the confession asserted.

After the slaying, the confession said, the two shoved the mother's body under a table, where it would not be visible from the outside, washed the blood from their hands, and started out in a car owned by the girl's father, Edgar MacKnight, a cable company

TWO MEN INJURED IN HIGHWAY CRASH

S. C. Kennedy, 49, Calhoun farmer, suffered a fractured hip, multiple lacerations on the head and face and general contusions, and Lieut. Robert A. Bowman of the CCC camp at Calhoun suffered cuts and bruises yesterday morning about 10:0 a.m. when the car in which they were riding was in a collision with a sand truck on the Calhoun road about 11 miles from Monroe.

The driver of the sand truck was reported uninjured. His name was not learned.

The collision was reported to have taken place when the drivers of the car and truck each were attempting to pass a wood truck which was either parked on the road or which was traveling so slowly that it appeared to be parked.

The wood truck was parked or moving eastward, headed in the direction in which Lieutenant Bowman was driving his car, it was reported. The sand truck was proceeding westward.

Both the driver of the car and the driver of the wood truck were said to have endeavored to steer their vehicles into the ditch when it became apparent that there would be a collision, reports of the accident said.

Kennedy was brought here to St. Francis sanitarium. Lieutenant Bowman was brought to his residence at 803 St. John street.

FRAUD CHARGED TO MARY ASTOR

Dr. Thorpe Accuses Ex-Wife Of Concealing Guardianship Action Of Court

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Dr. Franklyn Thorpe swore out an affidavit today that his film actress ex-wife, auburn-haired Mary Astor, had perpetrated a fraud upon the superior court in her sensation-studded fight for sole custody of their four-year-old daughter, Marylyn.

He charged the actress deliberately and fraudulently concealed from the court the fact that he obtained letters of guardianship of the child 15 months ago from the court's probate department.

Therefore, he contended, the sensational current hearing, to be resumed Monday, on Miss Astor's custody petition is "of no force, avail or effect."

Notice of the affidavit has been served on the actress.

The affidavit was disclosed as the couple and the child were in a family "reunion" at Miss Astor's home, where Judge Goodwin J. Knight vainly attempted to end the controversy. He is presiding at the custody hearing.

Judge Knight went to Miss Astor's residence to see young Marylyn's home surroundings and to talk with her. He conferred briefly with lawyers for both sides about a truce, but reported it seemed hopeless.

Receding somewhat from their courtroom demeanor, Dr. Thorpe and Miss Astor met and exchanged polite remarks. Out of earshot, Marylyn with them, they talked earnestly for a moment, then smiled.

When Dr. Thorpe arrived, the child seized his coat sleeve, and tried to pilot him to where Miss Astor stood. In his answer to Miss Astor's custody suit he accused her of "gross immoral conduct." Dr. Thorpe smilingly shook his head and Miss Astor drew back, ill at east, but the constraint soon was relieved.

Judge Knight asked Marylyn two questons: "Do you love your moms?" and "do you love your pops?"

To each the chubby youngster nodded and replied, "Uh-huh."

Joseph Anderson, chief counsel for Dr. Thorpe, said he expects to summon to the custody hearing next week at least six Hollywood film actors and question them about their friendship with Miss Astor, principally before Dr. Thorpe divorced her without contest in April, 1935, and won sole custody of their daughter.

Anderson did not name the prospective witnesses.

He declared yesterday he planned to "go very, very thoroughly into the unfitness of Miss Astor" to have custody of the child.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE

A frame negro residence at 406 North Sixteenth street was damaged Saturday morning by a fire which firemen reported was caused by rags drying behind a stove becoming ignited. The wall paper and ceiling on one side of the house were burned. Ella Williams and Leland Jones, negroes, were said to be the occupants of the house. Mrs. Josephine Falleta is the owner of the residence.

A beetle is said to be able to do without food for three years.

PLACES IN MARINE CORPS AVAILABLE

Major R. E. Davis, the officer in charge of marine corps recruiting in New Orleans, announces that he will enlist 30 young men from Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas during the month of August. Applicants must be single, 18 to 28 years of age, 66 to 74 inches in height, of good moral character and in excellent physical condition.

Applicants selected for service will be transferred to marine barracks, Parris Island, S. C., or San Diego, Calif., for training and duty. After training they will be assigned to a battleship, plane carrier, or to one of several marine posts on the west coast for duty.

Young men may take preliminary physical examinations in their home localities and those selected will be given final examinations and enlistment at United States marine headquarters, 535 St. Charles street, New Orleans. Application blanks and particulars will be sent on request.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTE

A. & W. SANDWICH SHOP IS POPULAR

Many Customers Safeguarded By Strictest Sanitary Regulations

Considered the finest sandwich shop of its kind in northeast Louisiana, the A & W Sandwich Shop located at 326 DeSiard, owned and operated by I. W. Allen, has provoked the highest praise on the part of state sanitary and public health inspectors because of its spotless appearance and the high standard of cleanliness which it maintains.

Mr. Allen selected Monroe as the best city in which to establish his business five years ago, after making a survey of this city, Alexandria and Shreveport. When he had satisfied himself that Monroe was the logical point in which to open up, he made a careful selection of location and after negotiating for six weeks with the Guerriero estate, finally selected the present site of the A & W Sandwich Shop.

Mr. Allen secured a 10-year lease of the premises which are 125 feet long by 35 feet wide. The property owners made alterations to suit Mr. Allen at a cost of $6,000 and the latter added another $3,500 of his own money to complete the finest sandwich shop in this part of the state.

The A & W Sandwich Shop employs 22 people, the girls all being from the country and high school graduates. In accordance with his policy of establishing a business that would be more than "just an eating place," Mr. Allen built dormitories for his girls and it is a well known fact that these girls are among the highest type of paid employes in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Allen maintain their home at Rochelle and North Third street where they have lived for the past four years, but both see to it that the girls in their employ are well taken care and do not lack for anything which will insure their comfort. Mr. Allen's reputation for treating his employes like real people and not just mere help is well known and it is not an uncommon thing for him to receive as many as six applications for positions on his staff daily.

The A & W Sandwich Shop boasts the most complete electric cooling system of any similar business in this section. All soft drinks including the famous A & W root beer and all water served are electrically cooled. Only the finest foods are served at the most reasonable prices and because of its policy the A & W Sandwich Shop has deservedly won its reputation as the most popular eating place in Monroe.

CLOUATRE SHOP AIR CONDITIONED

Comfort And Convenience Of Customers Chief Aim Of Modern Shop

Clouatre's Barber shop, located at 117 North Second street, was the first tonsorial parlor in Monroe to be air conditioned.

Mr. Clouatre recently installed a complete system for air conditioning with ice, the cost of the equipment being approximately $400. The unit, known as the "city ice" unit, accomplishes a complete summer air conditioning effect through the use of 900 pounds of ice daily as a refrigerant.

The cooler which has been installed in Clouatre's Barber shop is compact and attractively designed and insures an inside temperature approximately 10 degrees cooler than on the street. Hot air from the shop is drawn out and passes through a fine cold water spray, where it is then passed through the eliminator plates and discharged into the shop at a desirable rate of circulation.

Clouatre's Barber shop is also completely remodelled for the comfort of its old established clientele which numbers some of the most substantial business men and their families in Monroe. It is Mr. Clouatre's boast that once a customer enters his shop that customer will come in again.

Mr. Clouatre operates six chairs and employs a staff of competent tonsorial artists. Mr. Clouatre has been at his present location for more than eight years and has followed his profession in Monroe for 16 years.

Special attention is given to children's work, and Mr. Clouatre personally attends to the little ones who are at once assured that getting their hair cut by Mr. Colature is fun. Each child is always remembered with a little gift when he steps from the chair.

Mr. Clouatre has adopted as his watchword the slogan, "Clouatre trims all the family," and because of the courtesy and efficiency of service rendered is one of the best known barbers in the city.

The fat-tailed sheep of Lebanon have tails so large that little wagons are provided to carry them. The fat in the huge tails provides a reserve supply of energy when the food supply runs short.

NEAT SHOES BIG BUSINESS ASSET

Bruno's Shop Fully Equipped To Turn Out Best Repair Work

The importance of having one's shoes appear neat at all times is stressed by Nicholas Bruno, proprietor of the Bruno's Electric Shoe Shop located at 106 North Second street, which is one of the oldest shoe repair shops in Monroe, having been establish more than nine years ago.

"One of the first things that is noticeable about a person is his shoes," Mr. Bruno declared. "If a person is well dressed but has shabby shoes the entire effect of neatness is lost. It is good business to wear shoes that are neat in appearance. If a business man or woman goes into an office with 'down-at-heels' shoes, or with soles with holes in them, the chances are that the person being interviewed will build up a sales resistance against whatever business proposition is being discussed by the owner of the 'down-at-heels' shoes. It is a good investment to have shoes that stand the most rigid inspection."

And Bruno's Electric Shoe Shop is fully equipped to make your shoes as good as new. Mr. Bruno advises that shoes which show wear should be sent to him as soon as possible as this will insure a longer life to the shoe. He also advocates that the public buy better shoes and keep them repaired.

Among the latest piece of machinery that this modern shoe repair shop has installed is the Paragon Shoe Stretcher. This machine, the only one of its kind in Monroe, is designed to stretch and lengthen shoes and ease the vamp, so that all customers of Mr. Bruno's shop may be assured of real shoe comfort.

The Bruno Electric Shoe Shop boasts the latest shoe repairing equipment, including a special machine for sewing ladies' half soles, a decided innovation in this type of repair work.

The Bruno Electric Shoe Shop maintains an efficient and rapid pick-up and delivery service which covers Monroe and West Monroe. If your shoes need attention take advantage of this service and telephone the Bruno Electric Shoe Shop today.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 1.—(Special)—The Studebaker corporation had net earnings of $900,174.76, after all charges including normal federal income tax, in the second quarter compared with a loss of $119,510.72 in the second quarter of 1935, according to profit and loss statement and balance sheet released today by President Paul G. Hoffman. This brings net earnings for the half year to $1,004,-829.44, equivalent to 46½ cents per share on the 2,159,717 shares of common stock outstanding.

Current assets, including cash of $8,375,618.27, amounted to $13,826,897.29 against current liabilities of $4,503,-191.34—a ratio of 3.07 to 1 compared with 2.01 to 1 on December 31, 1935.

Sales for the quarter were 26,394 passenger cars and trucks for $19,422,-067.24, including parts and accessories, compared with 15,831 for $12,012,778.90 in the same period of 1935.

The cost of maintaining a convict in prision is estimated to be $435.19 a year, while the cost of supervising a convict on parole is $46.81.

All the nitrate of soda produced in the United States comes from a single manufacturing plant, at Hopewell, Va.

EYE ILLS CAUSE AUTO ACCIDENTS

Lack Of Steropsis Is Contributing Factor, Says Dr. T. A. Brulte

Many automobile accidents which seem unaccountable at the time they occur can now be traced to a specific cause, the lack of steropsis or denth preception, according to Dr. T. A. Brulte, well known Monroe optometrist who maintains his office in conjunction with Dr. Herbert C. Hughes, in the R & A Jewelry building on DeSiard street.

"Modern optometry has furnished the solution for the cause of many automobile accidents which otherwise could not be explained," Dr. Brulte stated. "Often a driver who is involved in an accident cannot understand what happened, being certain that he or she is a careful driver. If they were to have their eyes examined they would discover that they lack a vital factor—steropsis."

Dr. Brulte explained that drivers of motor vehicles who apparently cannot judge distances accurately, should go to their optometrist and undergo a test to determine if they have steropsis or if they lack this vital condition to enable them to perceive depth and distance.

"Optometry has developed some very simple tests which tell accurately if a person lacks steropsis," Dr. Brulte pointed out. "These tests are based on the old stereoptic slides principle. If a peson has steropsis he will readily perceive the depth in the various figures presented through the lens. If a person lacks steropsis everything shown will appear perfectly flat. Such a person should take immediate steps to correct the condition, particularly if he or she drives a motor vehicle."

Dr. Brulte stated that a few simple treatments known as orthoptic treatments will correct this condition and will restore steropsis to a person who is without it.

"The care of the eyes should be of paramount importance to everybody. Optometry has made great strides in recent years and today is ready to assist the person with poor vision to enjoy life and also to correct many causes of ill health which are directly traced to poor vision. Have your eyes examined at least once a year," Dr. Brulte said.

Dr. Herbert C. Hughes of the Southern College of Optometry in Memphis, where he operated the eye clinic and taught classes in optometry, is now permanently associated with Dr. Brulte.

PONTIAC DEALER BACKS RATTLER

McCamey, Texas, Owner Has Pontiac Entry In Rattlesnake Derby

William "Wild Bill" Edwards, Pontiac dealer at McCamey, Tex., really lived up to his reputation recently by taking his Pontiac "Stingy Injun" to McCamey's first annual rattlesnake derby.

Now, here are real facts, and "Bill" challenges all Pontiac dealers in the country to duplicate the performance.

Desiring some real excitement, the prosperous little city of McCamey promoted a rattlesnake derby, offered prizes for the fastest snake, and invited all of Texas and New Mexico to "bring on your rattlers." Forty live rattlers were entered for the prizes, which ran into sporty figures. Hundreds of people attended the event at the baseball park.

The rattlers were placed in a long wooden box, each wearing the name of the sponsor. The lid was removed, and a stiff charge of electric current was turned on the reptiles through special wiring in the floor, and the race was "on." The box was in the midle of a 60-foot and a winner was declared wh first "rep' 'crossed the circle.

As the rattlers rushed fro "charged" box, and crawled i direction, women in the gra screamed and some of the ers" escaped for safety.

"Wild Bill" says his entry win a prize, but he demonstra economy Pontiac to many of t loving Texans, who average than 25 miles per gallon.

FRAUD CHARGED TO MARY ASTOR

Dr. Thorpe Accuses Ex-Wife Of Concealing Guardianship Action Of Court

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Dr. Franklyn Thorpe swore out an affidavit today that his film actress ex-wife, auburn-haired Mary Astor, had perpetrated a fraud upon the superior court in her sensation-studded fight for sole custody of their four-year-old daughter, Marylyn.

He charged the actress deliberately and fraudulently concealed from the court the fact that he obtained letters of guardianship of the child 15 months ago from the court's probate department.

Therefore, he contended, the sensational current hearing, to be resumed Monday, on Miss Astor's custody petition is "of no force, avail or effect."

Notice of the affidavit has been served on the actress.

The affidavit was disclosed as the couple and the child were in a family "reunion" at Miss Astor's home, where Judge Goodwin J. Knight vainly attempted to end the controversy. He is presiding at the custody hearing.

Judge Knight went to Miss Astor's residence to see young Marylyn's home surroundings and to talk with her. He conferred briefly with lawyers for both sides about a truce, but reported it seemed hopeless.

Receding somewhat from their courtroom demeanor, Dr. Thorpe and Miss Astor met and exchanged polite remarks. Out of earshot, Marylyn with them, they talked earnestly for a moment, then smiled.

When Dr. Thorpe arrived, the child seized his coat sleeve, and tried to pilot him to where Miss Astor stood. In his answer to Miss Astor's custody suit he accused her of "gross immoral conduct." Dr. Thorpe smilingly shook his head and Miss Astor drew back, ill at east, but the constraint soon was relieved.

Judge Knight asked Marylyn two questons: "Do you love your moms?" and "do you love your pops?"

To each the chubby youngster nodded and replied, "Uh-huh."

Joseph Anderson, chief counsel for Dr. Thorpe, said he expects to summon to the custody hearing next week at least six Hollywood film actors and question them about their friendship with Miss Astor, principally before Dr. Thorpe divorced her without contest in April, 1935, and won sole custody of their daughter.

Anderson did not name the prospective witnesses.

He declared yesterday he planned to "go very, very thoroughly into the unfitness of Miss Astor" to have custody of the child.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE

A frame negro residence at 406 North Sixteenth street was damaged Saturday morning by a fire which firemen reported was caused by rags drying behind a stove becoming ignited. The wall paper and ceiling on one side of the house were burned. Ella Williams and Leland Jones, negroes, were said to be the occupants of the house. Mrs. Josephine Falleta is the owner of the residence.

A beetle is said to be able to do without food for three years.

PLACES IN MARINE CORPS AVAILABLE

Major R. E. Davis, the officer in charge of marine corps recruiting in New Orleans, announces that he will enlist 30 young men from Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas during the month of August. Applicants must be single, 18 to 28 years of age, 66 to 74 inches in height, of good moral character and in excellent physical condition.

Applicants selected for service will be transferred to marine barracks, Parris Island, S. C., or San Diego, Calif., for training and duty. After training they will be assigned to a battleship, plane carrier, or to one of several marine posts on the west coast for duty.

Young men may take preliminary physical examinations in their home localities and those selected will be given final examinations and enlistment at United States marine headquarters, 535 St. Charles street, New Orleans. Application blanks and particulars will be sent on request.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTE

A. & W. SANDWICH SHOP IS POPULAR

Many Customers Safeguarded By Strictest Sanitary Regulations

Considered the finest sandwich shop of its kind in northeast Louisiana, the A & W Sandwich Shop located at 326 DeSiard, owned and operated by I. W. Allen, has provoked the highest praise on the part of state sanitary and public health inspectors because of its spotless appearance and the high standard of cleanliness which it maintains.

Mr. Allen selected Monroe as the best city in which to establish his business five years ago, after making a survey of this city, Alexandria and Shreveport. When he had satisfied himself that Monroe was the logical point in which to open up, he made a careful selection of location and after negotiating for six weeks with the Guerriero estate, finally selected the present site of the A & W Sandwich Shop.

Mr. Allen secured a 10-year lease of the premises which are 125 feet long by 55 feet wide. The property owners made alterations to suit Mr. Allen at a cost of $6,000 and the latter added another $3,500 of his own money to complete the finest sandwich shop in this part of the state.

The A & W Sandwich Shop employs 22 people, the girls all being from the country and high school graduates. In accordance with his policy of establishing a business that would be more than "just an eating place," Mr. Allen built dormitories for his girls and it is a well known fact that these girls are among the highest type of paid employes in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Allen maintain their home at Rochelle and North Third street where they have lived for the past four years, but both see to it that the girls in their employ are well taken care and do not lack for anything which will insure their comfort. Mr. Allen's reputation for treating his employes like real people and not just mere help is well known and it is not an uncommon thing for him to receive as many as six applications for positions on his staff daily.

The A & W Sandwich Shop boasts the most complete electric cooling system of any similar business in this section. All soft drinks including the famous A & W root beer and all water served are electrically cooled. Only the finest foods are served at the most reasonable prices and because of its policy the A & W Sandwich Shop has deservedly won its reputation as the most popular eating place in Monroe.

CLOUATRE SHOP AIR CONDITIONED

Comfort And Convenience Of Customers Chief Aim Of Modern Shop

Clouatre's Barber shop, located at 117 North Second street, was the first tonsorial parlor in Monroe to be air conditioned.

Mr. Clouatre recently installed a complete system for air conditioning with ice, the cost of the equipment being approximately $400. The unit, known as the "city ice" unit, accomplishes a complete summer air conditioning effect through the use of 900 pounds of ice daily as a refrigerant.

The cooler which has been installed in Clouatre's Barber shop is compact and attractively designed and insures an inside temperature approximately 10 degrees cooler than on the street. Hot air from the shop is drawn out and passes through a fine cold water spray, where it is then passed through the eliminator plates and discharged into the shop at a desirable rate of circulation.

Clouatre's Barber shop is also completely remodelled for the comfort of its old established clientele which numbers some of the most substantial business men and their families in Monroe. It is Mr. Clouatre's boast that once a customer enters his shop that customer will come in again.

Mr. Clouatre operates six chairs and employs a staff of competent tonsorial artists. Mr. Clouatre has been at his present location for more than eight years and has followed his profession in Monroe for 16 years.

Special attention is given to children's work, and Mr. Clouatre personally attends to the little ones who are at once assured that getting their hair cut by Mr. Colature is fun. Each child is always remembered with a little gift when he steps from the chair.

Mr. Clouatre has adopted as his watchword the slogan, "Clouatre trims all the family," and because of the courtesy and efficiency of service rendered is one of the best known barbers in the city.

The fat-tailed sheep of Lebanon have tails so large that little wagons are provided to carry them. The fat in the huge tails provides a reserve supply of energy when the food supply runs short.

RATTLESNAKE RACES FOR PONTIAC DEALER

Bruno's Shop Fully Equipped To Turn Out Best Repair Work

The importance of having one's shoes appear neat at all times is stressed by Nicholas Bruno, proprietor of the Bruno's Electric Shoe Shop located at 106 North Second street, which is one of the oldest shoe repair shops in Monroe, having been establish more than nine years ago.

"One of the first things that is noticeable about a person is his shoes," Mr. Bruno declared. "If a person is well dressed but has shabby shoes the entire effect of neatness is lost. It is good business to wear shoes that are neat in appearance. If a business man or woman goes into an office with 'down-at-heels' shoes, or with soles with holes in them, the chances are that the person being interviewed will build up a sales resistance against whatever business proposition is being discussed by the owner of the 'down-at-heels' shoes. It is a good investment to have shoes that stand the most rigid inspection."

And Bruno's Electric Shoe Shop is fully equipped to make your shoes as good as new. Mr. Bruno advises that shoes which show wear should be sent to him as soon as possible as this will insure a longer life to the shoe. He also advocates that the public buy better shoes and keep them repaired.

Among the latest piece of machinery that this modern shoe repair shop has installed is the Paragon Shoe Stretcher. This machine, the only one of its kind in Monroe, is designed to stretch and lengthen shoes and ease the vamp, so that all customers of Mr. Bruno's shop may be assured of real shoe comfort.

The Bruno Electric Shoe Shop boasts the latest shoe repairing equipment, including a special machine for sewing ladies' half soles, a decided innovation in this type of repair work.

The Bruno Electric Shoe Shop maintains an efficient and rapid pick-up and delivery service which covers Monroe and West Monroe. If your shoes need attention take advantage of this service and telephone the Bruno Electric Shoe Shop today.

LABOR'S COUNCIL FLAYED BY LEWIS

Head Of Mine Workers Accuses Group Of 'Selfishness' And 'Fear'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, accused the American Federation of Labor's executive council today of "flouting" the federation convention's direction to organize steel workers because of "selfishness" and "fear."

The U. M. W. chief reiterated his assertion that members of the committee on industrial organization would not be near for trial Monday before the executive council on "insurrection" charges.

He is leaders of the current drive to give every steel worker into one big Union, without regard for craft lines, of—vis said in a letter to members of the union:

The San Francisco convention of A. F. of L. (in 1934) passed a resolution instructing the executive council to inaugurate and conduct a campaign for the organization of the steel industry and to issue charters for national or international unions in the automotive, cement and aluminum industries, and in such other mass production industries as might, in the judgment of the executive council, be necessary to meet the situation.

"The executive council did not carry out its instructions.

"The Atlantic City convention of the A. F. of L. (in 1935) reaffirmed the declaration of the San Francisco convention with respect to the steel and other mass-production industries.

"The council did not carry out its instructions."

Lewis then recalled how he had quit the council, that he and 11 other union leaders had formed the committee for industrial organization to manage the steel drive, that the council had ordered the committee to disband and that the council—its order disregarded—had summoned the 12 rebel leaders to trial next Monday.

"The members of the committee for industrial organization will not appear for trial before the executive council of the A. F. of L.," Lewis added.

ALLBRITTON RITES NOT COMPLETED LAST NIGHT

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Nancy E. Allbritton, 40, who was fatally injured in a fall down a flight of stairs here Friday night, had not been completed last night. The arrangements were withheld pending the arrival here of a sister, Mrs. Myrtle Sower of Quitman, Miss., who was expected here late last night or this morning.

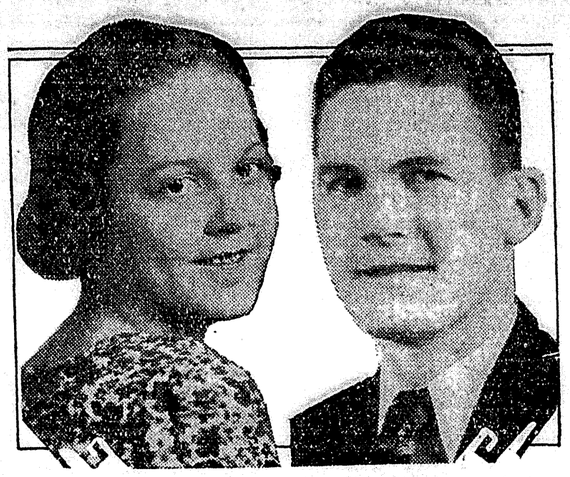

Mrs. Allbritton suffered a broken neck when she fell down a flight of stairs at the home of Jack Angell, 5215 DeSiard street, where she was employed as housekeeper.

Five children survive. They are Mrs. Lessie Arnold, Mrs. Annie Cruse, Earl Allbritton, Margie Allbritton and Madeline Allbritton.

FALSE CHARGES LAID TO CONNER

Senator Harrison Says Opponent Issued Misleading Statements

CARTHAGE, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Senator Pat Harrison charged in a speech here tonight that former Governor Sennett Conner made "false and misleading statements" regarding the senior senator's position on loans to shipping interests.

Winding up a week of intensive speech-making in his campaign for reelection, Senator Harrison declared that Conner, his opponent, "continues to misrepresent my record on legislation governing interest rates on federal land bank loans to farmers."

Criticizing Conner's advocacy of two per cent interest rates on federal land bank loans, Harrison quoted from the congressional record and he reiterated he supported a measure to reduce the interest rate on land bank loans from five per cent to four per cent, but refused to support an amendment to reduce the rate to three and one-half per cent.

He cited that the federal government had been forced to appropriate $82,000,000 to make up the difference between the three and one-half per cent rate adopted in conference and the contract rate carried in mortgage loans.

"I have stated repeatedly," he said, "that the administration and those working with the administration were trying to reduce the interest rate from five per cent to four per cent. The administration felt that the interest rate to farmers could not be less than four per cent. I recognized, as did the administration, that if the interest rate was made less than four per cent, it might be necessary to draw on the treasury to make up the difference."

6 PERSONS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Merl Padgett Slightly Hurt When Automobiles Collide Early Saturday

Six persons narrowly escaped serious injuries Saturday morning about 1 o'clock when two automobiles collided at the intersection of North Sixth and Glenmar streets. Charges and counter charges were made by drivers of the two cars, Merl Padgett and Charles Womack. Padgett was accused of driving while drunk and Womack was charged with reckless driving. Padgett was released under $100 and Womack was freed under $25 bond.

According to reports of the drivers to police, Padgett, with Dr. S. A. Collins and H. R. Burfford as passengers, was driving north on North Sixth street at the time of the accident, and Womack, with his brother, Stresau "Dutch" Womack and James Jones as passengers, was driving east on Glenmar.

Womack said he slowed his machine as he reached the intersection and saw no vehicle approaching from either direction on North Sixth. Padgett said he was driving on North Sixth at a speed of about 20 miles an hour.

Padgett suffered a slight cut on the ear in the collision and the other persons in the accident were jolted, but none apparently suffered any other injuries.

The Padgett car was almost demolished. Womack's car was badly damaged.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for Dallas, Tex., where they will visit the centennial exposition. They will make their home in Newellton.

FRESHMAN BOOK BEING PUBLISHED

Publication Sponsored By Y. M. C. A. And Y. W. C. A. At Tech

RUSTON, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—Published as a cooperative project by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of Louisiana Tech, the "T" Book, an 88-page booklet of information for freshmen, is being printed by the college here. The editor of the pocket-size publication is Jack Pullig of Gibsland, president of the Tech Y. M. C. A., who has been assisted by Roselyn Stokes of Bunkie, head of the Y. W. C. A. here. One thousand copies of the book will be printed, most of which will be distributed to the new students entering Tech on September 14, and the rest will be available for students enrolling for the second semester on February 1, 1937.

The dedicatory paragraph in the booklet is as follows:

"In memory of the old administration building, destroyed by fire, and of the many happy hours spent within its walls, we look upon the splendid new building program and dedicate this, the 1936-37 edition of the 'T' Book to the greater future of Tech."

In giving information concerning the school year the "T" Book advises the freshmen how and where to register, and lists freshman rules, church directories, regulations governing student organizations, student clubs and officers, dormitory regulations for both girls and boys, a discussion of athletics and by-laws of major, minor and freshman sports, college yells, the Alma Mater song, etc.

In addition to the joint publication of the "T" Book, several other services are rendered on the campus by the religious groups. During the freshman week program in the opening of the fall semester, the "Y" members will cooperate in helping the beginning students become adjusted to college life. The "Y" groups also plan to give social entertainments during the first week of the fall session and later in the school year.

Plans have been made by the Y. M. C. A. to obtain several speakers for the coming year, including Arden O. French, general secretary of the state Y. M. C. A.; Professor Young, L. S. U. psychologist; Dr. Pierce Cline, president of Centenary college; Dean Smith of Centenary, and Dr. M. E. Dodd, pastor of the First Baptist church of Shreveport.

No Need To Be Bored

We have heard there are bored people in the world. While we sympathize with them we cannot understand them. The youth who disconsolately sat before a pad of paper and said, "I can't write a story, Shakespeare used up all the good ideas"—had little perception of the world around him.

We are never quite so impressed by the tremendous number of things which have been done in the world, as we are by the infinite variety of similar—or better—things which can be done and will yet be done.

The twenty-six letters of our alphabet have been cudgled, wheedled, coaxed, forced and maneuvered into so many writings that they can never be catalogued. Each day, all the manifold and complex relationships of the nations, of peoples, of businesses, organizations, societies and individuals, are told and retold in ever-varying reports—and only twenty-six letters of the alphabet are required to convey every essential detail and every shade of meaning.

Never going beyond a single octave on the keyboard of your piano, you may produce 2,049 different tones or combinations of tones. Yet, a beautiful symphony which develops through complex movements takes advantage of hardly forty of those 2,049 possibilities.

Bridge players are now and again awed by the fabulous number of different bridge hands which can be dealt from fifty-two cards.

The few colors of the spectrum are possible of infinite gradations. No artist has so fully utilized the great ranges of colors but that next week a new and beautiful effect may be obtained.

In every field there are new possibilities for original thinkers which make possible entire new worlds of interest. Each year, each month, almost each week, there are inventions or discoveries which push further out our old horizons. Even without additions to the field of available facts and ideas and modes of expression, there remain in all the old fields additional ways of re-arranging and re-expressing.

Who doubts that there will in the future be greater writing than most of what has been done—that there will be greater operas sung and symphonies played than most that have to date been written? If not greater and better writing and composing—at least, infinitely different! And equally interesting!

It is the way of the world that most human activities are possible of endless modification, revision, improvement and development.

If our mentality is alert, if our eyes are focused on the great horizons beyond, if we are in tune with the changing world, we will never be bored. Most of us wish we could multiply ourselves in order to be more widely conscious of our interesting surroundings and our ever-new horizons.

AN ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS

From the lips of Ned Sparks, lugubrious comedian of the screen, words of truth, faithfully expressive of the true character of Hollywood, have fallen. Mr. Sparks, in accordance with the traditions of his profession, is being sued by his wife, or at least by one of his former wives. On one occasion, according to the testimony, this highly amusing chap with the rather sardonic sense of humor, informed his wife that he had "already kicked out two wives and it won't hurt to kick you out, too."

Sparks, the complainant said, "went Hollywood in a big way." Sparks himself explained that "going Hollywood" was equivalent to contracting a disease. This seems to be a conclusion with adequate basis in fact. "Going Hollywood" suggests various forms of aberration, also a surrender of moral standards and a reversion to types which have no acceptable place in a civilization which makes any pretense in the direction of decency.

The proud boast of Mr. Sparks that he had "already knicked out two wives" does not entitle him to any exceptional measure of distinction even though he may have spoken the truth. Others in Hollywood have exceeded his performance. He is entitled to credit, however, for the discernment with which he has diagnosed his trouble. Hollywood is, indeed, something in the nature of a disease.

THE INDISPENSABLE NEWSPAPER

In no country in the world has newspaper development reached such stage as it has in this country.

People are hardly equipped to live in a modern community until they read thoroughly every issue of a good local newspaper. In fact that is the way they conserve their incomes, by learning of good opportunities to buy merchandise.

They become familiar with public movements and entertainments, and are able to enjoy many things that they would not hear about until they had happened, if they were not informed by the newspapers. They are thereby able to partake to the full of their community life, where without such a newspaper thoroughly covering their field, they are on one side the current of its life.

A Boston preacher reports back that the Germans are "the happiest, most contented and best dressed people in Europe." And what else did Hitler say?

Why War?

By BRUCE CATTON

One of the most revealing sidelights on the civil war in Spain was dug up by an American newspaper correspondent who was trailing a retreating army across the country. Stopping at a little farm to get a drink, the correspondent asked the peasant who lived there on which side he was.

The peasant said bluntly that he was on neither side. He only hoped that both sides would get the fighting over with and go home, so that he could go ahead with his job of getting the crops in; and he wound up by wishing an eternity of bad luck on all generals and armies that insist on holding battles on someone's farmland.

This peasant probably was a woefully undereducated person with no understanding of the great issues of the day, and whichever dictatorship finally succeeds in fastening itself on Spain probably will shoot him one of these days. But he did manage to voice humanity's age-old complain against war—it gets in the way of the work that has to be done.

He has had brothers on every battlefield in all history, and they all got the worst of it when the drums began to beat. The stolid Belgian who farmed La Haye Sainte on the plain by Waterloo, the Pennsylvanian who owned the famous Peach Orchard at Gettysburg, the Danish trawler who hoped to take a few fish from the Skagerrack on that May afternoon in 1916—to these people, as to this Spanish peasant, armies and battles are an unmitigated nuisance and the work of the world would go forward a lot faster if they were abolished.

And although it may be heresy to suggest it, these people are probably quite right.

Human civilization is a strange growth, and we do not entirely understand how it got started or how it does manage, in spite of obstacles, to keep progressing; but it is very clear that its base is the worker and not the warrior, the man who produces rather than the man who destroys.

Civilization, that is, does not rest on a base of armies and navies; it rests on the backs of the men who work with their hands, in field or in shop, and it will last just as long as they go on holding it up. They are a greater procession, in the long pages of history, than all the hordes of warriors that ever followed a drum.

They move without glory and without battle flags, poets do not immortalize them and the history books omit their names. But for unnumbered generations they have gone on, tempering the earth to man's habitation, making possible all the graces of living which lift man above the level of the beasts.

The far-called armies melt away, and the winds carry off the crash of their battles. The plain man at the bottom is eternal, and he has the world and all its hopes in his keeping. He makes possible Shakespeare and Beethoven, the Taj Mahal and Rheims cathedral, and all the glory and marvel of which human effort is capable.

And if, with all of this, he wearily asks the fighting men to get the heck out of the way so that he can go on with his job—is he asking too much?

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE SCRAP OF PAPER—It was a highly dramatic moment when Sir Edward Goschen, British ambassador in Berlin, faced the German Chancellor von Bethman Hollweg on the evening of August 4, 1914, with the British ultimatum based on Germany's invasion of Belgium in violation of the treaty of London of April 19, 1839. The excited German chancellor referred to this solemn treaty as "a scrap of paper" during that interview. A few hours later, Germany and Great Britain were in a state of war, which the violated "scrap of paper" made inevitable.

NEW YORK Day by Day by O. O. McIntyre

There is no eating place so glamorous, to my notion, as a Pullman diner, the sway, the roar, the excited faces, and tingle of rushing pell-mell through night halo it all with what the darkies call razzmataz.

An established traveler tells me that dining on an ocean-going Zep high above the clouds tops the Pullman diner, but until I have tried it I'll string along with my first love. Twice I have entrained for Philadelphia at dinner time just for a meal on the run.

In a diner somehow everybody takes on sudden importance. The gentleman whose temples are thatched gray may be a cement drummer from Peoria, but on the diner he is Big Business. Perhaps the sort who calls Schwab Charlie and Sloane Alf. And has a marble front on the avenue.

There are usually the newlyweds, too, worth a sly glance. They are trying to appear settled, and failing miserably. Acting cannot quench that mysterious and adorable glint the poets call "the love light." Also there is the smart boy. The flashily dressed fellow who thinks it new to call porters and waiters George.

He engages anyone near him in conversation and gets off a few hot ones—usually from Ballyhoo or a musical revue. He's a card at home and abroad and definitely American. As definite as the seventh inning stretch.

Many times I've wondered about the extraordinary humility of the conductor as he tip-toes, hat in hand, through the diner. In this short journey he expresses the servility of a peon, yet he is the autocrat of the train—save in the diner. He seems to say it will be O. K. to give me a quick shove out of here.

The flashes through this strange town and that. Main streets all lit up, gives one a twinge of pity for those left behind. Somehow the Pullman diner passenger has the idea that at the moment he is riding top gallant on the crest of the world.

I know a great salesman who says he has put across some of his biggest deals on diners. I can well understand it. People feel expansive, sympathetic and are likely to lose a just balance. It's a good place to sell Brooklyn bridge.

Any person in a funk, I believe, can perk out of it by boarding a train for a Pullman diner meal. Or maybe the illusion is not so great to others as it is to country boys.

New York took to its new Promenade cafe, the al fresco sunken plaza restaurant at Rockefeller Center, with enthusiasm. It serves a reasonably priced luncheon and dinner and there is a platform for dancing girls as well as an orchestra for dinner-dancing. Sidewalk passersby line up at the edges and look down on the patrons, which is something New York likes very much i. e.—to be looked at. The cafe is in the Malayan States.

new venture is said to have been paying from the second night. The first night it was caught in a terrific downpour, generally an omen of ill luck for outdoor restaurants.

The New Yorker reports that a milkman in Bronxville is a graduate of Hamilton and the University of Vienna. And in a Third avenue movie ticket cage there is an honor graduate of Vassar. This could be multiplied a thousand times around the city. Most of them feel that they are marking time for the march back—and doubtless they are. But the prophets of gloom see it otherwise.

I plucked this from a letter from Miss Irma Fraser, pretty young school marm of Los Angeles, to a friend: "Very likely, every child at some time or other has had a problem that he couldn't solve about which he was afraid to ask for fear of being ridiculed. Such was my case. My recollection is that among the first sentences I learned were 'A pint's a pound the world around,' and 'No matter what a many may say, twenty-four hours make a day.' Then there came to my ears the statement that the days were getting longer. How could they, I thought, when there are only 24 hours in a day."

Joe Cawthorne, 63 years on the stage, is vacationing in Europe with his wife, Queenie Vassar, to whom he has been married 35 years. Cawthorne, when the stage buckled, made a place for himself in Hollywood, and is one of the most regularly employed of the character actors. He's a grand character.

A rest cure in Massachusetts specializing in insomnia allows the patient to have nothing in the room but a bed, chair and dresser. The switch light is across the room from the bed and there is no reading matter of any description about. People are supposed to go into the room to sleep and nothing else and most of them after a few nights begin hitting it off, I am told. But think of going to sleep without a little reading!

I have a prankish friend who leaves this about on the desks of busy friends: Diodorous Cronus, an ancient Sophist, nearly drove the philosophers of his day crazy in an effort to solve this: "The impossible cannot result from the impossible. A past event cannot become other than it is; but if an event at a given moment had been possible, from the possible would result something impossible: therefor the original event was impossible."

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

POLAND'S REBEL

SEVEN years before the American Revolution, young Count Casimir Pulaski joined an uprising to liberate Poland from Russian influence. In 1771, at the age of 23, he was outlawed for his part in a plot to abduct King Stanislas from Warsaw. His estates were confiscated and he escaped to France. There he met Benjamin Franklin, from whom he learned of America's revolt.

Pulaski sailed for America in 1777, presented his credentials to General Washington and immediately participated in a second war for liberty. He fought in the battles of Germantown and Brandywine, and then was sent south to aid in the siege of Savannah. There he was wounded, and died Oct. 11, 1779.

A tall marble shaft, topped by a Statue of Liberty, stands in Savannah in his honor. And, in 1931, a two-cent stamp was issued in commemoration of his death. The portrait on the stamp is a copy of an etching by H. B. Hall, printed in Jones' "History of Georgia," and is draped by the U. S. and Polish flags.

Your Baby's Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

The child who is different from other children requires special attention and training to make the most of what he has, and to avoid his being pushed into the category of the defective or the abnormal.

The first step, obviously, is to determine the nature of his difference. The expert will stress the qualities that are important for achievement, and minimize those that are likely to lead to failure.

In the past, all children were put into common schools and no effort was made to select those with marked aptitudes, or with physical defects, for special training. Children are likely to tease and be cruel to those who are different, thus giving them a feeling of inferiority, and shoving them gradually beyond the border of social adjustment.

Sometimes the difficulties in the home are even worse than those in school. The child who is different will not seem to fit into the life of the family. A father may be domineering and cruel; the mother overaffectionate and weak.

Anxious as they are to be of the utmost service to the child, the parents nevertheless may fail in the very phases in which they are most anxious to be helpful.

Too much coddling produces what the boys call a "sissy." If the child learns that it can dominate its parents, it becomes spoiled and tyrannical.

One of the finest developments of recent years has been the special schools for youngsters who are different. In these schools, they are given opportunity to develop the traits that are important. If the children happen to be physically defective, special means are provided to help them overcome their defects.

You must not look upon a special school merely as a place in which to put children who are not able to keep up with others. We have learned that we owe equal duties to those with special talents and extraordinary intellect, who are able to proceed faster than other children, or who may have within themselves the seeds of genius.

A child may find it simply impossible to learn how to spell correctly, and yet to be able to sketch admirably.

The child that is different should have, first of all, expert study as to the nature of its difference, and then special care and teaching to permit it to make the most of its physical and mental qualities, and its genius, if it has any.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

WASHINGTON.—The amusing and exciting aspects of the Townsend movement's convention in Cleveland still gave little indication as to the size of the vote the Lemke ticket will roll up this year.

Among politicians, hardly anyone has been heard of who is at the moment guessing a total of more than 1,500,000. Many estimates run below that.

Despite the fact that Dr. Townsend himself and the Rev. Gerald Smith have joined Father Coughlin in supporting Lemke, there is no particular boom in the North Dakota congressman's stock.

One reason is that it appears to be manifestly impossible to "deliver" Townsendites to any presidential candidate this year. Townsend's hold on his followers is none too firm. While the impressively large crowd of delegates cheered Gomer Smith's pro-Roosevelt speech almost as hysterically as they did Coughlin's vicious attack on the president, it began to appear that the doctor's dream of controlling millions of votes might be slightly cockeyed.

A further tip-off is that the three states of the Pacific coast, birthplace and chief stronghold of the Townsend movement, are generally considered certain to go for Roosevelt this year by big majorities.

Nevertheless, the Union party will be backed by the most spectacular group of rabble-rousers gathered into a political party in our time—lacking only the late Huey Long to give it vital leadership—and predictions now are likely to fall wide of the mark, either way.

The ticket will get much or most of what cynical politicians call the "nut vote" and nobody really knows how big that vote is.

Rush Flight Explained

You may have noticed an interesting story about the night flight of an army transport plane to Jasper, Ala., to get a bill passed in the closing days of congress to Speaker William Bankhead for signature.

Then the plane took off to Uvalde, Tex., where Vice President Garner also signed the measure. The bill was supposed to be a rather inconsequential one, overlooked in the last-minute rush on Capitol Hill.

The inside story is this: In the closing days the administration pushed through a bill providing that congressional committees might take recalcitrant witnesses to court on contempt charges in the summer and fall as well as when congress was in session.

The bill passed house and senate without amendment. But someone on the senate side wrote on it "passed with amendments." If that had been correct, the bill couldn't have become a law, as the house had no time to pass on any senate amendments.

The bill went on the wrong pile and considerable mixup resulted. Finally everything was straightened out and the bill was saved by the quick flight to Jasper and Uvalde.

Significance of the episode is that important senate investigating committees will be able to make things immediately hot for witnesses who refuse to answer their questions, instead of being compelled to wait until after election—and until congress reconvenes in January—to be able to start prosecutions.

The committees to which this is most important are those investigating campaign funds expenditures, labor espionage and civil liberties violations, railroad financing and lobbying.

Lewis 'Quick on Draw'

If husky John L. Lewis, leader of the mine workers and other industrial unionists, doesn't look out, he will be getting a reputation as a wisecracker.

The question came up as to how William Green, whose membership in the A. F. of L. derives from membership in the miners' union, could be president of the A. F. of L. if the United Mine Workers were suspended.

It was pointed out that he could be elected to another union. Lewis suggested that Green might get into the musicians' union, because, he said, Bill was an accomplished fiddler. Then he added, after a pause, "—while Rome burns!"

"What's the charge?" he was asked after it was announced that the Committee for Industrial Organization unions would go on trial.

"Exceptional activity!" snapped Lewis.

The stolid Belgian who farmed La Haye Sainte on the plain by Waterloo, the Pennsylvanian who owned the famous Peach Orchard at Gettysburg, the Danish trawler who hoped to take a few fish from the Skagerrack on that May afternoon in 1916—to these people, as to this Spanish peasant, armies and battles are an unmitigated nuisance and the work of the world would go forward a lot faster if they were abolished.

And although it may be heresy to suggest it, these people are probably quite right.

Human civilization is a strange growth, and we do not entirely understand how it got started or how it does manage, in spite of obstacles, to keep progressing; but it is very clear that its base is the worker and not the warrior, the man who produces rather than the man who destroys.

Civilization, that is, does not rest on a base of armies and navies; it rests on the backs of the men who work with their hands, in field or in shop, and it will last just as long as they go on holding it up. They are a greater procession, in the long pages of history, than all the hordes of warriors that ever followed a drum.

They move without glory and without battle flags, poets do not immortalize them and the history books omit their names. But for unnumbered generations they have gone on, tempering the earth to man's habitation, making possible all the graces of living which lift man above the level of the beasts.

The far-called armies melt away, and the winds carry off the crash of their battles. The plain man at the bottom is eternal, and he has the world and all its hopes in his keeping. He makes possible Shakespeare and Beethoven, the Taj Mahal and Rheims cathedral, and all the glory and marvel of which human effort is capable.

And if, with all of this, he wearily asks the fighting men to get the heck out of the way so that he can go on with his job—is he asking too much?

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE SCRAP OF PAPER—It was a highly dramatic moment when Sir Edward Goschen, British ambassador in Berlin, faced the German Chancellor von Bethman Hollweg on the evening of August 4, 1914, with the British ultimatum based on Germany's invasion of Belgium in violation of the treaty of London of April 19, 1839. The excited German chancellor referred to this solemn treaty as "a scrap of paper" during that interview. A few hours later, Germany and Great Britain were in a state of war, which the violated "scrap of paper" made inevitable.

There is no eating place so glamorous, to my notion, as a Pullman diner, the sway, the roar, the excited faces, and tingle of rushing pell-mell through night halo it all with what the darkies call razzmataz.

An established traveler tells me that dining on an ocean-going Zep high above the clouds tops the Pullman diner, but until I have tried it I'll string along with my first love. Twice I have entrained for Philadelphia at dinner time just for a meal on the run.

In a diner somehow everybody takes on sudden importance. The gentleman whose temples are thatched gray may be a cement drummer from Peoria, but on the diner he is Big Business. Perhaps the sort who calls Schwab Charlie and Sloane Alf. And has a marble front on the avenue.

There are usually the newlyweds, too, worth a sly glance. They are trying to appear settled, and failing miserably. Acting cannot quench that mysterious and adorable glint the poets call "the love light." Also there is the smart boy. The flashily dressed fellow who thinks it new to call porters and waiters George.

He engages anyone near him in conversation and gets off a few hot ones—usually from Ballyhoo or a musical revue. He's a card at home and abroad and definitely American. As definite as the seventh inning stretch.

Many times I've wondered about the extraordinary humility of the conductor as he tip-toes, hat in hand, through the diner. In this short journey he expresses the servility of a peon, yet he is the autocrat of the train—save in the diner. He seems to say it will be O. K. to give me a quick shove out of here.

The flashes through this strange town and that, Main streets all lit up, gives one a twinge of pity for those left behind. Somehow the Pullman diner passenger has the idea that at the moment he is riding top gallant on the crest of the world.

I know a great salesman who says he has put across some of his biggest deals on diners. I can well understand it. People feel expansive, sympathetic and are likely to lose a just balance. It's a good place to sell Brooklyn bridge.

Any person in a funk, I believe, can perk out of it by boarding a train for a Pullman diner meal. Or maybe the illusion is not so great to others as it is to country boys.

New York took to its new Promenade cafe, the al fresco sunken plaza restaurant at Rockefeller Center, with enthusiasm. It serves a reasonably priced luncheon and dinner and there is a platform for dancing girls as well as an orchestra for dinner-dancing. Sidewalk passersby line up at the edges and look down on the patrons, which is something New York likes very much i. e.—to be looked at. The new venture is said to have been paying from the second night. The first night it was caught in a terrific downpour, generally an omen of ill luck for outdoor restaurants.

The New Yorker reports that a milkman in Bronxville is a graduate of Hamilton and the University of Vienna. And in a Third avenue movie ticket cage there is an honor graduate of Vassar. This could be multiplied a thousand times around the city. Most of them feel that they are marking time for the march back—and doubtless they are. But the prophets of gloom see it otherwise.

I plucked this from a letter from Miss Irma Fraser, pretty young school marm of Los Angeles, to a friend: "Very likely, every child at some time or other has had a problem that he couldn't solve about which he was afraid to ask for fear of being ridiculed. Such was my case. My recollection is that among the first sentences I learned were 'A pint's a pound the world around,' and 'No matter what a many may say, twenty-four hours make a day.' Then there came to my ears the statement that the days were getting longer. How could they, I thought, when there are only 24 hours in a day."

Joe Cawthorne, 63 years on the stage, is vacationing in Europe with his wife, Queenie Vassar, to whom he has been married 35 years. Cawthorne, when the stage buckled, made a place for himself in Hollywood, and is one of the most regularly employed of the character actors. He's a grand character.

A rest cure in Massachusetts specializing in insomnia allows the patient to have nothing in the room but a bed, chair and dresser. The switch light is across the room from the bed and there is no reading matter of any description about. People are supposed to go into the room to sleep and nothing else and most of them after a few nights begin hitting it off, I am told. But think of going to sleep without a little reading!

I have a prankish friend who leaves this about on the desks of busy friends: Diodorous Cronus, an ancient Sophist, nearly drove the philosophers of his day crazy in an effort to solve this: "The impossible cannot result from the impossible. A past event cannot become other than it is; but if an event at a given moment had been possible, from the possible would result something impossible: therefor the original event was impossible."

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

SEVEN years before the American Revolution, young Count Casimir Pulaski joined an uprising to liberate Poland from Russian influence. In 1771, at the age of 23, he was outlawed for his part in a plot to abduct King Stanislas from Warsaw. His estates were confiscated and he escaped to France. There he met Benjamin Franklin, from whom he learned of America's revolt.

Pulaski sailed for America in 1777, presented his credentials to General Washington and immediately participated in a second war for liberty. He fought in the battles of Germantown and Brandywine, and then was sent south to aid in the siege of Savannah. There he was wounded, and died Oct. 11, 1779.

A tall marble shaft, topped by a Statue of Liberty, stands in Savannah in his honor. And, in 1931, a two-cent stamp was issued in commemoration of his death. The portrait on the stamp is a copy of an etching by H. B. Hall, printed in Jones' "History of Georgia," and is draped by the U. S. and Polish flags.

Your Baby's Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

The child who is different from other children requires special attention and training to make the most of what he has, and to avoid his being pushed into the category of the defective or the abnormal.

The first step, obviously, is to determine the nature of his difference. The expert will stress the qualities that are important for achievement, and minimize those that are likely to lead to failure.

In the past, all children were put into common schools and no effort was made to select those with marked aptitudes, or with physical defects, for special training. Children are likely to tease and be cruel to those who are different, thus giving them a feeling of inferiority, and shoving them gradually beyond the border of social adjustment.

Sometimes the difficulties in the home are even worse than those in if it has any school. The child who is different will not seem to fit into the life of the family. A father may be domineering and cruel; the mother overaffectionate and weak.

Anxious as they are to be of the utmost service to the child, the parents nevertheless may fail in the very phases in which they are most anxious to be helpful.

Too much coddling produces what the boys call a "sissy." If the child learns that it can dominate its parents, it becomes spoiled and tyrannical.

One of the finest developments of recent years has been the special schools for youngsters who are different. In these schools, they are given opportunity to develop the traits that are important. If the children happen to be physically defective, special means are provided to help them overcome their defects.

You must not look upon a special school merely as a place in which to put children who are not able to keep up with others. We have learned that we owe equal duties to those with special talents and extraordinary intellect, who are able to proceed faster than other children, or who may have within themselves the seeds of genius.

A child may find it simply impossible to learn how to spell correctly, and yet to be able to sketch admirably.

The child that is different should have, first of all, expert study as to the nature of its difference, and then special care and teaching to permit it to make the most of its physical and mental qualities, and its genius, if it has any.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

WASHINGTON.—The amusing and exciting aspects of the Townsend movement's convention in Cleveland still gave little indication as to the size of the vote the Lemke ticket will roll up this year.

Among politicians, hardly anyone has been heard of who is at the moment guessing a total of more than 1,500,000. Many estimates run below that.

Despite the fact that Dr. Townsend himself and the Rev. Gerald Smith have joined Father Coughlin in supporting Lemke, there is no particular boom in the North Dakota congressman's stock.

One reason is that it appears to be manifestly impossible to "deliver" the Townsendites to any presidential candidate this year. Townsend's hold on his followers is none too firm. While the impressively large crowd of delegates cheered Gomer Smith's pro-Roosevelt speech almost as hysterically as they did Coughlin's vicious attack on the president, it began to appear that the doctor's dream of controlling millions of votes might be slightly cockeyed.

A further tip-off is that the three states of the Pacific coast, birthplace and chief stronghold of the Townsend movement, are generally considered certain to go for Roosevelt this year by big majorities.

Nevertheless, the Union party will be backed by the most spectacular group of rabble-rousers gathered into a political party in our time—lacking only the late Huey Long to give it vital leadership—and predictions now are likely to fall wide of the mark, either way.

The ticket will get much or most of what cynical politicians call the "nut vote" and nobody really knows how big that vote is.

Rush Flight Explained

You may have noticed an interesting story about the night flight of an army transport plane to Jasper, Ala., to get a bill passed in the closing days of congress to Speaker William Bankhead for signature.

Then the plane took off to Uvalde, Tex., where Vice President Garner also signed the measure. The bill was supposed to be a rather inconsequential one, overlooked in the last-minute rush on Capitol Hill.

The inside story is this: In the closing days the administration pushed through a bill providing that congressional committees might take recalcitrant witnesses to court on contempt charges in the summer and fall as well as when congress was in session.

The bill passed house and senate without amendment. But someone on the senate side wrote on it "passed with amendments." If that had been correct, the bill couldn't have become a law, as the house had no time to pass on any senate amendments.

The bill went on the wrong pile and considerable mixup resulted. Finally everything was straightened out and the bill was saved by the quick flight to Jasper and Uvalde.

Significance of the episode is that important senate investigating committees will be able to make things immediately hot for witnesses who refuse to answer their questions, instead of being compelled to wait until after election—and until congress reconvenes in January—to be able to start prosecutions.

The committees to which this is most important are those investigating campaign funds expenditures, labor espionage and civil liberties violations, railroad financing and lobbying.

Lewis 'Quick on Draw'

If husky John L. Lewis, leader of the mine workers and other industrial unionists, doesn't look out, he will be getting a reputation as a wisecracker.

The question came up as to how William Green, whose membership in the A. F. of L. derives from membership in the miners' union, could be president of the A. F. of L. if the United Mine Workers were suspended.

It was pointed out that he could be elected to another union. Lewis suggested that Green might get into the musicians' union, because, he said, Bill was an accomplished fiddler. Then he added, after a pause, "—while Rome burns!"

"What's the charge?" he was asked after it was announced that the Committee for Industrial Organization unions would go on trial.

"Exceptional activity!" snapped Lewis.

ficial. Wightman's father, Joseph, is steward at the Robbins Reef Yacht club.

MacKnight found the body when he returned from work.

The pair then rode to Somerville, the confession continued, but turned around and drove to Jersey City, where they were arrested.

Before leaving Bayonne, the statement said, the couple went to the home of Miss Doris French, 18, a friend of the girl. Gladys told Miss French her mother was dead, and Miss French and her parents advised the couple to summon a physician.

Miss French told police that Gladys had told her Mrs. MacKnight was ill, not dead.

Once during the early morning questioning, O'Neill said, the girl smiled and said:

"You can have a physician examine my mind if you want to. I am sane."

The girl is an attractive blonde of medium height. She is mannish and muscular in her actions. Wightman is tall, sandy-haired, and well built.

Shortly before the arraignment the Rev. George Becker, pastor of the First Reformed church, visited the girl in the ante room. Later another pastor visited Wightman.

Both were said by police to be active churchgoers, with the girl's family the better known of the two. Mrs. MacKnight, police said, was active in the literary committee of the Bayonne Women's club.

have cost thousands of lives, both sides were desperate, bidding for a turn of fortune which would overthrow the Leftist government or crush the Fascist drive for military and political control of the nation.

(Government troops at Bilbao, refugees arriving in Saint Jean de Luz, France, said, were prepared to destroy part of the city with dynamite in the event of a rebel victory).

The struggle for control was as bitter by sea as it was by land. Loyal airplanes swept the decks of the rebel cruiser Almirantee Cervera of Gijon with gunfire while rebel barracks in the same town gave blow for blow with loyal columns besieging them.

From Barcelona and from a point east of Zaragoza loyalist troops converged on the rebels in the northern theater of war where the most bitter fighting appeared to be centering.

At Oviedo, also in the north, thousands of miners carrying the emblem of the Leftist government stormed at the gates of the rebel-held city.

Airplanes and surface ships hammered incessantly at more than half a dozen other major objectives—Huelva, Huesca, Calatuys, Cordoba, Gijon and Palma, Mallorca island.

(With equal determination, General Franco was reported from Tetuan Spanish Morocco, to be hurtling fresh troops toward the Spanish peninsula in seaplanes recently brought from abroad.)

Rebel troops in Burgos, Spain, fresh from the Guadarrama mountain battles, told of striding over the bodies of fallen communist Carmens—women who had taken up arms with the men for the Madrid government.

Madrid was anxious. It reinforced every strategic point in the city. Streams of Fascists were reported flowing into rebel camps north of the Guadarrama to implement a new assault on the mountain gateways to Madrid.

Tales of terroristic practices incident to the revolution were legion.

(Reports from Burgos, Spain, said the rebels had shot several Communist leaders and announced all civilians found armed would be summarily executed.)

the income of farmers whose crops were destroyed and, by lifting prices, has given it to those producers whose crops were successful.

The advance in farm prices since the drouth became a major market influence about six weeks ago has been sensational. From June 15 to July 15, the bureau of agricultural economics said farm prices showed the greatest increase for any 30 day period since August, 1934. At mid-July, when prices were lower than they are now, the general level of values, the bureau said, was the best since September, 1930.

The department of agriculture placed cash income of farmers for the first six months at $3,291,000,000 compared with $2,956,000,000 the corresponding period in 1935 and estimated the drouth probably would raise the price of the farmers' output much higher in the last half of the year. Included in farmers' income this year were $171,000,000 in benefit payments compared with $286,000,000 in similar payments the first half of 1935.

A compilation by the National Industrial Conference board, based on department of commerce figures, showed 1935 gross income of agriculture was the best since 1930, totaling $8,110,000,000, or 31 per cent below the 1925-29 average.

LENIENCY FOR BOY SUGGESTED

GRANTS PASS, Ore., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A spokesman for the family of Shirley Temple, child movie star, suggested leniency today for Sterling W. Powell, Nebraska farm youth who pleaded guilty to sending a $25,000 extortion note threatening her.

"Such things are a common occurrence along with the fan mail," said W. M. Bishop, secretary to the little actress' father.

"Little should be done to the boy."

Bishop said Shirley read an account of the threat in a newspaper last night but was more interested in her vacation than in the extortion note.

CITY TO OBTAIN FAULT DETECTOR

ness establishments, and bring about the proper correction.

"At this particular time there are other public matters which I think are of much more vital importance to the people of Monroe. For instance, our system of sanitary sewers. I sincerely hope that you will show the same interest in the more important public matters that you have in this one.

"You may rest assured that any interference with radio reception which might be caused by city equipment will be reduced to a minimum as soon as possible. I hope that you, yourself, will find some way to reduce the amount of interference caused by privately owned equipment, which competent electricians advise me to be the preponderant cause."

Commissioner Rodriguez' letter indicates that he is ready to go the limit in clearing up poor reception where the fault lies with the city. As he points out, however, his men cannot go into private homes and force householders to discard faulty electrical appliances, which cause disturbances.

It seems to the radio editor that the newly organized association of electrical appliance dealers could effectively wage a campaign to eliminate as far as possible that kind of interference. The association, which includes practically all radio dealers of the city, could use the fault detector to trace down interference caused by faulty appliances, and undoubtedly would find the majority of those who are using these appliances willing to cooperate by repairing or discarding the noise makers. Other privately owned equipment which is causing interference could be located, and the owners requested to make such repairs as would eliminate the objectionable "static."

Commissioner Rodriguez' letter means that radio owners are going to get a measure of relief from the noise that has invaded their receiving sets. He has promised to make a detailed report of his findings after his men have made a canvass of the city in their quest for faulty power equipment. The News-Star—World will publish this report.

Until then, the radio campaign is closed.

"Jumbo," the astonishing spectacle which created a furore in New York during its presentation, is also one of the outstanding attractions, not to speak of "Sally Rand's Nude Ranch," the "Pioneer Palace," and other big productions, which have all been arranged by Billy Rose, the master showman.

"The whole scene is redolent of the old frontier days," Mr. Perhamus said, "with modern highlights that make it a more vivid spectacle than anything which has ever been presented for the entertainment of the American public."

Monroe visitors who go to the Frontier centennial next Sunday and Monday should register at the Texas hotel, which will be the headquarters for "Monroe days," Mr. Perhamus said.

with its tail between its legs, labelled "Austria."

And that is the European situation, as this is written.

ENGLAND'S DEALINGS with easily managed, Anglomaniac statesmen in the United States may have caused her to forget that continental Europe possesses real statesmen, able to think ahead.

However, in the long run, England is at least the equal of any country on earth in statesmanship, and if airplanes, submarines and dictators make it impossible for her to keep ALL of the "far-flung" property that she has gathered in, old Albion will hold her choicest possessions.

She is building an air-fleet planned to give her control of the new ocean, the air, and she has at least one great dominion, Canada, on which she can count, permanently for food supplies, and loyalty.

ENGLAND COULD have avoided humiliation, loss of trade and her panicky condition of today had her statesmen read intelligently the warnings put before her.

For instance, November last in "the National Review," published in Wellington street, London, some intelligent Englishman wrote this:

"During the week of October 14, the most serious tension developed between Great Britain, France and Italy, France being all the time in the position of a reasonable man between two who have lost their tempers.

"It was on Wednesday, October 16, that Mr. Eden proposed at Geneva the boycott of Italy's exports. On this, Italian public opinion had an access of fury, the most unlikely people rallying to Mussolini as the result of the British attack. Italy boiled and the French government froze, while French newspapers accused England of endeavoring to force war. * * *

"Pacifists tell us that the covenant obliges us to take action against Italy because she has invaded a fellow member of the league, but the covenant nowhere indicates that any country is to coerce, bribe and blackmail other league members into action they would otherwise not take.

"'Great Britain owns the league nowadays,' was the rather acid comment of an assembly delegate. It is only because such people as believe that we have deep pockets that they continue to vote as we desire. In the meantime, and as each day passes, the rift between the nations that could have held Europe together, in face of the only danger confronting it—the German danger—gets bigger. No wonder German agents have been lavish during the last 15 years in support of British pacifists.

"These persons, all unconsciously, no doubt, have done Germany's work. Germany is lying low, but she is not inactive. Never have her agents worked harder, nor, may we add, more successfully. All the same, she alone could never have resurrected the buried triple alliance. It took the two British foreign secretaries to do that."

The governor today announced the appointment of B. W. Cason, secretary of the state senate, as state labor commissioner. He was named under a new law which extends the activities of that department.

E. L. Engerran, of Bogalusa, former commissioner of labor, will become secretary and member of the Louisiana casualty and surety rating commission.

In addition T. H. Harris, state superintendent of education, announced the appointment of P. C. Rogers, Jr., principal of the Homer High school, as executive secretary of the teacher retirement board of Louisiana.

Under a law passed at the last regular session of the legislature teachers are voluntarily retired at the age of 60 and retirement is made compulsory at 70 years. The board will administer this act.

The other members of the board are: E. W. Jones, of Caddo parish; J. D. LaFleur, Ville Platte, and Lionel J. Bourgeois, of New Orleans.

Ex-officio members are Mr. Harris, A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer; E. A. Conway, secretary of state, and G. O. Houston, secretary of the Louisiana Teachers association.

Mr. Houston is chairman of the board.

WOMEN SEEKING SEWER SYSTEM

PWA funds, which we understand are now available for sewerage.

"As Monroe citizens who are without this public necessity we make this appeal in behalf of our own children and families, and of all other Monroe citizens whose health we know is daily endangered by the overflowing cesspools in our neighborhood and in all sections that must depend upon this antiquated method of sewerage disposal.

"As you know there is now an epidemic of infantile paralysis in our country, many cases being in our adjoining state of Mississippi. When this disease invaded our town several years ago it was in the cesspool district.

"Can we afford to have even one child made a helpless cripple, or one life lost, because we did not avail ourselves of the protection which our federal government is offering us in PWA funds, for which purpose sewerage is first mentioned?"

The movement to obtain sewerage service for those sections of the city that were annexed to Monroe about eight years ago has been under way for some time, it was stated by those who are instrumental in the formation of the women's civic league. Representatives who called at the city hall Saturday morning and laid the petition in the hands of the commissioners stated they had received a sympathetic hearing. Mayor Bernstein announced that the problem had been engaging attention of the city for the last two years, and that the list of projects submitted to the federal government under the old PWA program had included a sewerage system for those sections of the city now unprovided with a public sanitary service. The city attorney, the mayor said, is studying the law to determine what feasible measures can be invoked to provide the necessary finances for the project.

It was pointed out in the conference at the city hall Saturday morning that no PWA funds are at present available for a project of the kind contemplated. Such funds can only be available under the government plan of appropriating 40 per cent of the cost in the event that the city, by bond issue or otherwise, is prepared to put up the other 60 per cent. The city engineer is now engaged in working out plans covering the project, to determine the estimated cost, it was stated by city officials.

"The time has come that something should be done to give the residents of the northeastern section of the city, and other sections equally without a sanitary sewerage system, the relief they need," Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, one of the leaders in the movement, said Saturday. "We realize that the financial side of the problem must be worked out, and it cannot be done in a hurry. Our purpose is to let the public know the dire necessity of doing something and having some definite plans in motion without any further delay. The mayor and commissioners told us they are anxious to do something, and have promised to call a meeting of the interested property holders at an early date to discuss the problem. That will probably be done as soon as the requirements of the law can be determined. In the meantime our organization is going forward to enlist the cooperation of every section of the city, where no sanitary sewerage system exists, as well as the public at large in the important project for the protection of the health of the community."

One of the first requirements, it was pointed out by city officials, would be the calling of an election to vote a sewerage district bond issue, at which all property holders directly affected would be entitled to vote. It was stated, however, that under the limitations of the city's bonding power, such an election would not provide sufficient funds to build the necessary sewerage system, and that in order to increase the bond limit of the city a constitutional amendment would be required. Such an amendment could be voted at the November general election, provided the necessary act is passed by a special session of the legislature. Plans to ask for a special legislative session are included in the program of the women's civic committee, it was stated by Mrs. Kilpatrick.

artillery at Tarbes, he became interested in automobiles.

After several years of experimentation, he invented the automobile searchlight in 1896. Four years later the sight of the famous flying machine built by Ader and exhibited in Paris, turned his attention toward the then infantile science of aviation.

Year in and year out, Bleriot studied the problem of making a practicable airplane. He conducted dozens of experiments at Issy-les Moulineaux and lost most of the fortune he had made with his automobile searchlight. In 1906, aided by two friends, he founded the first airplane factory in France.

Finally, on September 17, 1907, his wildest dreams came true. He flew 186 meters in a monoplane built by his own hands.

After that progress was rapid. Other young aviators and airplane constructors entered the field, but Bleriot, by a daring flight June 29, 1908, managed to win the "Beginners' Prize," of 200 francs (then about $40).

official. Wightman's father, Joseph, is steward at the Robbins Reef Yacht club.

Mrs. MacKnight found the body when she returned from work.

The pair then rode to Somerville, where a confession continued, but turned around and drove to Jersey City, where they were arrested.

Before leaving Bayonne, the statement said, the couple went to the home of Miss Doris French, 18, a friend of the girl. Gladys told Miss French her mother was dead, and Miss French and her parents advised the couple to summon a physician.

Miss French told police that Gladys had told her Mrs. MacKnight was ill, not dead.

Once during the early morning questioning, O'Neill said, the girl smiled and said:

"You can have a physician examine my mind if you want to. I am sane."

The girl is an attractive blonde of medium height. She is mannish and muscular in her actions. Wightman is tall, sandy-beired, and well built.

Shortly before the arraignment the Rev. George Becker, pastor of the First Reformed church, visited the girl in the ante room. Later another pastor visited Wightman.

Both were said by police to be active churchgoers, with the girl's family the better known of the two. Mrs. MacKnight, police said, was active in the literary committee of the Bayonne Women's club.

have cost thousands of lives, both sides were desperate, bidding for a turn of fortune which would overthrow the Leftist government or crush the Fascist drive for military and political control of the nation.

(Government troops at Bilbao, refugees arriving in Saint Jean de Luz, France, said, were prepared to destroy part of the city with dynamite in the event of a rebel victory).

The struggle for control was as bitter by sea as it was by land. Loyal airplanes swept the decks of the rebel cruiser Almirantee Cervera of Gijon with gunfire while rebel barracks in the same town gave blow for blow with loyal columns besieging them.

From Barcelona and from a point east of Zaragoza loyalist troops converged on the rebels in the northern theater of war where the most bitter fighting appeared to be centering.

At Oviedo, also in the north, thousands of miners carrying the emblem of the Leftist government stormed at the gates of the rebel-held city.

Airplanes and surface ships hammered incessantly at more than half a dozen other major objectives—Huelva, Huesca, Calatuys, Cordoba, Gijon and Palma, Mallorca island.

(With equal determination, General Franco was reported from Tetuan Spanish Morocco, to be hurtling fresh troops toward the Spanish peninsula in seaplanes recently brought from abroad.)

Rebel troops in Burgos, Spain, fresh from the Guadarrama mountain battles, told of striding over the bodies of fallen communist Carmens—women who had taken up arms with the men for the Madrid government.

Madrid was anxious. It reinforced every strategic point in the city. Streams of Fascists were reported flowing into rebel camps north of the Guadarrama to implement a new assault on the mountain gateways to Madrid.

Tales of terroristic practices incident to the revolution were legion.

(Reports from Burgos, Spain, said the rebels had shot several Communist leaders and announced all civilians found armed would be summarily executed.)

the income of farmers whose crops were destroyed and, by lifting prices, has given it to those producers whose crops were successful.

The advance in farm prices since the drouth became a major market influence about six weeks ago has been sensational. From June 15 to July 15, the bureau of agricultural economics said farm prices showed the greatest increase for any 30 day period since August, 1934. At mid-July, when prices were lower than they are now, the general level of values, the bureau said, was the best since September, 1930.

The department of agriculture placed cash income of farmers for the first six months at $3,291,000,000 compared with $2,956,000,000 the corresponding period in 1935 and estimated the drouth probably would raise the price of the farmers' output much higher in the last half of the year. Included in farmers' income this year were $171,000,000 in benefit payments compared with $286,000,000 in similar payments the first half of 1935.

A compilation by the National Industrial Conference board, based on department of commerce figures, showed 1935 gross income of agriculture was the best since 1930, totaling $8,110,000,000, or 31 per cent below the 1925-29 average.

until May 18, three days after the deadline. Temple called the letter "a silly action by some youngster."

Powell's arrest yesterday was announced by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, and said the youth was traced through scientific paper tests of the stationery used.

Bechtel said Powell told him he got the idea for the note after seeing a motion picture with a kidnaping plot.

The Powell family is respected highly here, the sheriff said, and is in comfortable circumstances.

LENIENCY FOR BOY SUGGESTED

GRANTS PASS, Ore., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A spokesman for the family of Shirley Temple, child movie star, suggested leniency today for Sterling W. Powell, Nebraska farm youth who pleaded guilty to sending a $25,000 extortion note threatening her.

"Such things are a common occurrence along with the fan mail," said W. M. Bishop, secretary to the little actress' father.

"Little should be done to the boy."

Bishop said Shirley read an account of the threat in a newspaper last night but was more interested in her vacation than in the extortion note.

ness establishments, and bring about the proper correction.

"At this particular time there are other public matters which I think are of much more vital importance to the people of Monroe. For instance, our system of sanitary sewers. I sincerely hope that you will show the same interest in the more important public matters that you have in this one.

"You may rest assured that any interference with radio reception which might be caused by city equipment will be reduced to a minimum as soon as possible. I hope that you, yourself, will find some way to reduce the amount of interference caused by privately owned equipment, which competent electricians advise me to be the preponderant cause."

Commissioner Rodriguez' letter indicates that he is ready to go the limit in clearing up poor reception where the fault lies with the city. As he points out, however, his men cannot go into private homes and force householders to discard faulty electrical appliances, which cause disturbances.

It seems to the radio editor that the newly organized association of electrical appliance dealers could effectively wage a campaign to eliminate as far as possible that kind of interference. The association, which includes practically all radio dealers of the city, could use the fault detector to trace down interference caused by faulty appliances, and undoubtedly would find the majority of those who are using these appliances willing to cooperate by repairing or discarding the noise makers. Other privately owned equipment which is causing interference could be located, and the owners requested to make such repairs as would eliminate the objectionable "static."

Commissioner Rodriguez' letter means that radio owners are going to get a measure of relief from the noise that has invaded their receiving sets. He has promised to make a detailed report of his findings after his men have made a canvass of the city in their quest for faulty power equipment. The News-Star—World will publish this report.

Until then, the radio campaign is closed.

volving stage, and include performances by such noted stars as Paul Whiteman, Ann Pennington, Everett Marshall, and Sally Rand. The lighting effects and the entire presentation, said Mr. Perhamus, are sumptuous and amazingly beautiful. "The Last Frontier," gives a realistic picture of the west in the old "roaring days," with reproductions of scenes that were typical of that glamorous period. "Jumbo," the astonishing spectacle which created a furore in New York during its presentation, is also one of the outstanding attractions, not to speak of "Sally Rand's Nude Ranch," the "Pioneer Palace," and other big productions, which have all been arranged by Billy Rose, the master showman.

"The whole scene is redolent of the old frontier days," Mr. Perhamus said, "with modern highlights that make it a more vivid spectacle than anything which has ever been presented for the entertainment of the American public."

Monroe visitors who go to the Frontier centennial next Sunday and Monday should register at the Texas hotel, which will be the headquarters for "Monroe days," Mr. Perhamus said.

British homes now are serving pink grapefruit, imported from Trinidad Tobago, British West Indies.

with its tail between its legs, labelled "Austria."

And that is the European situation, as this is written.

ENGLAND'S DEALINGS with easily managed, Anglomaniac statesmen in the United States may have caused her to forget that continental Europe possesses real statesmen, able to think ahead.

However, in the long run, England is at least the equal of any country on earth in statesmanship, and if airplanes, submarines and dictators make it impossible for her to keep ALL of the "far-flung" property that she has gathered in, old Albion will hold her choicest possessions.

She is building an air-fleet planned to give her control of the new ocean, the air, and she has at least one great dominion, Canada, on which she can count, permanently for food supplies, and loyalty.

ENGLAND COULD have avoided humiliation, loss of trade and her panicky condition of today had her statesmen read intelligently the warnings put before her.

For instance, November last in "the National Review," published in Wellington street, London, some intelligent Englishman wrote this:

"During the week of October 14, the most serious tension developed between Great Britain, France and Italy, France being all the time in the position of a reasonable man between two who have lost their tempers.

"It was on Wednesday, October 16, that Mr. Eden proposed at Geneva the boycott of Italy's exports. On this, Italian public opinion had an access of fury, the most unlikely people rallying to Mussolini as the result of the British attack. Italy boiled and the French government froze, while French newspapers accused England of endeavoring to force war. * * *

"Pacifists tell us that the covenant obliges us to take action against Italy because she has invaded a fellow member of the league, but the covenant nowhere indicates that any country is to coerce, bribe and blackmail other league members into action they would otherwise not take.

"'Great Britain owns the league nowadays,' was the rather acid comment of an assembly delegate. It is only because such people as believe that we have deep pockets that they continue to vote as we desire. In the meantime, and as each day passes, the rift between the nations that could have held Europe together, in face of the only danger confronting it—the German danger—gets bigger. No wonder German agents have been lavish during the last 15 years in support of British pacifists.

"These persons, all unconsciously, no doubt, have done Germany's work. Germany is lying low, but she is not inactive. Never have her agents worked harder, nor, may we add, more successfully. All the same, she alone could never have resurrected the buried triple alliance. It took the two British foreign secretaries to do that."

charge of the New Orleans office. He will sit with the board of pardons and will have charge of criminal appeals to the state supreme court.

The governor today announced the appointment of B. W. Cason, secretary of the state senate, as state labor commissioner. He was named under a new law which extends the activities of that department.

E. L. Engerran, of Bogalusa, former commissioner of labor, will become secretary and member of the Louisiana casualty and surety rating commission.

In addition T. H. Harris, state superintendent of education, announced the appointment of P. C. Rogers, Jr., principal of the Homer High school, as executive secretary of the teacher retirement board of Louisiana.

Under a law passed at the last regular session of the legislature teachers are voluntarily retired at the age of 60 and retirement is made compulsory at 70 years. The board will administer this act.

The other members of the board are: E. W. Jones, of Caddo parish; J. D. LaFleur, Ville Platte, and Lionel J. Bourgeois, of New Orleans.

Ex-officio members are Mr. Harris, A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer; E. A. Conway, secretary of state, and G. O. Houston, secretary of the Louisiana Teachers association.

Mr. Houston is chairman of the board.

SWIMMING CLASSES FOR ADULTS SCHEDULED HERE

A series of swimming classes for adults who cannot swim will be opened at the municipal natatorium Monday afternoon by the Ouachita parish Red Cross chapter. The classes will be held each afternoon of the week, beginning at 5 p. m. and lasting for an hour. Parker McComb, in charge of the chapter's life saving and swimming instruction, will be in charge of the classes.

SISSON VISITS HERE

Edward Sisson, former resident of Monroe who is now living at Council Bluffs, Ia., and his wife and small daughter arrived here last night on a visit to Mr. Sisson's mother, Mrs. Emma Sisson, 509 Georgia street. The visit here is the first that Mr. Sisson has made to Monroe in five years. He is employed at Council Bluffs by a railroad company.

WOMEN SEEKING SEWER SYSTEM

PWA funds, which we understand are now available for sewerage.

"As Monroe citizens who are without this public necessity we make this appeal in behalf of our own children and families, and of all other Monroe citizens whose health we know is daily endangered by the overflowing cesspools in our neighborhood and in all sections that must depend upon this antiquated method of sewerage disposal.

"As you know there is now an epidemic of infantile paralysis in our country, many cases being in our adjoining state of Mississippi. When this disease invaded our town several years ago it was in the cesspool district.

"Can we afford to have even one child made a helpless cripple, or one life lost, because we did not avail ourselves of the protection which our federal government is offering us in PWA funds, for which purpose sewerage is first mentioned?"

The movement to obtain sewerage service for those sections of the city that were annexed to Monroe about eight years ago has been under way for some time, it was stated by those who are instrumental in the formation of the women's civic league. Representatives who called at the city hall Saturday morning and laid the petition in the hands of the commissioners stated they had received a sympathetic hearing. Mayor Bernstein announced that the problem had been engaging attention of the city for the last two years, and that the list of projects submitted to the federal government under the old PWA program had included a sewerage system for those sections of the city now unprovided with a public sanitary service. The city attorney, the mayor said, is studying the law to determine what feasible measures can be invoked to provide the necessary finances for the project.

It was pointed out in the conference at the city hall Saturday morning that no PWA funds are at present available for a project of the kind contemplated. Such funds can only be available under the government plan of appropriating 40 per cent of the cost in the event that the city, by bond issue or otherwise, is prepared to put up the other 60 per cent. The city engineer is now engaged in working out plans covering the project, to determine the estimated cost, it was stated by city officials.

"The time has come that something should be done to give the residents of the northeastern section of the city, and other sections equally without a sanitary sewerage system, the relief they need," Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick, one of the leaders in the movement, said Saturday. "We realize that the financial side of the problem must be worked out, and it cannot be done in a hurry. Our purpose is to let the public know the dire necessity of doing something and having some definite plans in motion without any further delay. The mayor and commissioners told us they are anxious to do something, and have promised to call a meeting of the interested property holders at an early date to discuss the problem. That will probably be done as soon as the requirements of the law can be determined. In the meantime our organization is going forward to enlist the cooperation of every section of the city, where no sanitary sewerage system exists, as well as the public at large in the important project for the protection of the health of the community."

One of the first requirements, it was pointed out by city officials, would be the calling of an election to vote a sewerage district bond issue, at which all property holders directly affected would be entitled to vote. It was stated, however, that under the limitations of the city's bonding power, such an election would not provide sufficient funds to build the necessary sewerage system, and that in order to increase the bond limit of the city a constitutional amendment would be required. Such an amendment could be voted at the November general election, provided the necessary act is passed by a special session of the legislature. Plans to ask for a special legislative session are included in the program of the women's civic committee, it was stated by Mrs. Kilpatrick.

A SPADE'S A SPADE

Why Mince Words

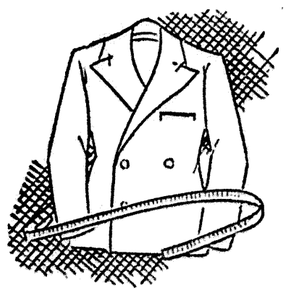

You have no doubt wondered just why the hundreds of vacancies, advertised in the numerous advertisements for Peddlers and Direct Selling Agents, have not been filled. The same attractive offers appear weekly and monthly, year in and year out; the same misleading promises of making "lots of money" without any apparent effort. It seems, that with the need for extra dollars so great, that all these opportunities would have been "gobbled up" long ago. The trick about these misleading advertisements is this; many men and women are attracted and do take up peddling; they work hard and after days of effort do make a sale or two; finally they give it up after their experience taught them it was unprofitable. BUT the advertising pays the advertiser because the combined efforts of the many men and women produce a volume of sales.

PEDDLING IS UNPROFITABLE

Be guided by common sense and do not build dreams of making "lots of money" when reading misleading advertisements for peddlers and agents. These dreams, like bubbles, burst in the air. Stick to your own line of work, you cannot succeed holding down too many jobs.

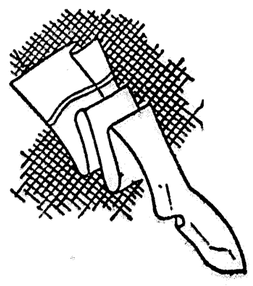

BUYING FROM PEDDLERS IS UNSATISFACTORY

Made-To-Your-Measure Suits

". . . For men 'WITHOUT ANY EXPERIENCE', make up to $10.00 in a DAY. Big supply of samples and all material furnished."

These Made-to-Your-Measure Suits can be purchased from peddlers at all prices. Most of these suits are not tailored to your measure but are picked from stock nearest your size and nearest to the pattern ordered by you. It takes years to learn the tailoring business but you are allowing a peddler WITHOUT ANY EXPERIENCE to take your measure for a tailored suit. You are paying a cash deposit to that peddler and agree to pay the balance when the suit reaches you C.O.D. You are taking a chance that the suit fits, that it is what you ordered and that it will wear satisfactorily; and you are paying money in advance to take exactly that risk.

Hosiery

"...For ladies to make $21.00 in a week selling Hosiery on a TRADE IN PLAN. Take up the old and worn out hosiery and allow a discount on the purchase of new."

It does not take long to figure this one out. This price of the new hose is figured to allow you a discount for your worn out hose. What value could your worn out hose have that you would be allowed this discount? Your merchant sells you hosiery of the same and better quality for less money—and you get the identical hose you select and do not have to wait for them to be sent to you C.O.D.

Cosmetics, Lotions and Extracts

"Here is an advertisement for peddlers, that says all you have to do is to mix FREE WATER WITH FLUID BOUGHT FROM THEM and make your own COSMETICS, LOTIONS, MEDICINES and EXTRACTS. MAKE 1500% PROFIT."

Would you care to use cosmetics and lotions or to consume such medicine and extracts made by some peddler in this way? Yet you take this chance when you purchase from the peddler. How long would your druggist last were he to sell this type of merchandise?

Coffee, Tea, Food Products

"...IF YOU NEED MONEY, up to $60.00 in a week and a new Ford free. Sell Coffee, Tea and other package goods of consumable products. MAKE MONEY FAST."

You are familiar with the old "deals"; you buy something and you are given something. Both of the articles are figured in the price you paid for one of them. The Important Thing: are you sure that you are getting FRESH tea, coffee and other food products? Do you know how long the peddler has had these products or how old they were before the peddler bought them? BE SAFE, buy your food products from your grocer who sells you only fresh foods. Remember that food products go into your stomach.

EVERYTHING YOU EAT, WEAR AND USE

Do not buy from peddlers and you are spared the uncertainty of getting the most out of and for your money.

YOUR CHIEF OF POLICE WARNS

Make a careful investigation, before sending your money, when answering advertisements which require an advance investment.

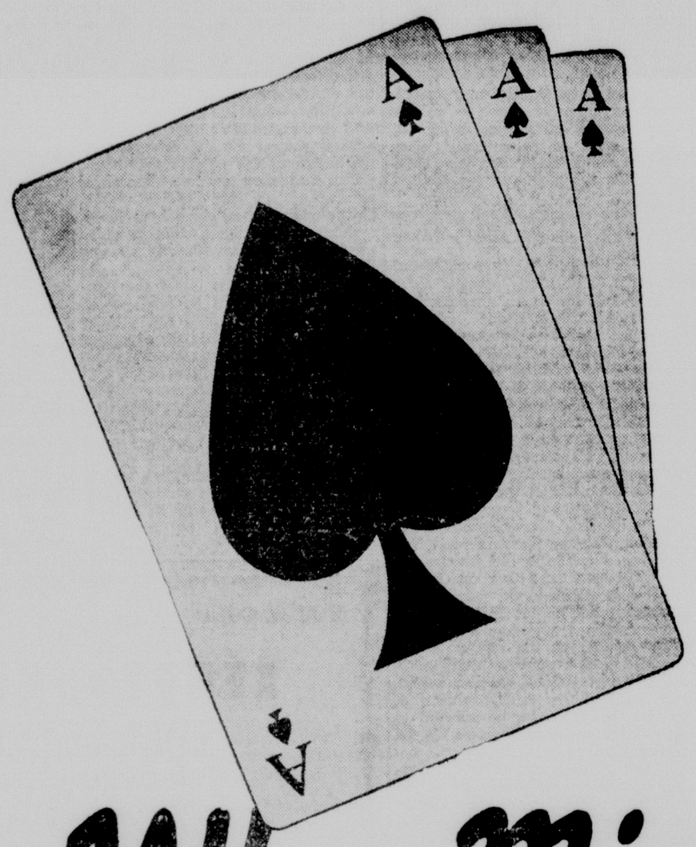

Reliable concerns will welcome such an investigation.

Many advertisements are so worded to trick you into sending your money in advance and once it is sent it proves very difficult to get it back. Consult some responsible person.

OUT OF CONTROL

The American league apparently is going to have to do something about that lively ball. The hitters have taken complete charge and the fans are beginning to squawk about it. Either there are no pitchers in the American league or the ball is plumb full of jack rabbit.

Take the games for the past seven days. There were 31 of 'em played in the American league. The run total was 409, or an average of 58 per day. Carrying it a bit farther, the average is 13 per game. That, ladies and gents, is too many runs for any ball game. We were afraid our adding machine would break down, or we would have given you the hit total.

The home run total gives some idea of the difference in the balls used by the National and American league. American leaguers have hit 515 circuit blows to 423 for sluggers in the senior circuit. And the three leaders in the major league home run parade are Gehrig, with 33; Trosky, with 31, and Foxx, with 30. All are American league stars. Their nearest competitor from the other side of the fence is Mel Ott, who has hit 21.

The discussion has reached national proportions. Last week the Sporting News started a campaign to determine just how the fans felt about the heavy slugging. They will conduct a poll in which the fans may vote their convictions. They even go so far as to suggest a change in rules may help.

Following is a part of a Sporting News editorial on the subject:

"Frankly, we don't know the feeling of the majority of fans. We doubt if anybody else does. Therefore, if a cross-section of that opinion can be obtained through this poll, the Sporting News believes that it will have accomplished something of real benefit to the game. The result, whether for or against, will be respectfully commended to the attention of the officials of organized ball to take whatever action may be necessary to put the sport on a standard that meets with the approval of the rank and file of its supporters.

"Fans everywhere will have an opportunity to express themselves, as the poll is being made nation-wide. Furthermore, voters will not be limited to a "Yes" or "No," but are extended the privilege of voicing their opinions in detail as to what changes should be made, if they believe that reforms are necessary. Surely, this great mass of public opinion should be heeded, for it represents those who make possible the salaries of all players and officials and the difference between profit and loss for all clubs.

"If the present type of game is wearisome and unattractive to the majority, those in baseball should know it. If certain changes are necessary to meet a public demand, then recognition should be given the fact and the administration and rules of the sport revised accordingly. Only the unprogressive stand still. The successful men today keep step with the trend of the times and learn what that trend is by frequent inquiries. In this way, they give the public what it wants, and are repaid by that same public."

EFFICIENT ARBITERS

It's high time somebody is complimenting the umpires in the Ouachita Valley league. We don't know whether the six clubs appreciate the boys who call the plays, but our observation of their work leads us to the opinion that they're far better than the average semi-pro umpires.

One thing that has impressed us is the manner in which they run the games. Don't make any mistake about it, they're in complete command at all times. Rarely has there been any trouble, and when difficulties do arise, it doesn't take 'em long to settle the matter. Maybe it means that a ball player takes the long walk to the clubhouse, but those Valley arbiters don't hesitate to enforce the rules.

We don't mean that they don't make mistakes. All umpires—and everybody else, for that matter—make errors both in judgment and interpretation of the rules. Didn't Bill Klem, the infallible, have one of his rulings reversed by the National league president? But the present crop of Ouachita Valley umps has been particularly fortunate in calling the plays this season. And the league has been fortunate in having such officials in charge of the games.

RECRUITING

The Houston baseball club, a member of the vast Cardinal chain, is trying something new this year in recruiting a crop of young ball players. Houston will hold a training camp for boys between 17 and 23 years of age at Shreveport, starting Monday, August 10. Boys in this section who want to take a fling at organized baseball are invited to participate.

Highly competent baseball scouts will be in charge of the try-outs and all boys with sufficient ability will be signed to contracts and sent to minor league clubs offering them the best chances for development. In this camp they are seeking boys who will eventually be able to play in the major leagues.

All boys have to do to secure a try-out is to present themselves at Dixie League park on Jordan street in Shreveport at 9 o'clock on the morning of Monday, August 10. The only requirements are that boys pay their own traveling expenses to Shreveport and their living expenses while there and bring their own shoes, gloves and uniforms. No fee is charged boys who attend this camp. A try-out will entail a stay in Shreveport of not more than three or four days. Boys signed to contracts will have their expenses incident to attending the camp refunded.

SPORTS FODDER

John Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, didn't make his trip to Europe to see the Olympic games, so the inside story goes, but to make certain that Mike Jacobs, the Garden's contemporary New York boxing promoter and Twentieth Century club director, really had a contract on Max Schmeling that would give him the right to dicker on the now set title bout between the German and Champion James J. Braddock. . . . ADLER TEN MEETS VICKSBURG TODAY

Undefeated Mississippi Softball Team Opposes City Loop Leaders

The league-leading Adler's Garage team of the City league will meet the strong Vicksburg Wreckers, rated one of the strongest softball teams in that state, this afternoon at the Missouri Pacific diamond. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

The Adler team will be bolstered by the addition of Garner, St. Matthew's pitcher, and Strong, heavy hitting Southern Bell second sacker. Carroll Boyce, regular Adler hurler, is out of action with a split finger.

Manager E. E. Meredith announced last night that the Adler lineup will be as follows:

Caldwell, center field; Wilkerson, catcher; Strong, second base; Martin, right field; Gibbs, third base; McClain, center field; Marioneaux, short field; Adler, first base; Maroney, shortstop, and Garner, pitcher.

The Vicksburg club has played 19 games this season and won them all. They will enter the Mississippi state softball tournament and if victorious, will compete in the national tournament. They are favorites to cop the Mississippi crown, having defeated all opposition this year.

Today's game will be played according to national softball rules.

The Vicksburg Wreckerettes, strong girls' team, will not accompany the Wreckers here, it was announced yesterday. It was at first thought that a girls' team could be recruited here but the plan was later dropped.

Umpires for today's game will be Wene, Zinsmeister and McGee.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE

St. Matthew's	17	8	.680
Methodists	14	11	.560
Bakers	13	11	.542
Baptists	12	13	.480
Firemen	12	14	.462

Tuesday's Games

Bakers vs. Methodists, Lida Benton.

Southern Bell vs. Firemen, Barkdull Faulk.

Thursday's Games

St. Matthew's vs. Bakers, Lida Benton.

Southern Bell vs. Baptists, Plum.

The Twilight league's schedule of games for the season comes to a close with this week's battles, with Southern Bell, St. Matthew's and the Methodists practically assured of appearing in the play-off and the Bakers bidding to be the fourth team in the title series.

The Baptists stand a chance to gum up the works and necessitate a little series of its own on the side. The Baptists have only one more scheduled game to play while the Bakers must play two. Both of the Breadmen's battles are against the strong St. Matthew's and Methodist aggregations, and the odds are not heavy that they will win either game. On the other hand, if the Baptists can spring an upset in their last game with Southern Bell, and the Bakers lose their two, then the Bakers and Baptists will go into a tie for fourth place.

If this should happen a series between the Baptists and Bakers will, no doubt be played to determine the fourth team in the league title games.

HERE'S A FELLOW WHO'S ATTEMPTING A HOPELESS TASK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fred Orsinger of the United States bureau of fisheries launched a campaign today to combat the theory that fishermen tell tall tales.

"I get sick and tired," he said, "of hearing people say—'oh, that's just another fish story'—why, it's unjust."

Orsinger, who directs the bureau's aquarium in the commerce department building, explained that he had investigated nine fish stories collected at random and found seven of them true.

"That's a batting average of .777," he said, "and if that isn't good I'll swallow that black bass raw."

Leaning against a guppy tank, he began a recitation of his findings.

A fisherman down in Arkansas, he said, told of the jazz fish, so called because he fished for it with a phonograph. He played a record and the fish came to the surface and shook itself to death.

Orsinger said this tale was not true.

A true story was that of the rubber-tired fish which had a rubber roll about its body. D. J. Dewland, of Salida, Calif., caught it and the rubber roll turned out to be a rubber washer that had stuck to the fish until it grew into its scales.

"And then," continued Orsinger, "there is the proven story of the diamond fish. Lacy Kilgore and John Gentry, Knoxville, Tenn., fishermen were cleaning a 10-pound bass and found a $500 diamond ring in its mouth."

Orsinger then related how Captain Victor Goularte, of San Diego, Calif., sailed his ship "Rajo" into port with a piece of bone sticking through the planking to prove a swordfish had attacked his boat.

A yarn about the Prince Edward Island Beazle fish was branded untrue.

"This fish," said Orsinger, "was supposed to live off the hum of humming birds."

"That," he added, "is the kind of things we got to break up."

RALPH GULDAHL LEADS IN SEATTLE OPEN GOLF

SEATTLE, Aug. 1.—(AP)—With three fourths of the field in, Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, with 139—seven under par for 36 holes—held a one stroke lead tonight over his nearest rival, MacDonald Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., in the Seattle Open golf tournament.

The western open champion, stroked a 70 to add to yesterday's 69 on the difficult par 73-Inglewood course.

Nashville's great stylist turned in a 69 for a total of 140, four strokes better than Walter Pursey, Seattle professional, who carded 74 today to raise his total to 144.

Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, and Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., were tied with totals of 145.

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR TECH SQUAD

Bucking Sleds And Hangers Being Built For Fall Football Work

RUSTON, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—They are "sawing wood" at Louisiana Tech these days, pending the opening of football practice about a month from now. The wood is being made into equipment for the benefit of the fall crop of gridiron candidates.

George (Blue) Hogg, who teaches manual training in addition to coaching freshmen at Tech, has put his embryo carpenters to work on things useful as well as ornamental. Under Coach Hogg's supervision, the manual training pupils have made four bucking sleds, 50 equipment hangers for the varsity and 30 equipment hangers for the freshmen.

The bucking sleds, including three defensive types and one offensive, weigh about 250 pounds each. They are "just the things" for individual instruction and will supplement a five-man bucker used on the football field here in the past. The new equipment hangers will take care of every item of the gridder's wardrobe, Coach Hogg says.

Mike Wells, assistant coach, also is helping to get things lined up for the opening of football at Tech. Part of his work recently has been devoted to preparing material for publication in the football programs for distribution at games.

Herb Duggins, assistant mentor, has been primarily engaged in the teaching of physical education courses this summer, but has kept an eye on football matters in the absence of Head Coach Eddie McLane, who is studying at Louisiana State university.

Eddie Wojecki, student assistant and trainer, has been enjoying a life of ease on the lakes around his home at Erie, Pa., this summer.

TEXAS LEAGUE

CATS SHADE SHIPPERS

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Al Shealy proved too much for Beaumont here this afternoon and the Fort Worth Cats rang up their third straight victory, 4-3.

CARLETON HOLDS BOSTON TO FIVE HITS FOR VICTORY

Herman Leads Chicago Attack And Equals Record For Assists

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Cubs nipped the Bees, 1-0, in an 11-inning thriller today, the Cubs' tightest game of the year.

As lanky Tex Carleton baffled the Bostonians for the sixth time this year and recorded his 10th victory, the Chicagoans extended their National league lead to two full games, the second-place Cardinals bowing to the Phillies.

Billy Herman, equalling for the second time the major league record of 11 putouts by a second baseman, and obtaining three hits in five times at bat, one a double, was no mean factor in turning the decision Chicago's way.

DODGERS TROUNCE REDS

BROOKLYN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Max Butcher, rookie right hander up from Galveston this year, pitched his first complete game of the season today, a three-hit masterpiece over the Cincinnati Reds to give the Dodgers an 11 to 4 victory in the current series opener.

Babe Phelps, Dodger catcher, was the batting hero, belting out a homer, triple and single to drive in five of the Brooklyn runs.

INJURED YANKEE FIELDER REPORTED RESTING WELL

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Myril Hoag, New York Yankee baseball player severely injured this week when he collided with a fellow outfielder, was reported resting easily today and "probably out of danger."

Dr. William E. Keane, physician of the Detroit baseball club, who made the report, said Hoag's mind was clear and his temperature and pulse normal today.

Dr. Keane said Hoag unquestionably was out of action for the season.

HANDICAP MEET OPENS AT MUNY

Qualifying Round Closes Aug. 14; Club Plans Crossett Match

A club handicap tournament started at the Municipal Golf club yesterday, with the opening of the qualifying round. Qualifying scores may be posted through August 14, Winnie Cole, Muny pro, announced.

Prizes will be awarded to the tournament winner, the runner-up and the medalist. First round matches will start on August 15, Cole said, and one week will be allowed for the completion of each round.

Municipal golfers will go to Crossett, Ark., next Sunday for an intercity match with members of the Prairie Golf and Country club there. At least 25 members of the local club are expected to make the trip. Those who intend to go are asked to notify Cole this week.

LEADERS SCORE IN 10TH TO NOSE OUT CLEVELAND

Yanks Make It Two Straight Despite Homers By Trosky And Hale

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The New York Yankees made it two straight over the Indians today and stretched their American league lead to 9 1-2 games by outlasting the tribe for ten innings and a 5 to 4 victory.

Frank Crosetti's double, Joe DiMaggio's single and Lou Gehrig's bounder to the pitcher's box brought in the winning run in the tenth after the Indians had come from behind on Hal Trosky's 31st homer and "Bad News" Hale's 12th to tie the count in the eighth.

The tribe outhit the Yanks 14 to 11, but the timely New York hitting provided the winning edge.

Lefty Gomez, Yankee starting pitcher, was belted out of the box in the eighth during a two-run tribe rally, and Johnny Murphy, who finished the game, received credit for the win. Denny Galehouse was charged with the defeat, although the winning run was scored off Thornton Lee, who replaced him.

OUT OF CONTROL

The American league apparently is going to have to do something about that lively ball. The hitters have taken complete charge and the fans are beginning to squawk about it. Either there are no pitchers in the American league or the ball is plumb full of jack rabbit.

Take the games for the past seven days. There were 31 of 'em played in the American league. The run total was 409, or an average of 58 per day. Carrying it a bit farther, the average is 13 per game. That, ladies and gents, is too many runs for any ball game. We were afraid our adding machine would break down, or we would have given you the hit total.

The home run total gives some idea of the difference in the balls used by the National and American league. American leaguers have hit 515 circuit blows to 423 for sluggers in the senior circuit. And the three leaders in the major league home run parade are Gehrig, with 33; Trosky, with 31, and Foxx, with 30. All are American league stars. Their nearest competitor from the other side of the fence is Mel Ott, who has hit 21.

The discussion has reached national proportions. Last week the Sporting News started a campaign to determine just how the fans felt about the heavy slugging. They will conduct a poll in which the fans may vote their convictions. They even go so far as to suggest a change in rules may help.

Following is a part of a Sporting News editorial on the subject:

"Frankly, we don't know the feeling of the majority of fans. We doubt if anybody else does. Therefore, if a cross-section of that opinion can be obtained through this poll, the Sporting News believes that it will have accomplished something of real benefit to the game. The result, whether for or against, will be respectfully commended to the attention of the officials of organized ball to take whatever action may be necessary to put the sport on a standard that meets with the approval of the rank and file of its supporters.

"Fans everywhere will have an opportunity to express themselves, as the poll is being made nation-wide. Furthermore, voters will not be limited to a "Yes" or "No," but are extended the privilege of voicing their opinions in detail as to what changes should be made, if they believe that reforms are necessary. Surely, this great mass of public opinion should be heeded, for it represents those who make possible the salaries of all players and officials and the difference between profit and loss for all clubs.

"If the present type of game is wearisome and unattractive to the majority, those in baseball should know it. If certain changes are necessary to meet a public demand, then recognition should be given the fact and the administration and rules of the sport revised accordingly. Only the unprogressive stand still. The successful men today keep step with the trend of the times and learn what that trend is by frequent inquiries. In this way, they give the public what it wants, and are repaid by that same public."

EFFICIENT ARBITERS

It's high time somebody is complimenting the umpires in the Ouachita Valley league. We don't know whether the six clubs appreciate the boys who call the plays, but our observation of their work leads us to the opinion that they're far better than the average semi-pro umpires.

One thing that has impresseed us is the manner in which they run the games. Don't make any mistake about it, they're in complete command at all times. Rarely has there been any trouble, and when difficulties do arise, it doesn't take 'em long to settle the matter. Maybe it means that a ball player takes the long walk to the clubhouse, but those Valley arbiters don't hesitate to enforce the rules.

We don't mean that they don't make mistakes. All umpires—and everybody else, for that matter—make errors both in judgment and interpretation of the rules. Didn't Bill Klem, the infallible, have one of his rulings reversed by the National league president? But the present crop of Ouachita Valley umps has been particularly fortunate in calling the plays this season. And the league has been fortunate in having such officials in charge of the games.

RECRUITING

The Houston baseball club, a member of the vast Cardinal chain, is trying something new this year in recruiting a crop of young ball players. Houston will hold a training camp for boys between 17 and 23 years of age at Shreveport, starting Monday, August 10. Boys in this section who want to take a fling at organized baseball are invited to participate.

Highly competent baseball scouts will be in charge of the try-outs and all boys with sufficient ability will be signed to contracts and sent to minor league clubs offering them the best chances for development. In this camp they are seeking boys who will eventually be able to play in the major leagues.

All boys have to do to secure a try-out is to present themselves at Dixie League park on Jordan street in Shreveport at 9 o'clock on the morning of Monday, August 10. The only requirements are that boys pay their own traveling expenses to Shreveport and their living expenses while there and bring their own shoes, gloves and uniforms. No fee is charged boys who attend this camp. A try-out will entail a stay in Shreveport of not more than three or four days. Boys signed to contracts will have their expenses incident to attending the camp refunded.

SPORTS FODDER

John Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, didn't make his trip to Europe to see the Olympic games, so the inside story goes, but to make certain that Mike Jacobs, the Garden's contemporary New York boxing promoter and Twentieth Century club director, really had a contract on Max Schmeling that would give him the right to dicker on the now set title bout between the German and Champion James J. Braddock. . . . In the great speedboat classic for the Harmsworth trophy run recently, newsreel cameramen hint that the Britisher, Kaye Don, who won the race, sometimes ran as slow as 27 miles per hour when the last of the opposition was forced out of the event. . . . Charles Atlas, noted American physical culturist, says the gruelling five-meet preliminary track program in this country for Uncle Sam's Olympic stars before they sailed for Europe is likely to cause a number of the performers to go stale from overwork before the Berlin events are over. . . . A former New York sports writer who promoted the national collegiate basketball tournament is said to have made $25,000 out of the deal.

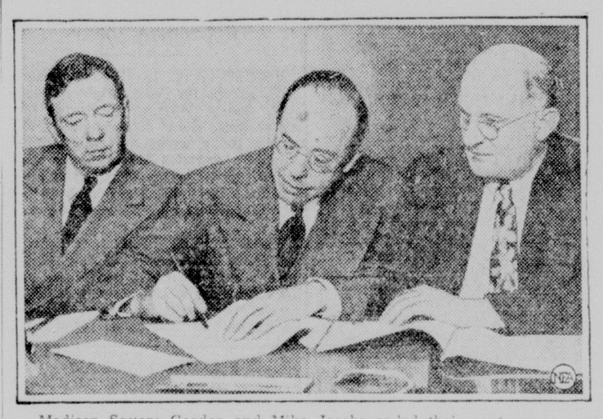

Charlie Kimmel, one of the U. S. G. A.'s official scorers, can play one thousand different selections on his home-made one-string cigar box violin. . . . The latest addition to the Jack Dempsey family is due any time now. . . . In states where the snow hangs around late as winter fades into spring the linksmen use red golf balls. . . . Ned Everhart, resident golf pro at the Miami Biltmore Country club, once tried to knock down a golf ball in flight with a 20-gauge shotgun—but missed every time. . . . Strangest of the entries in the recent national public links golf championship was a wine taster. . . . While in a poll of the entries it was found that the average salary of the contestants was $22 a week, ranging anywhere from $5 a week to $9,000 annually.

San Francisco is so steamed up over Joe Di Maggio, Yankee's rookie star, that every time he makes a hit it is broadcast over the police system so the cops in the radio cars are not kept in suspense. . . . Notre Dame has already printed ticket applications for its gridiron games in New York with Army, and at Baltimore with Navy. . . . The Gotham prices are $4.40 and $6.60 with those in the Maryland city set at $1.11, $2.22 and $3.33. . . . Gerald Walker, Detroit outfielder, once appeared at the plate with all of his fingernails painted red—to annoy the pitcher, so he says. . . . American sports writers are confident that covering the news of the Berlin Olympics will be the most difficult assignment they've ever had because of the lack of telegraph wire facilities and cooperation of the German press.

Cubs Score In 11th To Win Duel From Bees, 1-0

PEACE IN CAULIFLOWER ALLEY

CARLETON HOLDS BOSTON TO FIVE HITS FOR VICTORY

Herman Leads Chicago Attack And Equals Record For Assists

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Cubs nipped the Bees, 1-0, in an 11-inning thriller today, the Cubs' tightest game of the year.

As lanky Tex Carleton baffled the Bostonians for the sixth time this year and recorded his 10th victory, the Chicagoans extended their National league lead to two full games, the second-place Cardinals bowing to the Phillies.

Billy Herman, equalling for the second time the major league record of 11 putouts by a second baseman, and obtaining three hits in five times at bat, one a double, was no mean factor in turning the decision Chicago's way.

DODGERS TROUNCE REDS

BROOKLYN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Max Butcher, rookie right hander up from Galveston this year, pitched his first complete game of the season today, a three-hit masterpiece over the Cincinnati Reds to give the Dodgers an 11 to 4 victory in the current series opener.

Babe Phelps, Dodger catcher, was the batting hero, belting out a homer, triple and single to drive in five of the Brooklyn runs.

INJURED YANKEE FIELDER REPORTED RESTING WELL

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Myril Hoag, New York Yankee baseball player severely injured this week when he collided with a fellow outfielder, was reported resting easily today and "probably out of danger."

Dr. William E. Keane, physician of the Detroit baseball club, who made the report, said Hoag's mind was clear and his temperature and pulse normal today.

Dr. Keane said Hoag unquestionably was out of action for the season.

Qualifying Round Closes Aug. 14; Club Plans Crossett Match

A club handicap tournament started at the Municipal Golf club yesterday, with the opening of the qualifying round. Qualifying scores may be posted through August 14, Winnie Cole, Muny pro, announced.

Prizes will be awarded to the tournament winner, the runner-up and the medalist. First round matches will start on August 15, Cole said, and one week will be allowed for the completion of each round.

Municipal golfers will go to Crossett, Ark., next Sunday for an intercity match with members of the Prairie Golf and Country club there. At least 25 members of the local club are expected to make the trip. Those who intend to go are asked to notify Cole this week.

LEADERS SCORE IN 10TH TO NOSE OUT CLEVELAND

Yanks Make It Two Straight Despite Homers By Trosky And Hale

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The New York Yankees made it two straight over the Indians today and stretched their American league lead to 9 1-2 games by outlasting the tribe for ten innings and a 5 to 4 victory.

Frank Crosetti's double, Joe DiMaggio's single and Lou Gehrig's bounder to the pitcher's box brought in the winning run in the tenth after the Indians had come from behind on Hal Trosky's 31st homer and "Bad News" Hale's 12th to tie the count in the eighth.

The tribe outhit the Yanks 14 to 11, but the timely New York hitting provided the winning edge.

Lefty Gomez, Yankee starting pitcher, was belted out of the box in the eighth during a two-run tribe rally, and Johnny Murphy, who finished the game, received credit for the win. Denny Galehouse was charged with the defeat, although the winning run was scored off Thornton Lee, who replaced him.

ADLER TEN MEETS VICKSBURG TODAY

Undefeated Mississippi Softball Team Opposes City Loop Leaders

The league-leading Adler's Garage team of the City league will meet the strong Vicksburg Wreckers, rated one of the strongest softball teams in that state, this afternoon at the Missouri Pacific diamond. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

The Adler team will be bolstered by the addition of Garner, St. Matthew's pitcher, and Strong, heavy hitting Southern Bell second sacker. Carroll Boyce, regular Adler hurler, is out of action with a split finger.

Manager E. E. Meredith announced last night that the Adler lineup will be as follows:

Caldwell, center field; Wilkerson, catcher; Strong, second base; Martin, right field; Gibbs, third base; McClain, center field; Marioneaux, short field; Adler, first base; Maroney, shortstop, and Garner, pitcher.

The Vicksburg club has played 19 games this season and won them all. They will enter the Mississippi state softball tournament and if victorious, will compete in the national tournament. They are favorites to cop the Mississippi crown, having defeated all opposition this year.

Today's game will be played according to national softball rules.

The Vicksburg Wreckerettes, strong girls' team, will not accompany the Wreckers here, it was announced yesterday. It was at first thought that a girls' team could be recruited here but the plan was later dropped.

Umpires for today's game will be Wene, Zinsmeister and McGee.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Teams	Won	Lost	Pct.
Southern Bell	27	7	.708
St. Matthew's	17	8	.680
Methodists	14	11	.560
Bakers	13	11	.542
Baptists	12	13	.480
Firemen	12	14	.462

Tuesday's Games
Bakers vs. Methodists, Lida Benton.
Southern Bell vs. Firemen, Barkdull Faulk.

Thursday's Games
St. Matthew's vs. Bakers, Lida Benton.
Southern Bell vs. Baptists, Plum.

The Twilight league's schedule of games for the season comes to a close with this week's battles, with Southern Bell, St. Matthew's and the Methodists practically assured of appearing in the play-off and the Bakers bidding to be the fourth team in the title series.

The Baptists stand a chance to gum up the works and necessitate a little series of its own on the side. The Baptists have only one more scheduled game to play while the Bakers must play two. Both of the Breadmen's battles are against the strong St. Matthew's and Methodist aggregations, and the odds are not heavy that they will win either game. On the other hand, if the Baptists can spring an upset in their last game with Southern Bell, and the Bakers lose their two, then the Bakers and Baptists will go into a tie for fourth place.

If this should happen a series between the Baptists and Bakers will no doubt be played to determine the fourth team in the league title games.

HERE'S A FELLOW WHO'S ATTEMPTING A HOPELESS TASK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Fred Orsinger of the United States bureau of fisheries launched a campaign today to combat the theory that fishermen tell tall tales.

"I get sick and tired," he said, "of hearing people say—'oh, that's just another fish story'—why, it's unjust."

Orsinger, who directs the bureau's aquarium in the commerce department building, explained that he had investigated nine fish stories collected at random and found seven of them true.

"That's a batting average of .777," he said, "and if that isn't good I'll swallow that black bass raw."

Leaning against a guppy tank, he began a recitation of his findings.

A fisherman down in Arkansas, he said, told of the jazz fish, so called because he fished for it with a phonograph. He played a record and the fish came to the surface and shook itself to death.

Orsinger said this tale was not true.

A true story was that of the rubber-tired fish which had a rubber roll about its body. D. J. Dewland, of Salida, Calif., caught it and the rubber roll turned out to be a rubber washer that had stuck to the fish until it grew into its scales.

"And then," continued Orsinger, "there is the proven story of the diamond fish. Lacy Kilgore and John Gentry, Knoxville, Tenn., fishermen were cleaning a 10-pound bass and found a $500 diamond ring in its mouth."

Orsinger then related how Captain Victor Goularte, of San Diego, Calif., sailed his ship "Rajo" into port with a piece of bone sticking through the planking to prove a swordfish had attacked his boat.

A yarn about the Prince Edward Island Beazle fish was branded untrue.

"This fish," said Orsinger, "was supposed to live off the hum of humming birds."

"That," he added, "is the kind of things we got to break up."

RALPH GULDAHL LEADS IN SEATTLE OPEN GOLF

SEATTLE, Aug. 1.—(AP)—With three fourths of the field in, Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, with 139—seven under par for 36 holes—held a one stroke lead tonight over his nearest rival, MacDonald Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., in the Seattle Open golf tournament.

The western open champion, stroked a 70 to add to yesterday's 69 on the difficult par 73-Inglewood course.

Nashville's great stylist turned in a 69 for a total of 140, four strokes better than Walter Pursey, Seattle professional, who carded 74 today to raise his total to 144.

Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, and Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., were tied with totals of 145.

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR TECH SQUAD

Bucking Sleds And Hangers Being Built For Fall Football Work

RUSTON, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—They are "sawing wood" at Louisiana Tech these days, pending the opening of football practice about a month from now. The wood is being made into equipment for the benefit of the fall crop of gridiron candidates.

George (Blue) Hogg, who teaches manual training in addition to coaching freshmen at Tech, has put his embryo carpenters to work on things useful as well as ornamental. Under Coach Hogg's supervision, the manual training pupils have made four bucking sleds, 50 equipment hangers for the varsity and 30 equipment hangers for the freshmen.

The bucking sleds, including three defensive types and one offensive, weigh about 250 pounds each. They are "just the things" for individual instruction and will supplement a five-man bucker used on the football field here in the past. The new equipment hangers will take care of every item of the gridder's wardrobe, Coach Hogg says.

Mike Wells, assistant coach, also is helping to get things lined up for the opening of football at Tech. Part of his work recently has been devoted to preparing material for publication in the football programs for distribution at games.

Herb Duggins, assistant mentor, has been primarily engaged in the teaching of physical education courses this summer, but has kept an eye on football matters in the absence of Head Coach Eddie McLane, who is studying at Louisiana State university.

Eddie Wojecki, student assistant and trainer, has been enjoying a life of ease on the lakes around his home at Erie, Pa., this summer.

AMERICANS 'RAZZED' DURING OLYMPIC PARADE

CAPACITY CROWD TURNS OUT FOR OPENING PROGRAM

Whistling Greets U. S. Team When Flag Isn't Dipped Before Hitler

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, attired in a brown uniform and smiling genially, formally launched the 11th Olympiad today amid ceremonies dazzlingly brilliant despite dripping skies marked by vividly contrasting demonstrations obviously fraught with political as well as sporting significance.

An overflow crowd of 105,000 packed the massive, double-decked concrete stadium to see the record-breaking gathering of nearly 4,500 athletes representing fifty nations take the Olympic oath during an impressive two-hour program splashed with color, rain drops and mass enthusiasm that reached its peak when French and Austrian athletes gave the Nazi salute while passing the chancellor's reviewing box.

The big United States delegation, surpassed in size only by the Germans who formed the procession as rear guard, was accorded a doubtful reception. Changing plans suddenly overnight to avoid the appearance of giving only a modified Nazi salute under the original intentions to extend arms with hats in hand, the Americans reverted to the former custom of doffing their hats and placing them over the heart while giving "eyes right."

This change, coupled with traditional obedience to regulations barring the American flag from being dipped, apparently contributed to the character of the crowds' reception which was noisily enthusiastic but not comparable with the welcome accorded those who seemed entirely willing to adopt the slogan: "When in Rome do as the Romans do."

Last of the visiting delegations in the procession and followed only by the Germans, the Americans received an even bigger hand going out of the stadium than coming in when they were welcomed with a noisy whistling reception which some European observers suggested was tantamount to the European "raspberries."

There was considerable difference of opinion in the press box as to what section in the stadium the whistling came from. Some thought it came from several thousand American spectators, while others believed it came from a section which included several hundred "brown shirts" who resented the fact that Americans re-donned their straw hats while the band was playing the "Horst Wessel," the Nazi marching song.

Other observers declared the Americans weren't aware that Germany now has two national anthems and seemed to have thought they had done their full duty by "deutschland uber alles." The reason for the abrupt termination of the inward greeting of the Americans was said to be due to German spectators' anxiety to cheer their own heroes.

Spain's withdrawal of her entire team overnight due to uncertainties growing out of the current revolution, and the partial scratching of Brazilian entries as an aftermath to an internal squabble between rival factions seeking to designate entries in three sports—rowing, swimming and track—reduced the Olympic ranks at the eleventh hour.

Elaborately staged, the all-day civic celebration, which started at gray dawn, was marked by Chancellor Hitler's announcement that his government would underwrite the completion of ancient Olympic excavations in Greece. This led to a smashing stadium climax featured by the crowds' reaction to the varying salutes given by parading officials and athletes.

Wildest manifestations were evoked among onlookers as nearly half of the delegations, numbering twenty-four, gave varying forms of the Nazi salute with right arms extended upraised in contrast with "eyes right" given by most of the remaining paraders.

The United States was one of four nations not dipping their flags, the others being Bulgaria, Iceland and India which did not manifest a salute of any kind while passing Hitler's reviewing stand. Great Britain was among 21 nations giving "eyes right," but her dominions were by no means in agreement as to just what was the proper thing for the ceremonial sporting occasion.

The fluctuating popular demonstrations reached a crescendo when the French athletes, duplicating their gesture at the winter Olympics at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, outstretched their hands.

Hitler, who stood throughout the parade returning national salutes, repeatedly acknowledged France's friendly greeting while thunderous cheers virtually rocked the stadium. The demonstration was repeated for the athletes of Austria, where not so long ago anyone detected giving the Nazi salute was liable to imprisonment.

Only four leaders of the Czechoslovakian delegation gave the Nazi salute while the rest of the group turned their faces toward Hitler.

The highest Olympic traditions were upheld by the spectacle which even the weather aided after threatening early gestures. The last big shower fell just before Chancellor Hitler entered the stadium with high Nazi officials, Count Henri Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic committee, and the remainder of the top-hatted international committeemen.

The rain held off throughout the spectacular parade and the formalities which included a speech by Dr. Theodor Lewald, president of the German organizing committee, Hitler's proclamation opening the games, the blond German Olympic middle weight weight-lifting champion, Rudolf Ismayr's taking the oath in behalf of all athletes, and the picturesque lighting of the Olympic fire by the German runner bearing the torch ceremoniously relayed from Olympia, Greece.

Even drab skies tried apologetically to break apart as guns boomed, 30,000 pigeons were released, a chorus of 1,500 voices resounded with the thrilling strains of the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," and trumpeting fanfare then accompanied Hitler's departure from the stadium.

Hitler was presented to the overflow throng by Dr. Lewald, who paid tribute to the chancellor "in gratitude and veneration for the wonderful stadium built according to your will."

"The amateur principle is exalted and holy," he asserted. "Only if it is kept such is it worthy of being advanced by all governments and peoples, and only then does it deserve the enthusiasm of youth and the participation of old age."

Hitler's part in the ceremony was brief but impressive. As tomb-like silence fell over the massive assemblage, he said:

"I declare the games of Berlin in celebration of the 11th Olympiad of modern times have opened."

While guns boomed and the pigeons were released, and the national flags were grouped, the American and Brazilian remaining undipped, Ismayr took the Olympic oath. The oath reads:

"We swear we will take part in the Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations which govern them and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and for the glory of sports."

As the German runner, Werner Schilgen, sped across the field to light the Olympic fire in the receptacle erected in the open gateway, Louys, the veteran Greek marathoner, presented an olive branch to Hitler who smiled and saluted as Luoys said:

"I herewith give you this olive twig from Olympia as a symbol of love and peace. We sincerely wish that the nations may meet each other in peaceful and friendly competitions like the Olympics."

OPINION DIVIDED

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A debate over whether the American delegation received the German equivalent of the "Bronx cheer" shortly after passing Chancellor Hitler in the parade of the nations, opened the 11th Olympiad, shook the press section as the athletes left the Olympic stadium today.

Dozens of groups argued the question of whether the outburst of whistling in the "right field" bleachers was meant the way it sounded in German ears. The American marchers, thankfully, were blissfully ignorant of the fact that whistling is the German's favorite method of expressing disapproval.

Nazi officials paled when the first bird-like notes smote their ears, but if Uncle Sam's athletes heard the short-lived demonstration, they probably thought they were being given an extra big hand.

At that, there still is a question whether the whistling emanated from Germans, possibly disgruntled because the American standard-bearer, Alfred Jochim of Union City, N. J., failed to dip the American flag, or from enthusiastic American spectators of whom there were several thousand.

A score of American, British and German newspapermen as well as spectators were asked their opinion and were about evenly divided on the delicate question.

One prominent German journalist was positive the warbling was of the barbed variety, but said: "You must excuse them because they don't understand America's rule that its flag must not be dipped."

U. S. Athletes Fare Well In Drawing For First Heats

That Jarrett Girl---Always Breaking Something

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Eleanor Holm Jarrett, mermaid prodigy of a decade ago and wife of a singing orchestra leader, the 22-year-old matron who incurred the ire of the United States Olympic committee by breaking training rules, is noted principally for breaking backstroke swim records.

Since she won a place on the 1928 Olympic team at the age of 14, the fun-loving Eleanor, who grew up in Brooklyn, has been known as the world's fastest dorsal mermaid, movie actress in "bit" parts, singer and one of the few to win membership on three United States Olympic squads.

Representing the New York Women's Swimming association, Eleanor Holm won the American Olympic trials for the 100-meter backstroke and was winner of the third heat in the Olympic games at Amsterdam eight years ago.

Then in the finals she finished fifth, behind Marion Gilman of the United States, who had done no better than third in the American tryouts.

In the next few years, Miss Holm wrecked water marks right and left and in 1932 at Los Angeles she won the Olympic 100-meter backstroke in record time.

Movie contracts for parts in which she was not required to appear as a swimmer (in order that she would not lose her amateur standing as Helene Madison of Seattle did after the 1932 Olympics) came then and Eleanor had a brief fling in pictures.

However, she never filled a major role. In September, 1933, she married Arthur Jarrett, the singing baton-waver, a Brooklyn boy.

The couple traveled with his music-makers and Mrs. Jarrett appeared at times as a singer with the orchestra. She began to regard swimming as merely a pastime rather than a serious business; but then she came out of semi-retirement to break more records in her campaign for a place on the 1936 Olympic team.

The comely Kompa sisters of New York and others appeared as challengers to her dominance over the backstroke, but Eleanor conquered both and won her berth to Berlin with ease.

Mrs. Jarrett frankly stated that intensive training for swimming was both unnecessary and undesirable, so far as she was concerned. Declaring she liked parties and champagne, she said she and her husband lived a carefree life and that when swimming ceased to be fun she would give up competition.

NORMAL PLAYERS REPORT SEPT. 1

Four Veterans And Triple-Threat Quarterback Must Be Replaced

NATCHITOCHES, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—As time draws near for training of the 1936 edition of the Louisiana State Normal college football squad of 34 players who have been invited to report here September 1, the task of replacing four veteran linemen and a triple-threat quarterback lost through graduation is the most serious problem to face Coaches Harry (Rags) Turpin and Joe Aillet.

Several experienced seniors will be lost to the squad, but the Normal eleven will be weakened more by the loss of regular players on both terminals, a tackle, a center, and at the signal calling position. Although the Normal mentors have asked 34 players to return for pre-season practice, the group includes only 11 lettermen, which makes their task even more difficult to fulfill.

With the exception of the quarterback position, the Normal backfield candidates are the strongest to be in line for duty in several seasons. Led by 210-pound Mixon Bankston, who ran rough-shod over Demon opponents in the closing games of the 1935 season, the list of ball-carrying candidates includes 10 players.

In the line, Coaches Turpin and Aillet will have a most promising group of sophomore candidates. Ranging in weight from 180 to 210 pounds, the varsity newcomers will probably furnish plenty of intra-squad competition for the nine veteran linemen who are expected to return.

OUACHITA VALLEY

RUSTON AT SWARTZ

SWARTZ, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—The Ruston Volunteers make a trip to Swartz Sunday to engage the Carbon Blackers in a double-header. Both are league games, and a large crowd is expected to see this bargain attraction.

The Volunteers came out of their slump last Wednesday by swamping the Hodge Papermakers, and are expected to give the first-half winners plenty of opposition. Most of the defeats suffered by the Vols in the second half have been by one or two runs, and the Carbon Blackers were lucky to nose out a victory in the last meeting of the two clubs.

Manager Fox will probably use Hinton and Johnson as his starting pitchers, while Manager Norman is expected to rely on the right-handed shoots of Junior Still and Red Ward. There will be no advance in the admission price. The first game will start at 2 o'clock.

BROWN AT STERLINGTON

The league-leading Brown Paper mill team will go to Sterlington this afternoon for a "crucial" battle with the Sterlington Engineers. The game is slated to start at 3:30 o'clock.

The Sterlington club has an opportunity to climb back into the race if they beat the Brownies today. A defeat would virtually eliminate the Engineers from the chase. The Brown club is undefeated in the second half and will be trying to maintain that perfect record today.

The Engineers will start either Brooks or Cranford against the league leaders, while Manager Steed probably will choose either Mayes or Pittard in an attempt to continue his winning streak.

Sterlington is expected to have its full strength available for today's game. The Engineers have been riddled with injuries for the past six weeks but the hospital list is about wiped away.

JESUITS WHIP ALEXANDRIA FOR STATE LEGION TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—New Orleans Jesuit Blue Jays captured the American Legion junior baseball championship of Louisiana for the eighth time today by trouncing Alexandria for the second straight day, 19 to 7.

The victory qualifies the New Orleans team for regional play. The Jays will meet the winner of the Texas playoff Friday between Houston and Crockett.

A howling crowd of 3,500 witnessed the game, which was the Blue Jays from the start. The victors rapped out 19 hits, every man on the team getting at least one safety. In the third inning they piled up ten runs.

Score by innings:

AMERICANS DRAW SOFT BERTHS IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

Woodruff Only Member Of Team Facing Stiff Opposition Today

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—All Americans, except for John Hughey Woodruff, lanky Pittsburgh negro 800-meter star, drew comparatively soft berths today when the International Amateur Athletic federation, reversing a previous decision, announced the draw for preliminary heats in the Olympic 100-meter dash and 800-meter run.

Woodruff, just an obscure schoolboy miler a year ago and now America's metric half-mile sensation, was placed in the fourth heat with Erik Ny of Sweden, Dr. Paul Martin, Switzerland's five-time Olympian; Gerald Backhouse, Australian "dark horse;" Szabo, the fleet-footed Hungarian, and four others. The first four in each heat tomorrow will qualify for the semi-finals Monday afternoon.

Charles (Chuck) Hornbostel of Evansville, Ind., and Harry Williamson of High Point, N. C., drew much easier assignments. Hornbostel was drawn in the first heat, while Williamson was placed in the second along with Teileri of Finland.

Jesse Owens, coffee-colored Ohio State sprinter and jumper, who will attempt to duplicate Paava Nurmi's feat of scoring three "firsts" in one set of Olympic games, was drawn in the last heat of the 100-meter dash. The field for this event attracted 68 sprinters. All favorites were well-seeded. The first two in each heat tomorrow morning will qualify for the quarter-finals in the afternoon.

Owens, who also will compete in the 200-meter sprint and the broad jump in which he is the new world record holder at 26 feet 8 1-4 inches, was matched against K. Sasaki of Japan, J. De Almeida of Brazil, Cassar of Malta and Devrint of Belgium for his Olympic debut.

Ralph Metcalfe, Chicago negro and co-holder of the world record at 10.3 seconds, was drawn in the seventh heat along with Sir, the Hungarian star; Guzman of the Philippines; Guitierre of Mexico and two others.

Making his third straight Olympic appearance, Frank Wykoff of Carpenteria, Calif., will match strides with Fondeville of Argentina; A. S. Sweeney of Great Brtain and three Europeans.

The athletic program tomorrow will be launched with the start of five sports—Track and field, wrestling, fencing, field hockey and the modern pentathlon performers who will engage in an equestrian cross-country race at 9 a. m. (3 a. m. eastern standard time.

An hour later preliminary heats in the men's 100-meter dash, the high jump and the shot put will be held, followed by fencing, wrestling and field hockey.

Americans in the shot put, which will be decided in the afternoon are big Jack Torrance of Baton Rouge, La., Sam Francis, left-handed Lincoln, Neb., entry, and Dimitri Zaitz of Boston.

Cornelius Johnson of Los Angeles and Davie Albritton of Cleveland, negro co-claimants of the world record of six feet nine and 3-4 inches, and Delos Thurder of Los Angeles, are among the contestants for high jumpp honors, which also will be decided in the afternoon.

The 10,000 meters run will be decided in one race with Indiana's Don Lash heading the American trio which includes Eino Penttl of New York and Stanley Wudyka of Philadelphia.

One women's championship, the javelin throw, will be contested.

Stone was used for telegraph poles in India before iron came into use. Wood cannot be used on account of white ants.

This week's games bring to a close the 1936 schedule of the City Softball league, and arrangements should be made immediately to play all postponed and protested games within the week, as the championship series will begin the following week on August 12, it has been announced.

Adler's Garage, Cooperative Dairy, National Guard and Monroe Hardware are definitely in the title play-off, however, although there may still be some shifting in their standing before the schedule ends. The positions of the four leading teams at the end of the regular schedule will have a bearing in the play-off, as the leading aggregation will meet the third place team, and the second placers will tackle the fourth placers in a preliminary series leading up to the league's title series.

CASE ACE WINS RICH FUTURITY

Undefeated Mars Horse Beats Orientalist; Sun Teddy Wins Handicap

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The undefeated Case Ace, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Oak Park, Ill., captured the $50,000 Arlington Futurity before a crowd of 27,000 spectators today. Sun Teddy, the entry of Warren Wright of Chicago, won the $10,000 Arlington handicap.

Burning up the track soon after the start, Case Ace shook off a challenge of Warren Wright's Privileged on the turn into the stretch and then went on to win by a length and a half. Orientalist, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago, finished second after coming from last place. Apogee, owned by Hal Price Headley, was third.

The Futurity, richest stake for two year olds in the west, had a gross value of $50,635 with $36,540 going to Mrs. Mars as first prize. Orientalist won $6,000 for placing, and Apogee earned $3,000 for taking down third place.

The two year old son of Teddy-Sweetheart, paid $3.00 to win, $2.40 to place, and $2.20 to show. The place price on Orientalist was $8.80 with $3.80 to show, while Apogee paid $2.80 to show.

Sun Teddy earned $8,480 for owner Wright by capturing the Arlington handicap by a neck from Whereaway, owned by Anthony Pelleteri of New Orleans. Count Morse was third and Corinto fourth.

Sun Teddy was coupled with Count Morse as an entry and paid $13.00 to win $5.40 to place and $5.80 to show. The place price on Whereaway was $6.40 with $4.80 to show.

AMERICANS 'RAZZED' DURING OLYMPIC PARADE

Whistling Greets U. S. Team When Flag Isn't Dipped Before Hitler

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, attired in a brown uniform and smiling genially, formally launched the 11th Olympiad today amid ceremonies dazzlingly brilliant despite dripping skies marked by vividly contrasting demonstrations obviously fraught with political as well as sporting significance.

An overflow crowd of 105,000 packed the massive, double-decked concrete stadium to see the record-breaking gathering of nearly 4,500 athletes representing fifty nations take the Olympic oath during an impressive two-hour program splashed with color, rain drops and mass enthusiasm that reached its peak when French and Austrian athletes gave the Nazi salute while passing the chancellor's reviewing box.

The big United States delegation, surpassed in size only by the Germans who formed the procession as rear guard, was accorded a doubtful reception. Changing plans suddenly overnight to avoid the appearance of giving only a modified Nazi salute under the original intentions to extend arms with hats in hand, the Americans reverted to the former custom of doffing their hats and placing them over the heart while giving "eyes right."

This change, coupled with traditional obedience to regulations barring the American flag from being dipped, apparently contributed to the character of the crowds' reception which was noisily enthusiastic but not comparable with the welcome accorded those who seemed entirely willing to adopt the slogan: "When in Rome do as the Romans do."

Last of the visiting delegations in the procession and followed only by the Germans, the Americans received an even bigger hand going out of the stadium than coming in when they were welcomed with a noisy whistling reception which some European observers suggested was tantamount to the European "raspberries."

There was considerable difference of opinion in the press box as to what section in the stadium the whistling came from. Some thought it came from several thousand American spectators, while others believed it came from a section which included several hundred "brown shirts" who resented the fact that Americans re-donned their straw hats while the band was playing the "Horst Wessel," the Nazi marching song.

Other observers declared the Americans weren't aware that Germany now has two national anthems and seemed to have thought they had done their full duty by "deutschland uber alles." The reason for the abrupt termination of the inward greeting of the Americans was said to be due to German spectators' anxiety to cheer their own heroes.

Spain's withdrawal of her entire team overnight due to uncertainties growing out of the current revolution, and the partial scratching of Brazilian entries as an aftermath to an internal squabble between rival factions seeking to designate entries in three sports—rowing, swimming and track—reduced the Olympic ranks at the eleventh hour.

Elaborately staged, the all-day civic celebration, which started at gray dawn, was marked by Chancellor Hitler's announcement that his government would underwrite the completion of ancient Olympic excavations in Greece. This led to a smashing stadium climax featured by the crowds' reaction to the varying salutes given by parading officials and athletes.

Wildest manifestations were evoked among onlookers as nearly half of the delegations, numbering twenty-four, gave varying forms of the Nazi salute with right arms extended upraised in contrast with "eyes right" given by most of the remaining paraders.

The United States was one of four nations not dipping their flags, the others being Bulgaria, Iceland and India which did not manifest a salute of any kind while passing Hitler's reviewing stand. Great Britain was among 21 nations giving "eyes right," but her dominions were by no means in agreement as to just what was the proper thing for the ceremonial sporting occasion.

The fluctuating popular demonstrations reached a crescendo when the French athletes, duplicating their gesture at the winter Olympics at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, outstretched their hands.

Hitler, who stood throughout the parade returning national salutes, repeatedly acknowledged France's friendly greeting while thunderous cheers virtually rocked the stadium. The demonstration was repeated for the athletes of Austria, where not so long ago anyone detected giving the Nazi salute was liable to imprisonment.

Only four leaders of the Czechoslovakian delegation gave the Nazi salute while the rest of the group turned their faces toward Hitler.

The highest Olympic traditions were upheld by the spectacle which even the weather aided after threatening early gestures. The last big shower fell just before Chancellor Hitler entered the stadium with high Nazi officials, Count Henri Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic committee, and the remainder of the top-hatted international committeemen.

The rain held off throughout the spectacular parade and the formalities which included a speech by Dr. Theodor Lewald, president of the German organizing committee, Hitler's proclamation opening the games, the blond German Olympic middle weight weight-lifting champion, Rudolf Ismayr's taking the oath in behalf of all athletes, and the picturesque lighting of the Olympic fire by the German runner bearing the torch ceremoniously relayed from Olympia, Greece.

Even drab skies tried apologetically to break apart as guns boomed, 30,000 pigeons were released, a chorus of 1,500 voices resounded with the thrilling strains of the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah," and trumpeting fanfare then accompanied Hitler's departure from the stadium.

Hitler was presented to the overflow throng by Dr. Lewald, who paid tribute to the chancellor "in gratitude and veneration for the wonderful stadium built according to your will."

"The amateur principle is exalted and holy," he asserted. "Only if it is kept such is it worthy of being advanced by all governments and peoples, and only then does it deserve the enthusiasm of youth and the participation of old age."

Hitler's part in the ceremony was brief but impressive. As tomb-like silence fell over the massive assemblage, he said:

"I declare the games of Berlin in celebration of the 11th Olympiad of modern times have opened."

While guns boomed and the pigeons were released, and the national flags were grouped, the American and Brazilian remaining undipped, Ismayr took the Olympic oath. The oath reads:

"We swear we will take part in the Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations which govern them and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and for the glory of sports."

As the German runner, Werner Schilgen, sped across the field to light the Olympic fire in the receptacle erected in the open gateway, Louys, the veteran Greek marathoner, presented an olive branch to Hitler who smiled and saluted as Luoys said:

"I herewith give you this olive twig from Olympia as a symbol of love and peace. We sincerely wish that the natiins may meet each other in peaceful and friendly competitions like the Olympics."

OPINION DIVIDED

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A debate over whether the American delegation received the German equivalent of the "Bronx cheer" shortly after passing Chancellor Hitler in the parade of the nations, opened the 11th Olympiad, shook the press section as the athletes left the Olympic stadium today.

Dozens of groups argued the question of whether the outburst of whistling in the "right field" bleachers was meant the way it sounded in German ears. The American marchers, thankfully, were blissfully ignorant of the fact that whistling is the German's favorite method of expressing disapproval.

Nazi officials paled when the first bird-like notes smote their ears, but if Uncle Sam's athletes heard the short-lived demonstration, they probably thought they were being given an extra big hand.

At that, there still is a question whether the whistling emanated from Germans, possibly disgruntled because the American standard-bearer, Alfred Jochim of Union City, N. J., failed to dip the American flag, or from enthusiastic American spectators of whom there were several thousand.

A score of American, British and German newspapermen as well as spectators were asked their opinion and were about evenly divided on the delicate question.

One prominent German journalist was positive the warbling was of the barbed variety, but said: "You must excuse them because they don't understand America's rule that its flag must not be dipped."

U. S. Athletes Fare Well In Drawing For First Heats

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Eleanor Holm Jarrett, mermaid prodigy of a decade ago and wife of a singing orchestra leader, the 22-year-old matron who incurred the ire of the United States Olympic committee by breaking training rules, is noted principally for breaking backstroke swim records.

Since she won a place on the 1928 Olympic team at the age of 14, the fun-loving Eleanor, who grew up in Brooklyn, has been known as the world's fastest dorsal mermaid, movie actress in "bit" parts, singer and one of the few to win membership on three United States Olympic squads.

Representing the New York Women's Swimming association, Eleanor Holm won the American Olympic trials for the 100-meter backstroke and was winner of the third heat in the Olympic games at Amsterdam eight years ago.

Then in the finals she finished fifth, behind Marion Gilman of the United States, who had done no better than third in the American tryouts.

In the next few years, Miss Holm wrecked water marks right and left and in 1932 at Los Angeles she won the Olympic 100-meter backstroke in record time.

Movie contracts for parts in which she was not required to appear as a swimmer (in order that she would not lose her amateur standing as Helene Madison of Seattle did after the 1932 Olympics) came then and Eleanor had a brief fling in pictures.

However, she never filled a major role. In September, 1933, she married Arthur Jarrett, the singing baton-waver, a Brooklyn boy.

The couple traveled with his music-makers and Mrs. Jarrett appeared at times as a singer with the orchestra. She began to regard swimming as merely a pastime rather than a serious business; but then she came out of semi-retirement to break more records in her campaign for a place on the 1936 Olympic team.

The comely Kompa sisters of New York and others appeared as challengers to her dominance over the backstroke, but Eleanor conquered both and won her berth to Berlin with ease.

Mrs. Jarrett frankly stated that intensive training for swimming was both unnecessary and undesirable, so far as she was concerned. Declaring she liked parties and champagne, she said she and her husband lived a carefree life and that when swimming ceased to be fun she would give up competition.

RUSTON AT SWARTZ

SWARTZ, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—The Ruston Volunteers make a trip to Swartz Sunday to engage the Carbon Blackers in a double-header. Both are league games, and a large crowd is expected to see this bargain attraction.

The Volunteers came out of their slump last Wednesday by swamping the Hodge Papermakers, and are expected to give the first-half winners plenty of opposition. Most of the defeats suffered by the Vols in the second half have been by one or two runs, and the Carbon Blackers were lucky to nose out a victory in the last meeting of the two clubs.

Manager Fox will probably use Hinton and Johnson as his starting pitchers, while Manager Norman is expected to rely on the right-handed shoots of Junior Still and Red Ward. There will be no advance in the admission price. The first game will start at 2 o'clock.

BROWN AT STERLINGTON

The league-leading Brown Paper mill team will go to Sterlington this afternoon for a "crucial" battle with the Sterlington Engineers. The game is slated to start at 3:30 o'clock.

The Sterlington club has an opportunity to climb back into the race if they beat the Brownies today. A defeat would virtually eliminate the Engineers from the chase. The Brown club is undefeated in the second half and will be trying to maintain that perfect record today.

The Engineers will start either Brooks or Cranford against the league leaders, while Manager Steed probably will choose either Mayes or Pittard in an attempt to continue his winning streak.

Sterlington is expected to have its full strength available for today's game. The Engineers have been riddled with injuries for the past six weeks but the hospital list is about wiped away.

JESUITS WHIP ALEXANDRIA FOR STATE LEGION TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—New Orleans Jesuit Blue Jays captured the American Legion junior baseball championship of Louisiana for the eighth time today by trouncing Alexandria for the second straight day, 19 to 7.

The victory qualifies the New Orleans team for regional play. The Jays will meet the winner of the Texas playoff Friday between Houston and Crockett.

A howling crowd of 3,500 witnessed the game, which was the Blue Jays from the start. The victors rapped out 19 hits, every man on the team getting at least one safety. In the third inning they piled up ten runs.

Score by innings:

New Orleans	1	1	(10)	4	1	0	2	0	0	19	19	2
Alexandria	0	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	4	7	12	3

Four Veterans And Triple-Threat Quarterback Must Be Replaced

NATCHITOCHES, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—As time draws near for training of the 1936 edition of the Louisiana State Normal college football squad of 34 players who have been invited to report here September 1, the task of replacing four veteran linemen and a triple-threat quarterback lost through graduation is the most serious problem to face Coaches Harry (Rags) Turpin and Joe Aillet.

Several experienced seniors will be lost to the squad, but the Normal eleven will be weakened more by the loss of regular players on both terminals, a tackle, a center, and at the signal calling position. Although the Normal mentors have asked 34 players to return for pre-season practice, the group includes only 11 lettermen, which makes their task even more difficult to fulfill.

With the exception of the quarterback position, the Normal backfield candidates are the strongest to be in line for duty in several seasons. Led by 210-pound Mixon Bankston, who ran rough-shod over Demon opponents in the closing games of the 1935 season, the list of ball-carrying candidates includes 10 players.

In the line, Coaches Turpin and Aillet will have a most promising group of sophomore candidates. Ranging in weight from 180 to 210 pounds, the varsity newcomers will probably furnish plenty of intra-squad competition for the nine veteran linemen who are expected to return.

AMERICANS DRAW SOFT BERTHS IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

Woodruff Only Member Of Team Facing Stiff Opposition Today

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—All Americans, except for John Hughey Woodruff, lanky Pittsburgh negro 800-meter star, drew comparatively soft berths today when the International Amateur Athletic federation, reversing a previous decision, announced the draw for preliminary heats in the Olympic 100-meter dash and 800-meter run.

Woodruff, just an obscure schoolboy miler a year ago and now America's metric half-mile sensation, was placed in the fourth heat with Erik Ny of Sweden, Dr. Paul Martin, Switzerland's five-time Olympian; Gerald Backhouse, Australian "dark horse," Szabo, the fleet-footed Hungarian, and four others. The first four in each heat tomorrow will qualify for the semi-finals Monday afternoon.

Charles (Chuck) Hornbostel of Evansville, Ind., and Harry Williamson of High Point, N. C., drew much easier assignments. Hornbostel was drawn in the first heat, while Williamson was placed in the second along with Telleri of Finland.

Jesse Owens, coffee-colored Ohio State sprinter and jumper, who will attempt to duplicate Paava Nurmi's feat of scoring three "firsts" in one set of Olympic games, was drawn in the last heat of the 100-meter dash. The field for this event attracted 68 sprinters. All favorites were well-seeded. The first two in each heat tomorrow morning will qualify for the quarter-finals in the afternoon.

Owens, who also will compete in the 200-meter sprint and the broad jump in which he is the new world record holder at 26 feet 8 1-4 inches, was matched against K. Sasaki of Japan, J. De Almeida of Brazil, Cassar of Malta and Devrint of Belgium for his Olympic debut.

Ralph Metcalfe, Chicago negro and co-holder of the world record at 10.3 seconds, was drawn in the seventh heat along with Sir, the Hungarian star; Guzman of the Philippines; Guitierre of Mexico and two others.

Making his third straight Olympic appearance, Frank Wykoff of Carpenteria, Calif., will match strides with Fondeville of Argentina; A. S. Sweeney of Great Brtain and three Europeans.

The athletic program tomorrow will be launched with the start of five sports—Track and field, wrestling, fencing, field hockey and the modern pentathlon performers who will engage in an equestrian cross-country race at 9 a. m. (3 a. m. eastern standard time.

An hour later preliminary heats in the men's 100-meter dash, the high jump and the shot put will be held, followed by fencing, wrestling and field hockey.

Americans in the shot put, which will be decided in the afternoon are big Jack Torrance of Baton Rouge, La., Sam Francis, left-handed Lincoln, Neb., entry, and Dimitri Zaitz of Boston.

Cornelius Johnson of Los Angeles and Davie Albritton of Cleveland, negro co-claimants of the world record of six feet nine and 3-4 inches, and Delos Thurder of Los Angeles, are among the contestants for high jumpp honors, which also will be decided in the afternoon.

The 10,000 meters run will be decided in one race with Indiana's Don Lash heading the American trio which includes Eino Pentti of New York and Stanley Wudyka of Philadelphia.

One women's championship, the javelin throw, will be contested.

Stone was used for telegraph poles in India before iron came into use. Wood cannot be used on account of white ants.

TODAY'S PROGRAM

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The program for the opening day of competition in the Olympic games tomorrow:

(Subtract seven hours for central standard time).

9 a. m.—Modern pentathlon, cross country run.

11 a. m. and 6 p. m.—Catch-as-catch-can wrestling preliminaries.

10:30 a. m. and 3 p. m.—Track and field, 100 meters first trials; high jump trials, shot put trials (all morning), 100 meters second trials, women's javeline final, high jump final, 800 meters run trials, shot put final, 10,000 meters run final.

3 p. m. and 8 p. m.—Fencing, men's foils preliminaries.

8 p. m.—Weight lifting, featherweight and lightweight finals.

WESTENBERG MEETS KARL DAVIS TUESDAY

Tough Entry Comes Here To Subdue Titleholder; Bashara Meets League

Karl Davis, master showman of wrestling circles, will meet Marvin Westenberg, southern heavyweight champion, in the feature match of the weekly wrestling card at Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night, Promoter Phillip Lisotta announced last night.

Davis will be brought here in an effort to subdue the burly Westenberg, who has been running roughshod over his opponents at the local arena, Lisotta said. Davis has a reputation as one of the roughest grapplers in the business.

Wrestling fans of the southwest well remember Davis' last invasion of this territory. He engaged in one bloody battle after another, apparently willing to take plenty of punishment in order to get over a damaging punch on his foe. He's strictly a roughhouse brawler.

The tough Texan wrestled here a number of months ago and gave the fans a rousing performance. He battered his opponent into submission and was smeared with the gore of his victim when it was all over. Davis knows all the tricks of the game and he's a fast worker.

Westenberg recently abandoned his scientific tactics and has shown the other side of wrestling in his recent matches here. Whether he will attempt to beat Davis legally or resort to fouls to gain his victory remains to be seen. He can step with the best of 'em at either game.

Lisotta said a number of stadium fans have asked that the best man available be brought here against Westenberg. Marvin, and some of his supporters here, have formed the idea that the champ can't be beaten in the local ring. The promoter finally got in touch with Davis and signed him for the match.

"I believe Davis is the toughest wrestler ever to show here," Lisotta said. "He certainly should be able to give Westenberg the stiffest fight the champion has had in Monroe. I believe he'll be able to take care of him."

As the semi-final attraction, Lisotta has booked Ellis Bashara, the tough Oklahoman, and Jack League, a newcomer who is said to be a rising figure in the wrestling world. League has had plenty of experience but only recently developed into a spectacular workman. He's touted as being on his way to the top. He's a clever, scientific performer but can mix it with his fists when necessary.

Bashara, of course, is well known here, having been a fixture on local cards for the past few months.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls, with the main event having a two-hour time limit and the semi-final limited to one hour.

"Butch" Martin will referee both matches, J. B. Swanson will make the announcements and Mike Tarver will keep time.

BUDDY MYER MAY RETIRE FROM BASEBALL FOR YEAR

DETROIT, Aug. 1. — (AP) — Buddy Myer, Washington infielder and 1935 American league batting champion, said today he may quit baseball for the rest of the year because of poor health.

Field captain of the Senators, Myer has played in only a few games during the last two months. He has been bothered by a stomach ailment.

"I won't make a final decision until the team returns to Washington next week," Myer said. "I want to talk with Mr. Griffith (Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats) first."

TIGERS TROUNCE NATS

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Tigers went into third place today, downing Washington 13 to 4 in a slugging spree led by Al Simmons, who hit two home runs and two singles in five times at bat.

Ray Hayworth, Detroit catcher, who hasn't hit a home run since 1929, got one today, scoring two men ahead of him.

Roxie Lawson went the route for Detroit. He was threatened only in the ninth when Sabo and Hill singled, Chapman walked and Joe Kuhel doubled, three runs scoring.

CHISOX BLANK RED SOX

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Bill Dietrich, bespectacled right-hander who was picked up on waivers by the White Sox 12 days ago, allowed only two Boston Red Sox to get on base today and the Chicagoans evened the series with a 3 to 0 victory.

Roger Cramer singled with one out in the fourth and Manager Joe Cronin doubled with one away in the fifth. Dietrich walked none. It was his second victory in as many starts for the White Sox and his sixth triumph as against seven defeats for the season.

The White Sox peppered Johnny Marcum for ten singles, three of them by Zeke Bonura, whose first blow drove in two of the runs in the first inning.

Leroy Parmelee and Walker, but they combined these with nine bases on balls, a hit batsman and three errors at critical moments.

GIANTS BLANK PIRATES

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Lefty Al Smith pitched his fourth shutout and his tenth victory of the year today, letting the Pittsburgh Pirates down with five hits as the Giants clubbed Cy Blanton and Mace Browns for a 6 to 0 victory.

The win was the Giants' 14th in their last 18 games, and left them just five games back of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

Dick Bartell's fifth homer of the year, with a mate on base in the third inning, and a four-run rally on five hits which sent Blanton to the showers in the fifth sewed up the game for the New Yorkers.

LIVERMORE LOVER UNABLE TO KAYO MEDIOCRE SETUPS

Critics Fear Former Champion Is Losing Once Powerful Punch

By John J. Romano

Max Baer is being severely criticized for his inability to knock out the poor lot of opponents being set up for him in his tour of the southwest. Baer goes in for a good bit of clowning as he makes the lumbering heavies miss him with ponderous swings. Once in a while Baer misjudges the arc of the swing and receives a bruise on his cheek bone. Instead of rushing in and halting his opponent with a crushing blow, Max goes into a clinch and laughs his way out of trouble.

Is Baer losing his once powerful punch?

The Californian answers that question himself. "I don't think the fans have any real idea the boys I am boxing can really give me any trouble. There is no use hurting them just to satisfy a few who like to see a boy punished. They want a show and I give it to them. I think they would rather see me box a few rounds than halt a boy with one punch.

"Here's another thing the critics fail to consider," the Livermore lothario went on. "Do you know how easy it is for me to break my hand on a hard head? Don't forget I had a badly damaged hand just before my fight with Joe Louis. It didn't help me a little bit even in training. I have a long way getting back to the top, and a broken hand is not going to help matters at this time."

Favors Right Hand

Max Baer was telling the truth. It is noticeable when he boxes that he favors the right hand a great deal. He rarely strikes at the head and confines his punching to the soft body. If Baer was as vicous as he was when he made his first eastern tour, he would have at least a dezon opponents in the hospital.

Rivals selected for him are half-whipped by fear before they enter the ring. In attempting to guard against Baer's blows they cover their faces with their arms and turn sideways to avoid being hit. Exposing their kidneys and short ribs in this manner is crass folly. If Baer was the least inclined to finish the setto in quick fashion he could put his weight behind one blow, and the resulting impact would make the receiver a patient for the nearest hospital. Baer knows this, but refrains from taking advantage of such an opening even though goaded by the taunts of the fans.

Crack At Ex-Gob

Ancil Hoffman makes no bones about telling all who will listen to him that he wants a crack at Schmeling before the latter fights champion Jimmy Braddock. It makes good publicity. The truth of the matter is Hoffman and Baer want Jack Sharkey above all other opponents. They have been watching the come-back efforts of the former champion with interest.

They were visibly impressed and elated upon reading that young Phil Brubaker scored a first round knockdown over the ex-sailor. Baer chuckled when the news was read to him and smiled broadly when Hoffman expressed the hope that the match between the two former champions would be made.

Sharkey's manager is willing to listen to a guarantee of a mere $90,000 for the Baer fight. This means a meeting between Baer and Sharkey is as far off as when the pair were on top of the fistic world and were never brought together.

Baer is not breaking his hands on hamdonnies. Put Jack Sharkey in front of him, and you can safely wager California Max will forget all about broken bones when he swings one in the direction of Boston Jack.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

The Alexandria Aces strengthened their Evangeline league lead Saturday by trouncing the second-place Opelousas Indians, 6 to 3.

Lee of the Aces shaded Moore on the mound. He gave up one more hit than the Indian hurler, but kept the seven bingles he allowed well scattered.

The Rayne Rice Birds hopped on the offerings of Roberts and Chenowith for a 9 to 1 win over Jeanerette. Demoran, Rayne ace, held the Blues to five safeties.

The hapless Lake Charles club bowed again to Abbeville, 13 to 5. The winners collected 18 blows off Williamson and Love, scoring in every inning but the first and seventh.

The Lafayette Sox bested New Iberia, 6 to 2, in a game featuring the air-tight pitching of Wisenbon.

fishing FACTS and Fancies

By F. L. McCulley

Big Horseshoe lake and Workman's bayou in Concordia parish were the places picked out for a fishing vacation of several days by Malcolm Menefee, Jessie James, Gene Arnold, Albert Thibeaux, Clyde Pohl and Mr. Shelton. Good sport was enjoyed by every one of the party and a new record was established by Gene Arnold who claimed to have caught the smallest fish ever to be taken on hook and line. The little fellow was even smaller than the hook he was caught on. Sounds like a record even if the catch was not intentional.

The party reported plenty of bass, bream and white perch and listed shiners as best for white perch, worms for bream and yellow poppin' bugs for bass.

Good camping facilities are offered at Big Horseshoe lake and fishermen of that immediate vicinity assert that fishing there will be excellent for some time to come. Expert advice as to the best fishing spots is easily obtained at the camping ground, and is invariably accurate.

When informed of Gene Arnold's small fish record, Charles Sisson related that he had frequently caught fish so small that a hook was never used, a worm being allowed to dangle in the water and after a time gently brought to the surface and tiny fish shaken off from the coiled up angle worm. Anyway, Arnold got the fish and it would seem that Sisson takes the record for his small fish story.

The waters of Black bayou yielded 19 black bass to the angling prowess of Herbert Fink and Max Fink, Jr., recently. These two fishermen used shimmy wiggler lures in taking this nice string. One bass in particular weighed six pounds and seven ounces after being gutted. The Fink brothers said there was not a small one in the entire day's catch.

Oliver Turle and Frank Stoddard reported excellent fishing on the Ouachita river recently, having taken 17 bass in early morning hours while fishing near the shoreline. Turle and Stoddard used small surface plugs with a finish closely resembling shad. Eight of the smallest fish weighed 25 pounds even while still wet. The largest bass, which fell a victim to Turle's rod, weighed seven pounds while wet. This fish struck while the angler was balanced on a leg and yanked Turle into the water, where the real battle commenced. Stoddard and Turle used nine-pound test lines in taking their nice catch of river bass, and both are authority for the statement that five-pound bigmouth will not pull over seven or eight pounds if in water where there is no obstruction such as logs, stumps, etc.

G. S. Lattery and "Peck" Simmons spent a whole day on Black bayou after white perch and brought in 11 of this species and three extra large bream, which, both fishermen said, were taken with shiners as bait. Bait casting by Lattery resulted in one strike, which was made on a black and white shimmy wiggler. Simmons says he will make a bait caster de luxe of Lattery if he will just stick with it.

Ernest Morton tells this column he has tried faithfully and in dead earnest to take fish with artificial lures for some two months but is now about ready to call it quits and take up the cane pole method. "I know I can get 'em that way," Morton declared, "but I would like to get just one two-pound bass on an artificial lure."

Tom Walton, Jr., caught a six-pound grinnell recently and asks if the species grows any larger. The writer has heard of, but never seen, specimens said to run better than 11 pounds. And by the way, the grinnell or cypress trout, goes under the monicker of dogfish in lots of other states. They have been known to strike on plugs, spoons and metal lures of all kinds.

Fish must be cleaned thoroughly in addition to being iced if they are to be kept for any length of time during hot weather. Several local fishermen say rhubard leaves will help a great deal to retain the color of both bream and bass in hot weather. They very likely get their idea from fishermen in the eastern states who use this method for brook trout. Just an idea to pass along, but try to secure rhubarb leaves. That would probably be about as hard as catching fish is for some anglers, including the writer.

A nice specimen of smallmouth was taken in Lake Bartholomew the past week by Miss Ninetta Colquitt. The little lady was with her father and begged to make one cast "like you do, Daddy." She was rewarded by getting a pound and a half fish. Colquitt was as excited as his little daughter, according to Mrs. Colquitt, who viewed the fun from the bank.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION

VOLS WALLOP SMOKIES

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A six-hit, six-run rally in the fifth inning, including a home run by Jimmie Outlaw with two ahead, featured Nashville's easy 11 to 5 victory over Knoxville today. It gave the Vols the series, 2 to 1. Seven errors by the Smokies aided the Vol cause. Manager Caldwell of Knoxville hit a homer in the seventh with two on—his first of the season.

DISCOVERY WINS SARATOGA 'CAP

Vanderbilt Star Boosts Earnings To $184,312; Reaping Reward Wins

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Discovery, generally acclaimed America's greatest thoroughbred, and Reaping Reward, a two year old which has yet to win his spurs, paraded home like real champions today to win the twin features races as Saratoga played host to upwards of 15,000 racing fans.

Carrying 132 pounds, his lightest impost since failing in the Santa Anita handicap in February, Discovery flew Alfred G. Vanderbilt's silks to the front in the 34th Saratoga handicap.

Reaping Reward, one of the many star juveniles from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Chicago-owned milkyway farm, soundly whipped nine others of his age in the 34th running of the United States hotel stakes.

In contrast to his usual style of running, Discovery set all the pace to win the purse of $8,350 and boost his total earnings to $184,312.

Reaping Reward, sent east while his more highly regarded stablemate, Case Ace, stayed in Chicago to win the richer Arlington futurity, had little trouble winning the $8,225 prize.

The son Sickle pulled away in the stretch to beat Vanderbilt's Avage by three lengths and pay the long odds of 12 to 1.

STU MARTIN SUSPENDED FOR BREAKING TRAINING

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Stuart Martin, Cardinal second baseman who became incapacitated July 17 because of illness, has been suspended indefinitely for breaking training rules, a bulletin from the office of Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis disclosed today.

Martin recently left a hospital here and is expected to be ready to play again when the Cardinals return from their current road trip. When he is fit for duty the suspension will be lifted.

Tough Entry Comes Here To Subdue Titleholder; Bashara Meets League

Karl Davis, master showman of wrestling circles, will meet Marvin Westenberg, southern heavyweight champion, in the feature match of the weekly wrestling card at Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night, Promoter Phillip Lisotta announced last night.

Davis will be brought here in an effort to subdue the burly Westenberg, who has been running roughshod over his opponents at the local arena, Lisotta said. Davis has a reputation as one of the roughest grapplers in the business.

Wrestling fans of the southwest well remember Davis' last invasion of this territory. He engaged in one bloody battle after another, apparently willing to take plenty of punishment in order to get over a damaging punch on his foe. He's strictly a roughhouse brawler.

The tough Texan wrestled here a number of months ago and gave the fans a rousing performance. He battered his opponent into submission and was smeared with the gore of his victim when it was all over. Davis knows all the tricks of the game and he's a fast worker.

Westenberg recently abandoned his scientific tactics and has shown the other side of wrestling in his recent matches here. Whether he will attempt to beat Davis legally or resort to fouls to gain his victory remains to be seen. He can step with the best of 'em at either game.

Lisotta said a number of stadium fans have asked that the best man available be brought here against Westenberg. Marvin, and some of his supporters here, have formed the idea that the champ can't be beaten in the local ring. The promoter finally got in touch with Davis and signed him for the match.

"I believe Davis is the toughest wrestler ever to show here," Lisotta said. "He certainly should be able to give Westenberg the stiffest fight the champion has had in Monroe. I believe he'll be able to take care of him."

As the semi-final attraction, Lisotta has booked Ellis Bashara, the tough Oklahoman, and Jack League, a newcomer who is said to be a rising figure in the wrestling world. League has had plenty of experience but only recently developed into a spectacular workman. He's touted as being on his way to the top. He's a clever, scientific performer but can mix it with his fists when necessary.

Bashara, of course, is well known here, having been a fixture on local cards for the past few months.

Both matches will be best two out of three falls, with the main event having a two-hour time limit and the semi-final limited to one hour.

"Butch" Martin will referee both matches. J. B. Swanson will make the announcements and Mike Tarver will keep time.

BUDDY MYER MAY RETIRE FROM BASEBALL FOR YEAR

DETROIT, Aug. 1. — (AP) — Buddy Myer, Washington infielder and 1935 American league batting champion, said today he may quit baseball for the rest of the year because of poor health.

Field captain of the Senators, Myer has played in only a few games during the last two months. He has been bothered by a stomach ailment.

"I won't make a final decision until the team returns to Washington next week," Myer said. "I want to talk with Mr. Griffith (Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats) first."

Ivy Paul Andrews held the Mackmen to four hits until the ninth, but two singles, Higgins' double, Niemiec's triple and two Brownie misplays snapped what threatened to be the longest St. Louis winning streak this season at three straight.

The victory left Philadelphia in the cellar 11-2 games behind the Browns.

TIGERS TROUNCE NATS

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Tigers went into third place today, downing Washington 13 to 4 in a slugging spree led by Al Simmons, who hit two home runs and two singles in five times at bat.

Ray Hayworth, Detroit catcher, who hasn't hit a home run since 1929, got one today, scoring two men ahead of him.

Roxie Lawson went the route for Detroit. He was threatened only in the ninth when Sabo and Hill singled, Chapman walked and Joe Kuhel doubled, three runs scoring.

CHISOX BLANK RED SOX

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Bill Dietrich, bespectacled right-hander who was picked up on waivers by the White Sox 12 days ago, allowed only two Boston Red Sox to get on base today and the Chicagoans evened the series with a 3 to 0 victory.

Roger Cramer singled with one out in the fourth and Manager Joe Cronin doubled with one away in the fifth. Dietrich walked none. It was his second victory in as many starts for the White Sox and his sixth triumph as against seven defeats for the season.

The White Sox peppered Johnny Marcum for ten singles, three of them by Zeke Bonura, whose first blow drove in two of the runs in the first inning.

Leroy Parmelee and Walker, but they combined these with nine bases on balls, a hit batsman and three errors at critical moments.

GIANTS BLANK PIRATES

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Lefty Al Smith pitched his fourth shutout and his tenth victory of the year today, letting the Pittsburgh Pirates down with five hits as the Giants clubbed Cy Blanton and Mace Browns for a 6 to 0 victory.

The win was the Giants' 14th in their last 18 games, and left them just five games back of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

Dick Bartell's fifth homer of the year, with a mate on base in the third inning, and a four-run rally on five hits which sent Blanton to the showers in the fifth sewed up the game for the New Yorkers.

LIVERMORE LOVER UNABLE TO KAYO MEDIOCRE SETUPS

By John J. Romano

Max Baer is being severely criticized for his inability to knock out the poor lot of opponents being set up for him in his tour of the southwest. Baer goes in for a good bit of clowning as he makes the lumbering heavies miss him with ponderous swings. Once in a while Baer misjudges the arc of the swing and receives a bruise on his cheek bone. Instead of rushing in and halting his opponent with a crushing blow, Max goes into a clinch and laughs his way out of trouble.

Is Baer losing his once powerful punch?

The Californian answers that question himself. "I don't think the fans have any real idea the boys I am boxing can really give me any trouble. There is no use hurting them just to satisfy a few who like to see a boy punished. They want a show and I give it to them. I think they would rather see me box a few rounds than halt a boy with one punch.

"Here's another thing the critics fail to consider," the Livermore lothario went on. "Do you know how easy it is for me to break my hand on a hard head? Don't forget I had a badly damaged hand just before my fight with Joe Louis. It didn't help me a little bit even in training. I have a long way getting back to the top, and a broken hand is not going to help matters at this time."

Favors Right Hand

Max Baer was telling the truth. It is noticeable when he boxes that he favors the right hand a great deal. He rarely strikes at the head and confines his punching to the soft body. If Baer was as vicous as he was when he made his first eastern tour, he would have at least a dezon opponents in the hospital.

Rivals selected for him are half-whipped by fear before they enter the ring. In attempting to guard against Baer's blows they cover their faces with their arms and turn sideways to avoid being hit. Exposing their kidneys and short ribs in this manner is crass folly. If Baer was the least inclined to finish the setto in quick fashion he could put his weight behind one blow, and the resulting impact would make the receiver a patient for the nearest hospital. Baer knows this, but refrains from taking advantage of such an opening even though goaded by the taunts of the fans.

Crack At Ex-Gob

Ancil Hoffman makes no bones about telling all who will listen to him that he wants a crack at Schmeling before the latter fights champion Jimmy Braddock. It makes good publicity. The truth of the matter is Hoffman and Baer want Jack Sharkey above all other opponents. They have been watching the come-back efforts of the former champion with interest.

They were visibly impressed and elated upon reading that young Phil Brubaker scored a first round knockdown over the ex-sailor. Baer chuckled when the news was read to him and smiled broadly when Hoffman expressed the hope that the match between the two former champions would be made.

Sharkey's manager is willing to listen to a guarantee of a mere $90,000 for the Baer fight. This means a meeting between Baer and Sharkey is as far off as when the pair were on top of the fistic world and were never brought together.

Baer is not breaking his hands on hamdonnies. Put Jack Sharkey in front of him, and you can safely wager California Max will forget all about broken bones when he swings one in the direction of Boston Jack.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

The Alexandria Aces strengthened their Evangeline league lead Saturday by trouncing the second-place Opelousas Indians, 6 to 3.

Lee of the Aces shaded Moore on the mound. He gave up one more hit than the Indian hurler, but kept the seven bingles he allowed well scattered.

The Rayne Rice Birds hopped on the offerings of Roberts and Chenowith for a 9 to 1 win over Jeanerette. Demoran, Rayne ace, held the Blues to five safeties.

The hapless Lake Charles club bowed again to Abbeville, 13 to 5. The winners collected 18 blows off Williamson and Love, scoring in every inning but the first and seventh.

The Lafayette Sox bested New Iberia, 6 to 2, in a game featuring the air-tight pitching of Wisenbon.

Scores by innings:

Abbeville	011	113	015—13 18 1
Lake Charles	000	003	200— 5 9 2

By F. L. McCulley

Big Horseshoe lake and Workman's bayou in Concordia parish were the places picked out for a fishing vacation of several days by Malcolm Menefee, Jessie James, Gene Arnold, Albert Thibeaux, Clyde Pohl and Mr. Shelton. Good sport was enjoyed by every one of the party and a new record was established by Gene Arnold who claimed to have caught the smallest fish ever to be taken on hook and line. The little fellow was even smaller than the hook he was caught on. Sounds like a record even if the catch was not intentional.

The party reported plenty of bass, bream and white perch and listed shiners as best for white perch, worms for bream and yellow poppin' bugs for bass.

Good camping facilities are offered at Big Horseshoe lake and fishermen of that immediate vicinity assert that fishing there will be excellent for some time to come. Expert advice as to the best fishing spots is easily obtained at the camping ground, and is invariably accurate.

When informed of Gene Arnold's small fish record, Charles Sisson related that he had frequently caught fish so small that a hook was never used, a worm being allowed to dangle in the water and after a time gently brought to the surface and tiny fish shaken off from the coiled up angle worm. Anyway, Arnold got the fish and it would seem that Sisson takes the record for his small fish story.

The waters of Black bayou yielded 19 black bass to the angling prowess of Herbert Fink and Max Fink, Jr., recently. These two fishermen used shimmy wiggler lures in taking this nice string. One bass in particular weighed six pounds and seven ounces after being gutted. The Fink brothers said there was not a small one in the entire day's catch.

Oliver Turle and Frank Stoddard reported excellent fishing on the Ouachita river recently, having taken 17 bass in early morning hours while fishing near the shoreline. Turle and Stoddard used small surface plugs with a finish closely resembling shad. Eight of the smallest fish weighed 25 pounds even while still wet. The largest bass, which fell a victim to Turle's rod, weighed seven pounds while wet. This fish struck while the angler was balanced on a leg and yanked Turle into the water, where the real battle commenced. Stoddard and Turle used nine-pound test lines in taking their nice catch of river bass, and both are authority for the statement that fivt-pound bigmouth will not pull over seven or eight pounds if in water where there is no obstruction such as logs, stumps, etc.

G. S. Lattery and "Peck" Simmons spent a whole day on Black bayou after white perch and brought in 11 of this species and three extra large bream, which, both fishermen said, were taken with shiners as bait. Bait casting by Lattery resulted in one strike, which was made on a black and white shimmy wiggler. Simmons says he will make a bait caster de luxe of Lattery if he will just stick with it.

Ernest Morton tells this column he has tried faithfully and in dead earnest to take fish with artificial lures for some two months but is now about ready to call it quits and take up the cane pole method. "I know I can get 'em that way," Morton declared, "but I would like to get just one two-pound bass on an artificial lure."

Tom Walton, Jr., caught a six-pound grinnell recently and asks if the species grows any larger. The writer has heard of, but never seen, specimens said to run better than 11 pounds. And by the way, the grinnell or cypress trout, goes under the monicker of dogfish in lots of other states. They have been known to strike on plugs, spoons and metal lures of all kinds.

Fish must be cleaned thoroughly in addition to being iced if they are to be kept for any length of time dur-

VOLS WALLOP SMOKIES

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP)—A six-hit, six-run rally in the fifth inning, including a home run by Jimmie Outlaw with two ahead, featured Nashville's easy 11 to 5 victory over Knoxville today. It gave the Vols the series, 2 to 1. Seven errors by the Smokies aided the Vol cause. Manager Caldwell of Knoxville hit a homer in the seventh with two on—his first of the season.

DISCOVERY WINS SARATOGA 'CAP

Vanderbilt Star Boosts Earnings To $184,312; Reaping Reward Wins

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Discovery, generally acclaimed America's greatest thoroughbred, and Reaping Reward, a two year old which has yet to win his spurs, paraded home like real champions today to win the twin features races as Saratoga played host to upwards of 15,000 racing fans.

Carrying 132 pounds, his lightest impost since failing in the Santa Anita handicap in February, Discovery flew Alfred G. Vanderbilt's silks to the front in the 34th Saratoga handicap. Reaping Reward, one of the many star juveniles from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Chicago-owned milkyway farm, soundly whipped nine others of his age in the 34th running of the United States hotel stakes.

In contrast to his usual style of running, Discovery set all the pace to win the purse of $8,350 and boost his total earnings to $184,312.

Reaping Reward, sent east while his more highly regarded stablemate, Case Ace, stayed in Chicago to win the richer Arlington futirity, had little trouble winning the $8,225 prize.

The son Sickle pulled away in the stretch to beat Vanderbilt's Avage by three lengths and pay the long odds of 12 to 1.

STU MARTIN SUSPENDED FOR BREAKING TRAINING

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Stuart Martin, Cardinal second baseman who became incapacitated July 17 because of illness, has been suspended indefinitely for breaking training rules, a bulletin from the office of Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis disclosed today.

Martin recently left a hospital here and is expected to be ready to play again when the Cardinals return from their current road trip. When he is fit for duty the suspension will be lifted.

Ann didn't quite realize what she was doing, but she found herself following the course the young man took. He walked a few blocks and entered the arcade of the tallest building in the city.

Just as he went into the smart travel bureau which occupied half of the ground floor she remembered who he was. He was Jaime Laird, a rich young man who followed the races from Hialeah to Santa Anita to Saratoga again. Ann thought that he must have been ill, for a man who followed the sun all the time as a vocation should have a tan complexion.

This was the travel office in which she had made arrangements for her vacations each of the past seven years. Ann hadn't intended planning her vacation today, but the sight of Jaime Laird in the bureau gave her an adventurous spur. She entered the room with its attractive travel displays, and waited while the fabulous Jaime Laird was served.

Ann stole furtive glances in the mirror as she waited. Her dark brown hair was parted at the side and waved back softly. Her face was radiant. Her blue eyes sparkled.

"I've just had an operation," Jaime Laird said to the clerk. "I want to go away for a rest—some quiet spot in the mountains."

Bill Ware's voice fairly glowed with enthusiasm now. "Why, I should think Lake Racine would be the very place! Swimming, boating, climbing. The Adirondacks are always cool—"

"But I have spent one vacation at Lake Racine," Ann said pertly. "I think I'll go to the seashore."

The young clerk took this rebuff calmly, and went on planning a trip to Lake Racine for her. He painted a word picture of the cool mountain lake, his voice mounting to a crescendo until it seemed that he was rhapsodizing the resort.

"Why, I just sold Lake Racine to Jaime Laird, the young sportsman whose pictures you see in the magazines. Not a minute ago. And he's been everywhere."

Bill Ware became so engrossed in talking about the charms of Lake Racine that he took up most of Ann's luncheon hour. When she mentioned the seashore he seemed almost to hate the idea of waves rolling in on a lonely shore. Sands were always lonely, he thought. For the first time in Bill Ware's business career he talked a resort down, thereby perpetrating a breach of ethics. The manager would have said that something

"Of course not!" Ann said. "It merely saves me time. He's only the clerk there. No romance about him. I'm going to the seashore to catch my knight in shining armor."

Alice let William Ware in. Ann could tell by her glance that she approved of him. But young Mr. Ware was very business-like with his satchel. He went to the desk-table and started taking out folders and leaflets, arranging them in neat rows. His manner was brisk.

Beginning A Story About A Girl Whose Vacation Didn't Work Out Exactly As Planned

A Sparkling New Serial Of Summer Romance And Adventure, Written By Deck Morgan

"I've been selling you vacations for a long time, haven't I?" he said.

Chapter I

Ann Hamilton held herself erect as she walked down the avenue. There was new life in the air, reflected in the quickened step and eager eye of every passerby. The boys and girls, strolling during their lunch hour, were well-dressed and confident. The summer heat had not yet begun. Under the cloudless blue overhead the colors were gay. Life was gay.

"Spring on Silk Stocking avenue in any city in the world!" Ann thought, with a sensation of joy. She felt like singing this refrain. The words had a lilt to them.

She stopped before a shop window to admire some brown suits and yellow sweaters. "For travel," a card said. There was a profusion of travel advertisements and booklets in the display. Vacation in the Adirondacks. Dude ranch days. The Minnesota lakes. The Catskills. Les Cotes D'Azur.

Ann looked at the attractive posters and sighed.

Each year in July she looked at travel advertisements and sighed just this way. What person doesn't, she thought, look ahead longingly to a summer vacation?

Ann's secretarial job kept her busy all year. Her annual vacation kept her keen on living, and brought her back eager for the job again. And each year she seemed to live her vacation more intensely, both in her dreams, and in reality. She was 26, and she had made her own way in the world for exactly seven years.

When she glanced into the show window mirrors, conscious of her dark good looks and trim figure, she saw a young man looking at the travel folders, almost over her shoulder.

She noticed that he wore soft, expensive woolens and carried a downy polo coat over his arm. His collar was snug and high. The very crush in his hat was redolent of good taste and luxury. He had brown hair and blue eyes; his face was pale and he looked tired.

When he moved away from the window, swinging along gracefully, Ann started after him with faint recognition; she had seen his likeness somewhere—perhaps in a rotogravure section.

Ann didn't quite realize what she was doing, but she found herself following the course the young man took. He walked a few blocks and entered the arcade of the tallest building in the city.

Just as he went into the smart travel bureau which occupied half of the ground floor she remembered who he was. He was Jaime Laird, a rich young man who followed the races from Hialeah to Santa Anita to Saratoga again. Ann thought that he must have been ill, for a man who followed the sun all the time as a vocation should have a tan complexion.

This was the travel office in which she had made arrangements for her vacations each of the past seven years. Ann hadn't intended planning her vacation today, but the sight of Jaime Laird in the bureau gave her an adventurous spur. She entered the room with its attractive travel displays, and waited while the fabulous Jaime Laird was served.

Ann stole furtive glances in the mirror as she waited. Her dark brown hair was parted at the side and waved back softly. Her face was radiant. Her blue eyes sparkled.

"I've just had an operation," Jaime Laird said to the clerk. "I want to go away for a rest—some quiet spot in the mountains."

Ann's adventurous spirit fell; she was planning on the seashore this summer. Buck up, old girl, she thought whimsically, perhaps this just isn't the man for your vacation romance.

Ann had a way of kidding herself out of adversity. She was always "bucking herself up," as when she sent the checks back upstate to help support her widow mother and two small brothers. But she was still naive enough to admit that each year she hoped for romance on her vacation. All the girls in the office did that. On their two weeks' vacations they were looking for "the right guy," who didn't seem to exist in a workaday world.

Vacation romance! One always met attractive young men at resort hotels. They were like flying fishes; you had to go to the South Seas to find them.

Ann moved away from the young man and idly fingered the romantic descriptions of summer travel on the desk. She glanced at a picture of Cape Cod. Every year in July Ann entered this travel agency, and asked for folders. Every year the same young clerk who now was waiting on Jaime Laird had planned a vacation trip for her. He always greeted her with that faint look of recognition that automobile salesmen have for their infrequent clients. He never seemed to recall her name, but he talked in a pleasant way when he figured out the details of her summer trip.

Ann didn't remember his name, though it was neatly inscribed on a little bronze plaque. She eyed it closely now while she waited, and then glanced at the plain dark suit and white shirt he wore. The young man's name was William Ware. Just plain Bill Ware she mused. Like thousands of other counter men in a city, always ready to serve one but preserving an anonymous role.

But suddenly a face appeared behind that anonymity of man-behind-the-counter. It was a surprisingly attractive face, with clean-cut features. She thought he must be about 27 or 28. His blue eyes had tiny wrinkled crow's-feet under them which Ann found engaging.

But when he turned and spoke to her it was his smile that caught and held her attention for one breathless moment. "Good afternoon, Miss Hamilton!" he said briskly. "Where is it going to be this year?"

The fact that he recalled her name, after seven years of planning her summer vacations, intrigued Ann instantaneously. She felt enormously flattered!

"Last summer you went to the Maine woods," he went on glibly. "Let's see—you stayed at one of the Rangeley lakes. A dude ranch affair."

Ann's face was positively radiant. "Yes!" she said. "I enjoyed it very much. And thanks for the special attention you gave me. It was very nice of you to have them meet my train at that hour of the morning! But I didn't think you'd remember me. All these office girls—"

The young man flushed, and then he seemed to single her out from all the other vacationers whose summer trips he had planned.

"I've been selling you vacations for a long time, haven't I?" he said.

He looked at her. It was a long, searching look, in the course of which their eyes met and held. Suddenly both looked away and blushed.

Something had happened in that moment, Ann realized. Always before when she had come to the travel bureau she had been the customer, a girl capable of paying her way on a vacation. He had been the man behind the counter. It was Bill Ware who first realized that this anonymity couldn't endure any longer. He had to know this girl!

As he talked he couldn't keep his eyes from her. His glib travel talk became hesitant and confused. His praise of this and that vacation resort seemed pathetically weak. He dropped folders. Suddenly he realized that he wasn't "selling her." She wasn't receiving his suggestions in a favorable light.

"But I went to a mountain resort three summers ago," Ann said. "I like a new place every year. Perhaps the seashore. Cape Cod."

Ann had always picked the small resort hotels where she thought she would make the most friends. In Ann's adventurous mind this meant meeting men, for there was a practical bent to her day-dreaming. She tried to avoid the de luxe hotels where a stiff decorum would keep her from meeting people easily.

She liked those hotels where the easy camaraderie of games prevailed—swimming, tennis and boating. The amiable hostess at the little hotels always introduced her to other vacationers.

The girls in the office thought it difficult to meet the right men in the city. Young men who had to stay on their toes all day long to keep their jobs didn't have the time or energy to make satisfactory suitors. On vacations they seemed more susceptible, so Ann and her friends thought.

Actually Ann had frequented resort hotels long enough to sense the frequent dangers in vacation romances. But she liked to entertain the ideal of romance in the more glamorous spots endowed by nature. It made her day-dreams more real and eased the tedium of unvarying months in a business office.

Bill Ware's voice fairly glowed with enthusiasm now. "Why, I should think Lake Racine would be the very place! Swimming, boating, climbing. The Adirondacks are always cool—"

"But I have spent one vacation at Lake Racine," Ann said pertly. "I think I'll go to the seashore."

The young clerk took this rebuff calmly, and went on planning a trip to Lake Racine for her. He painted a word picture of the cool mountain lake, his voice mounting to a crescendo until it seemed that he was rhapsodizing the resort.

"Why, I just sold Lake Racine to Jaime Laird, the young sportsman whose pictures you see in the magazines. Not a minute ago. And he's been everywhere."

Bill Ware became so engrossed in talking about the charms of Lake Racine that he took up most of Ann's luncheon hour. When she mentioned the seashore he seemed almost to hate the idea of waves rolling in on a lonely shore. Sands were always lonely, he thought. For the first time in Bill Ware's business career he talked a resort down, thereby perpetrating a breach of ethics. The manager would have said that something was wrong with Bill. Perhaps he needed a vacation himself.

"Why, nobody is going to the seashore this summer," he went on. "They have fogs on every coast. It's been raining since the first of June." His plea for the mountain resort became almost impassioned; he ran a hand nervously through his hair. "You shouldn't think of going anywhere but to Lake Racine. Why, this year I can go to any resort in America, with all my expenses paid, and what do you think I've picked—Lake Racine!"

He added, not quite realizing his naivete, "You said the first two weeks in August, didn't you? That's the best time at Lake Racine. That's when I am going to be there."

When he realized that he had betrayed his real interest in persuading her to choose Lake Racine, he blushed. Ann was smiling and she thought his quick blush made him more attractive.

She glanced at her wrist-watch, and turned to go. "I have to run to work," she said.

He said, "Oh!" and followed her toward the door. He was dreadfully afraid lest he should lose her. "I could come to your address tonight, and plan your vacation trip!" he said, his eyes beaming. "I'll bring my satchel along with all the details. About the hotels—the works."

He looked so genuinely disturbed that Ann couldn't refuse. She handed him her card and hurried on, thinking, "What a strange young man—to come to life after all these years. Why, he seemed almost human! But I hope he won't try salesmanship on me. I have a mind of my own. I'm going to the seashore."

CHAPTER II

William Ware, the travel agent, called at the little apartment Ann shared with another girl at 8 that evening. The girls had scarcely put the dinner dishes away when he rang. They still had their aprons on.

"Oh!" Ann breathed. "I'd almost forgotten. Alice, you'll have to run on alone to see the movie. That young man from the travel bureau is going to try to change my mind about going to the seashore. He thinks I ought to go to Lake Racine."

Alice eyed her knowingly. "Are you sure this hasn't all the marks of a budding romance?"

"Of course not!" Ann said. "It merely saves me time. He's only the clerk there. No romance about him. I'm going to the seashore to catch my knight in shining armor."

Alice let William Ware in. Ann could tell by her glance that she approved of him. But young Mr. Ware was very business-like with his satchel. He went to the desk-table and started taking out folders and leaflets, arranging them in neat rows. His manner was brisk.

He didn't see Alice go out of the room, so zealous he had become in his efforts to sell Ann a vacation at Lake Racine. His talk abounded with enthusiasm and salesmanship.

But when he turned he saw Ann smiling at him. He looked around and saw that the other girl had gone. Then, suddenly, his whole manner changed. The salesmanship vanished, and he was laughing with her.

"After the day's work is over it's hard to get out of harness," he said.

Then he talked less glibly, less like a salesman.

His manner became almost awkward but it was an attractive awkwardness because of his clean-cut good looks. His blue eyes held a curious light in them.

"Mr. Ware, must I really go to Lake Racine?" Ann said, eyeing him askance. "I had planned to go to the seashore, but if you insist—"

She was laughing at him. He flushed deeply, and she was sorry for having hurt him.

"Call me Bill," he said. "All day long in the office nobody calls me anything but 'Mr. Ware.' I'm human, too. I like to be with pretty girls."

"Oh!" Ann said archly. Somehow she hadn't been considering him in a romantic light. Out of sheer curiosity she let her eyes meet his again. She found it hard to escape his impetuous regard.

Perhaps he was lonely. Ann had known loneliness in a city teeming with millions. It was truly hard to meet the right people—the people who wouldn't use you, or consider themselves used by your intrusion into their lives. A city, she knew, can be the loneliest place in the world.

"I haven't had much time for dates," he went on, still flushing a little. "Too busy at my job. I've always had to be on my toes, better than the guys who were working under me. Besides, I had a kid brother in high school. Supported him for six years." His eyes held a glow of pride. "Now he's through school and has gone to work. I have more time for frivolous things."

"You think girls are—frivolous things?" Ann said, smiling at him. For some reason she wanted to tease him. "By the way, are you trying to sell me a trip to Lake Racine or are you trying to sell me—yourself?"

He flushed again, and began to apologize. "I'm sorry. You know I'm not at the office any longer—you're a pretty girl—I almost forgot—"

She eyed him sternly again. "Oh! Well, let's get down to business."

"Yes!" he said hastily. "Yes!" He began fingering expense sheets and travel folders. "I suppose you want the regular all-expense vacation. It's the simplest way. Pay it all in one lump, and then enjoy your vacation."

"It will have to be less this year," Ann told him. "We had to take a cut in the office."

"Oh, I'm sorry!" he said. He looked at her for several moments. "Gee, that's tough! I mean—just last week I got a raise. When I get back from my vacation—it's my first in six years—I'm to be advanced to the position of travel consultant." He smiled a little wearily. "It's just a title in the office, but it pays more. I can begin to think about—"

She smiled again. "Frivolous things?"

"You're making fun of me," he said, and his look fell.

She was sympathetic and sorry for him now. He really wasn't trying to be flip or take advantage of this business engagement. Ann had known young men who would have used every specious advantage like this to further romance on the fly. Now she began to see Bill Ware in a new light. At least he was sincere.

"I think I will go up to Lake Racine again," she said. "Your talk has been very convincing."

His voice was eager now. "Your vacation does come the first two weeks in August, doesn't it? That's when I take mine there."

"When I went back to the office this afternoon," she said, "I found that my vacation comes in July. I'm sorry."

He seemed almost intolerably hurt. All his efforts seemed suddenly to have no meaning. He fingered the folders abstractedly. "Oh—I'm sorry, too. I thought maybe you and I—"

She couldn't bear to witness his disappointment. He looked crestfallen, unhappy, like a small, frustrated boy.

He was a nice boy, once he cast off the aura of the business office. But he was only the boy who worked behind the desk in a travel agency. She saw him almost every day in the year, as she walked up the street at lunch hour. She would never have let him enter her romantic dreams.

Ann had in mind a vacation romance—not the swift, heady kind, but the real thing. A romantic love, something that would last. Her eager mind conjured up scenes on moonlit mountain lakes. The men one met on vacation had a very special aura about them, like knights in shining armor.

But now she said, "I'm sorry—Bill."

His eyes lighted up. He and Ann seemed no longer to be miles apart. He began to talk about himself again.

"All these years, I've planned other people's vacations. I've enjoyed their trips—in my imagination. I suppose I have a good imagination now. My idea of a swell vacation always included a girl—"

Ann put out her hand with a low boyish swing, and said, "There are lots of girls! You draw up the papers and I'll drop by your office tomorrow noon to pay the full amount. You know what I can afford—a little less than last year."

Bill stood up, his eyes wide, because he was afraid she was putting him out of her life forever. He fairly blurted out, "Say, I don't want to take up your time but if you're going to a movie, why won't you go with me?"

She looked at him closely, taking his measure. He was to naive and sincere to embarrass her. His abrupt manner and awkwardness rather pleased her.

"All right," she said, shrugging her shoulders. "Sold again! Greta Garbo is right around the corner."

"I like Greta, too," he said eagerly. "I like to see her in the big parts—classical roles."

Ann was already putting on her hat. Bill Ware reached for her coat and helped her into it—his efforts to please her a little jerky. When she was ready to go she put out her hand again in a friendly gesture. He took it and she felt his hungry, almost incredulous response. For an instant, before opening the door, they looked at each other with the understanding look that old friends have.

"Gee, you're swell!" he said.

Ann softly laughed.

Once at the movie, during a scene of despair in the heroine's life, Ann let him close his hand over hers. It pleased her to know that he cared a little. He was just plain Bill who wanted to hold her hand at the movies.

The World's Latest Market News

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The cotton market made a little progress on the upside today and gained from 7 to 9 points in quiet dealings.

More rains in the eastern part of the belt, where showers were considered detrimental at this time, brought a little speculative buying into the market.

The trade also picked up a few deliveries. Selling came mostly in weekend liquidation but a little hedging was noticed.

October, December and January closed at 12.11 with March making the best advance, 9 points up, at 12.12.

Foreign markets were closed for a holiday.

The New Orleans cotton exchange issued its annual figures for the year ending July 31, 1936. The report had several bright spots, including a decline in carry-over and sharp advances in exports and world consumption of American cotton.

Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 7 to 9 points.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Stocks, off balance during the greater part of today's brief session, rallied quietly in the final half-hour.

The majority, however, failed to gain any momentum on the comeback and the close was irregular. Transfers were around 550,000 shares.

Drouth news continued to depress some of the farm implement issues and others, although the edge seemed to have worn off the selling even in the stocks of companies with an eye on agricultural incomes.

A number of specialties ran counter to an extension of the profit-taking movement and a few of these emerged with substantial advances.

Some of the steels, rails, utilities and mines were able to hold their own or push higher.

Business developments were a sustaining influence throughout and commission houses found little evidence of important liquidation. At the same time buyers were timid and many traders absented themselves from the board rooms to take advantage of the fine holiday weather.

G. C. Murphy stock was a strong spot, jumping some 10 points in thin dealings. Steady to firmer were U. S. Steel common and preferred, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Douglas Aircraft, American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Du Pont, American Can, Consolidated Edison, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Corn Products and California Packing.

Losses of as much as two points were either reduced or cancelled by J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, American Telephone, American Water Works, Northern Pacific, Continental Can and Zenith Radio.

A shade in either direction were Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, General Motors, Chrysler, United Aircraft, Anaconda, North American, International Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Electric.

The early dip in American Telephone followed announcement that the company had filed application with the federal communications commission for permission to lower interstate tolls, the reduced rates to go into effect September 1. It was pointed out by some observers, however, that previous long-distance cuts had resulted in an upturn in business sufficient to offset the reductions.

Brokerage sentiment tended to shy away from the motors, not because the outlook for the group is unfavorable but for the apparent reason that curtailment of production is expected soon in preparation for 1937 models.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Stocks irregular, farm implements again heavy. Bonds mixed; changes narrow. Curb quiet; gains and losses evenly divided. Foreign exchanges steady; golds edge up. Cotton steady; trade buying; unfavorable weather. Sugar and coffee closed.

CHICAGO—Wheat higher; influenced by corn. Corn strong; intensified drouth indicated. Cattle nominally steady. Hogs nominally steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—With unsettled European political conditions receiving increased attention, and with crop damage both in Europe and Canada reported worse, wheat scored material advances early today. Sharp breaks in prices, however, quickly followed.

Opening 1-2-1 1-4 cents up, September 1.11 1-4-3-8, December 1.12 1-8-1-2, wheat then dropped back 2 1-2 cents a bushel in some cases, and fluctuated fast. Corn started 1-8-1 7-8 higher, September 1.02-02 1-2, December 93 1-2-94, but soon tumbled.

Corn closed strong at virtually the day's apex, 2 7-8-4 1-8 cents above yesterday's finish, Sept. 105 1-2, Dec. 97 1-4, May 96 1-4-3-8, wheat 1 3-8-2 1-4 advanced, Sept. 112 1-4-1-2, Dec. 113 1-4-1-2, oats 1 7-8-2 3-8 advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 37 cents.

INSPECTOR ISSUES 4 BUILDING PERMITS

Four permits were issued by the city building inspector Friday and Saturday morning.

Mrs. Elvia Marcea obtained a permit to build a one-story frame residence on North Sixth street. The six-room house will have an asbestos roof. John Catalina is the contractor, and the price of construction will be $2,800.

O. Ted Madsen was given a permit to build a one-story frame residence at 310 Columbia street. Old lumber and materials will be used, and the cost will be $999. Ellis and Coleman are the contractors.

Tom Leos was given permission to have a porch screened on a one-story frame residence at 3409 Gordon avenue. The job will cost $200, and day labor will be used.

The Monroe Building and Loan association obtained a permit to alter and repair a one-story frame residence at 3505 Lee avenue. Day labor will be used, and the work will cost $150.

MRS. WILLIAMS FINISHES WORK AT STATE NORMAL

Mrs. Chrissie Williams, supervisor of elementary education, returned Friday from Natchitoches, where she attended the summer school at Louisiana State Normal college. Her summer studies completed her work for a degree which will be awarded at the annual commencement next June.

In times past, it has been the policy of the college to hold a second commencement at the close of the summer session when degrees have been conferred. This year, however, and from now on, this practice has been abolished and all degrees will be conferred at the end of the spring semester.

The throne which belonged to the Sultan of Turkey is of beaten gold, studded with diamonds, rubies, and emeralds, set in mosaic. It has been appraised at more than $15,000,000.

SUMMER SESSION ENDS AT NORMAL

Fall Term Of State Educational Institutions Starts September 14

NATCHITOCHES, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—For hundreds of undergraduate students enrolled in the summer school of the Louisiana State Normal college here, today was the beginning of a six weeks' vacation period which will terminate on September 14, when the fall session of the college is scheduled to open.

A total of 66 students completed their work on the A. B. degree with final examinations on Thursday and Friday and 36 received the two-year certificate. Grades for the nine weeks' session were recorded in the registrar's office today by faculty members.

With 1,814 students enrolled in all departments of the college, the summer session of the Normal was the largest in the history of the short term at the institution. The enrollment in the college department proper represented an increase of 29 per cent above that of last summer and 33 per cent more than the average for the last four years.

Features of the summer term of the college included a special school for music supervisors and teachers in which 150 leading public school musicians were enrolled, and special classes in physical education attended by more than 500 teachers.

A large fall term enrollment is expected at the college, authorities stated today. Hundreds of reservations have been made for rooms in the college dormitories and more are expected at an early date. Executive offices of the college will be open during the vacation period, it was announced by authorities.

C. A. HUNT EXPLAINS WHERE MONEY GOES

C. A. Hunt, post commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, stated Sunday that he desired to clear up several matters concerning the publication of the tabloid newspaper which will finance the drum and bugle corps on its trip to the Denver national encampment.

He stated that fully 5,000 copies of the paper will be distributed in Monroe and the local trade territory, while fully as many copies will be circulated in and around the convention where it will give Monroe wide national advertising.

All the money, with the exception of small incidental expenses, will be used for the expenses and equipping of the drum corps, Mr. Hunt said. No one will get virtually anything out of the project except the drum and bugle corps, the merchants who will gain from the advertising presented, and the community at large.

Mr. Hunt cited the opinion of several business men who said that this will comprise one of most unique advertising efforts exerted here in years.

The drum and bugle corps will be equipped with the snappiest uniforms they have ever worn and the men are now undergoing rigid training in anticipation of taking first place in the nation-wide contest at Denver.

Mr. Hunt urges business men to respond generously when representatives approach them asking for their cooperation in the issuing of the newspaper.

LAKE PROVIDENCE WOMAN CANDIDATE

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—Mrs. William Hugh Hamley, a member of the Powell-Martin-Barrett unit No. 37 of the American Legion auxiliary, is a candidate for department president of the auxiliary, it has been announced here. Her husband, Major William Hugh Hamley, served in the United States army medical corps from July, 1917, until September, 1919, and Mrs. Hamley served in the United States army nurse corps, at the base hospital at Camp Stafford and later overseas.

She has been president of the local unit twice, and has served on various committees. In 1929 she was fifth district president, in 1931 she was appointed chairman of education of World war orphans, in 1932 she was elected second vice-president of the Louisiana department and in 1933 she was elected first vice-president. This year she is serving as department Fidac chairman.

SPECIAL MEETING SLATED

WINNSBORO, La., Aug. 1.—(Special)—A special meeting of the Crowville post of the American Legion will be held Sunday. The post has already surpassed the 1936 membership quota assigned to it by the Louisiana department of the legion. Walter Chachere is serving his third term as commander of the post.

CHURCH OBSERVES 82ND ANNIVERSARY

'Old Alabama' At Sibley Has Notable Home-Coming Celebration

CHOUDRANT, Aug. 1.—(Special)—One of the most noteworthy gatherings ever held in this part of the state was held Wednesday last on the occasion of the celebration of the 82nd anniversary of the founding of Old Alabama Presbyterian church at Sibley, one of the most famous houses of religious worship in Louisiana.

The event brought together fully 750 persons who participated in the all-day gathering and partook of the bounteous picnic dinner provided for the guests by the members of the Old Alabama congregation. Many descendants of the original Alabama pioneers, who founded the community and built the church which was named in recognition of their native state, were present.

Memorial service in honor of the early settlers and the various persons who have passed away during the long history of the community was held in the old churchyard. The memorial exercises included a reading of the history of the church by Mrs. Florence Davis, John Ben Kendall, and Mrs. Charles H. Nettleton. The memorial address was given by Rev. Pierre Danis, a former pastor of the church.

At the morning service an address was given by Robert J. O'Neal, a descendant of one of the pioneers. Rev. S. E. McFadden, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Ruston, preached the sermon. Rev. John W. Davis, one of the famed ministers of the Southern Presbyterian church, who was a native of the Old Alabama community, was one of the guests of the occasion. He had part in the memorial service in the afternoon at the cemetery.

A large number of the pastors who have served Old Alabama church, as well as ministers who have gone into the field from this congregation, were in attendance at the home-coming celebration.

The Pilgrims first called cranberries "devil's food," because when eaten raw, the fruit puckered the mouth. The Indians taught the settlers how to make cranberry sauce.

LEGION TO NAME OFFICERS MONDAY

Delegates To State Convention Will Also Be Selected At Meeting

All members of the L. B. Faulk post of the American Legion are urged to be present at the memorial home in Forsythe park Monday at 8 p.m. when the annual election of officers will be held. Delegates to the state convention will also be elected at the meeting.

At the meeting held two weeks ago, C. L. Mengis was nominated for post commander. Other nominations comprised the following: W. C. Oliver, first vice-commander; Oscar Johnson, second vice-commander; C. B. Braun, adjutant; Rev. H. L. Johns, chaplain; C. M. Mitchell, historian; H. B. McClendon, service officer; Robert Cowden, finance officer.

Nominations made for members of the executive committee of the post included the following: H. F. Madison, J. B. Bradley, Isador Liebreich, Sam Rubin, Dr. P. M. Gayle. From this list three will be elected at Monday night's meeting.

Those whose names were placed in nomination for delegates to the state convention in New Orleans, August 27-29, and from which list three will be elected, are as follows: Sam Rubin, Sam Parreno, Oscar Johnson, Dr. C. L. Mengis, Dick Pritchard, Eddie Oakley, J. J. Martin, M. E. Dupont, B. L. Coleman, Charles Mitchell, H. F. Madison, Bill Perhamus and Dr. P. M. Gayle.

AMATEUR RADIO MEN WILL MEET

The delta division of the American Radio Relay league will meet in Monroe on September 5 and 6 with headquarters in Hotel Virginia. Fully 200 amateur radio enthusiasts are expected to attend. They will come from five states, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas.

Two days will be devoted to business sessions and entertainment. The delegates will discuss many features of amateur radio operation.

Monroe was selected for the convention city, as there are so many local amateur radio enthusiasts here, fully 15 or 20 of these being outstanding in their line.

Local amateur radio has been given much impetus through the Monroe recreation department that has featured classes in instruction. Dr. F. P. Cerniglia, local dentist, is deeply interested in furthering the amateur radio profession locally, having rendered much valuable aid in the past.

BAPTIST CHILDREN END FOURTH SUMMER TOUR

A group of 26 boys and girls from the Louisiana Baptist Children's home, on their fourth state tour of the summer, reached home late Friday night after a lengthy trip through various parts of the state. They gave programs, largely of musical nature, in many cities and towns on their trip.

Rev. B. F. Wallace, superintendent, accompanied the party on the trip, as did Miss M. Ponder, matron of the senior girls. The trip was made in the institution's bus which attracted attention and favorable comment.

Another trip will be made this summer to different points in the state.

Summer Discontent Leads Many To Vacation In August

Clothes Begin To Point The Way Toward Fall

Two Young Mothers Complimented; Selected By Their Sons As Holiday Pals

By Eve Bradford

AUGUST, the month in which summer takes its final fling, will soon give place to the season of falling leaf and fading flower. Already summer has dropped its laughing mask and is betraying the lines and shadows of a year that is growing old. There is an intangible something in the air that hints of the changing season. Perhaps it is the sign of fall in the clothes and in the furs, sleek, sophisticated and subtly flattering in the store windows that makes us realize how tired looking our summer togs have suddenly become. Even our homes wear a dejected air when the month of August commences to wane. The brave new slip-covers with which we decked our furniture earlier in the season have lost their air of pristine freshness.

The season of our discontent is now upon us and this is why so many people wait until late summer for their vacation. Speaking of vacations reminds us of the distinct compliment Daisy Haas received from her son, Morris, who invited her to accompany him on his South American cruise. When a young man wants to introduce his mother to his friends and to take her with him on his vacation, you can rest assured that this self same mother is everything to be desired. What a grand time these two will have on ship board—dancing, dining, laughing and chatting together, the perfect companions. Goldie St. John is another mother whose son preferred her companionship to that of any other when he motored to El Paso, Tex., yesterday. And no wonder! Goldie is a charming person and sufficiently in love with life as it is being lived today to make her a favorite in younger circles.

When a young English woman returns to Monroe from her own beautiful countryside just to catch another glimpse of the Ouachita river, the towering oaks and the old plantation homes, we feel that a tribute has been paid our beautiful city. Marion Faser of London is playing her second visit to Monroe as a guest of Emma Louise Biedenharn and waxed eloquent while on a boating party the other night. The night in question was really superb, so much so that even the habitues spoke of the magic of the moon, the stars and the river.

"Bunnie" Cummings simply stole the spotlight away from Happy Tidwell last Friday when Mrs. B. M. McKoin and Mrs. J. W. Cummings entertained at luncheon for Happy. Eight months old Bunnie, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Cummings, gurgled and laughed and wiggled his toes and went from one pair of arms to another. Before the afternoon was over, Bunnie had firmly entrenched himself in the affections of every guest.

Saw Sadye Lou Peters shopping for fall clothes the other day. She is simply bubbling over with enthusiasm and so filled with the joy of living that we found it difficult to associate her with the prosaic life of a school room. She has accepted her first teaching job near Lake Charles and is thrilled over the prospects of being a wage earner. She was sartorially perfect in a green model with a soft felt hat of the same color.

Doris Beaman is another who yearns for the fuller, freer life of the business woman of today. She is taking a business course and can pound the typewriter like a professional.

"Steve" and Leila Stevens and their young daughter will settle down near the "shining big water." At Eagle's Nest lake, near Taos, the famous artist colony, they will keep a rendezvous with late summer. Bess James has been in Taos for a month or more sketching the mountains, the old Indian trails and also endeavoring to put on canvas the beauty of the crystal lakes.

It's one thing, according to Dorothy Bromley, feature writer in the New York World-Telegram, to remove legal discrimination against women, as Lena Madesin Phillips has recently urged before the Paris meeting of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women. But it's another thing to change men's personal prejudices and predilections. Mrs. Bromley says: "There has come to my attention the reflections of a Washington columnist who looks down his nose at the dynamic Mrs. Roosevelt, while he thanks his stars for the charming Mrs. Landon, who is troubled 'with no restless burning zeal to undo all the wrongs of the world,' and whose primary interest is her home.

"My quarrel with my fellow columnist is not that he likes Mrs. Landon's type but that he would relegate all women to 'the drawing room.' No doubt we should be thankful for the break he gives us in not relegating us all to the kitchen. And yet I'm not so certain. Women have an honest function in the kitchen, but their function in the drawing room is chiefly a decorative one.

"If there are no more drawing rooms and if it's not a false report that women have come of age, the question is, where are they going from here after they have raised their children? A young mother like Mrs. Landon can, with profit, devote a great deal of time to her children. If I am not mistaken Mrs. Roosevelt herself was very much of a home-body while her children were young. So, for all anyone knows, Mrs. Landon may turn out in the future to be another Mrs. Roosevelt, although I doubt that she would ever care to get around as much.

"In the meantime, I hope that the men who are so annoyed by Mrs. Roosevelt because she is a human being with broad interests, and because she does not stay shut up within four walls, will go to a psychoanalyst and have their prejudices analyzed."

Anniversary Observed

The gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thatcher's home supplied a cool and shady setting for the birthday party commemorating the seventh anniversary of their daughter, Beverly Ann.

Opening of the beautifully-wrapped gifts presented to the young celebrant by her friends was the high moment of the afternoon.

Games were introduced for diversion by Miss Johnette Register and resulted in Ouida Welch's and Elizabeth Ann Bates' receiving the prizes for their successful efforts.

The cutting of the beautifully-embossed birthday cake and the serving of the luscious ices and other confections completed the pleasures of the afternoon for the young hostess and Bettye Jean Gentry, Elizabeth Ann Bates, Carol Jean Williamson, Sue Hunt, Cherry Kay Thomas, John Ann Lewis, Doris Burdeaux, Billy F. Blazier, Mary Coats, Anna Joyce Coats, Georgene and Ouida Welch, Patsy Jean Lee, Bettye Jo Henry, Bettye Jo Berry, Russell Stellwagon, Jr., Mary Lou Young, Barbara Rae Buce, Mary Sue Lee, George Harold Miles, Harry Gene Howard, Wilburn Taylor, Donald Halsell, Jonas Dean Selig and Buddy Rogers.

Birthday Party

Betty Sue Shotwell, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Shotwell, wearing a French frock of blue organza with corsage of pink rosebuds, welcomed her most intimate friends in the ball room of Lakeside Country club Friday afternoon, when a party in commemoration of her eighth birthday anniversary was arranged by her mother.

Each guest received favors of crimson balloons, noise-makers, balls and whistles and each guest was privileged to cut the enormous birthday cake. It was a luscious confection surmounted with a crystalized doll holding a pink umbrella. Pink ices and individual cakes were served during the refreshment hour that climaxed an afternoon of merriment. The games were introduced by Miss Pollyanna Shotwell and Miss Beverly Russell.

Extending greetings to the young celebrant were Dilly Bernhardt, Cherry Bernstein, Jo Anne Biedenharn, Jerry Biedenharn, Ann Brown, Charlotte Cooper, Mary Dixon, Joe Durrett, Preston Fergus, Henry Fergus, Rai Fergus, Frances Fergus, B. K. Fluker, Bennie Frances Fluker, Boling Jones, Arden Girault, Gwen Walker, Jackie Walker, Cleta Godfrey, C. D. Business, Professional Women's Club Honored

Members Of Organization Taken On Boat Ride To Cooley Tuberculosis Hospital

"For things I hold most dear,
For silvered night or gold-barred day,
For singing birds when sunset's near,
For rest at eventide, I pray—
May these things never pass away.

"For river fog and a lifting mist,
For boats that seek the harbor bar,
For mountain tops, and hills sunkissed,
Or moon-drenched at the evening star
For these my thanks—the things that are."

Members of the Business and Professional Women's club joined the poet in this expression of appreciation of beauty and peace as they put aside the "cares that infest the day" for a few hours of relaxation on board the "Weto," with Captain and Mrs. G. B Cooley, hosts.

The Ouachita river is a constant source of interest and pleasure for those who find time to be entertained by its elusive fascination. Fortunate indeed are those who own their own craft and can put out from shore nightly to enjoy the moon-drenched evenings and the star-studded heavens.

The "Weto" dropped anchor at Pine Top, where supper was served under the towering pines. William Nettles, talented whistler, and Miss Olivia H Lyne, a dramatic reader who is visiting Mrs. Laura Slator, entertained in a most delightful manner.

Following the supper hour, the entire assemblage visited the new sanatorium, where a room has been dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Mildred White Richardson and Mrs. Gertrude Slay, late members of the Business and Professional Women's club.

Drifting down the river, late in the evening, those on board the "Weto" were reminded that happiness and beauty are found in the harmony of the spirit of things. The club woman's creed was also brought to mind: "Let us take time for all things; make us calm, serene and gentle. Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.

Present, in addition to Captain and Mrs. Cooley, were Miss Bernice Wright, Mr. and Mrs. George Wesley Smith, Mrs. Jennie Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Slator, Miss Olivia H. Summer Discontent Leads Many To Vacation In August

By Eve Bradford

AUGUST, the month in which summer takes its final fling, will soon give place to the season of falling leaf and fading flower. Already summer has dropped its laughing mask and is betraying the lines and shadows of a year that is growing old. There is an intangible something in the air that hints of the changing season. Perhaps it is the sign of fall in the clothes and in the furs, sleek, sophisticated and subtly flattering in the store windows that makes us realize how tired looking our summer togs have suddenly become. Even our homes wear a dejected air when the month of August commences to wane. The brave new slip-covers with which we decked our furniture earlier in the season have lost their air of pristine freshness.

The season of our discontent is now upon us and this is why so many people wait until late summer for their vacation. Speaking of vacations reminds us of the distinct compliment Daisy Haas received from her son, Morris, who invited her to accompany him on his South American cruise. When a young man wants to introduce his mother to his friends and to take her with him on his vacation, you can rest assured that this self same mother is everything to be desired. What a grand time these two will have on ship board—dancing, dining, laughing and chatting together, the perfect companions. Goldie St. John is another mother whose son preferred her companionship to that of any other when he motored to El Paso, Tex., yesterday. And no wonder! Goldie is a charming person and sufficiently in love with life as it is being lived today to make her a favorite in younger circles.

When a young English woman returns to Monroe from her own beautiful countryside just to catch another glimpse of the Ouachita river, the towering oaks and the old plantation homes, we feel that a tribute has been paid our beautiful city. Marion Faser of London is playing her second visit to Monroe as a guest of Emma Louise Biedenharn and waxed eloquent while on a boating party the other night. The night in question was really superb, so much so that even the habitues spoke of the magic of the moon, the stars and the river.

"Bunnie" Cummings simply stole the spotlight away from Happy Tidwell last Friday when Mrs. B. M. McKoin and Mrs. J. W. Cummings entertained at luncheon for Happy. Eight months old Bunnie, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Cummings, gurgled and laughed and wiggled his toes and went from one pair of arms to another. Before the afternoon was over, Bunnie had firmly entrenched himself in the affections of every guest.

Saw Sadye Lou Peters shopping for fall clothes the other day. She is simply bubbling over with enthusiasm and so filled with the joy of living that we found it difficult to associate her with the prosaic life of a school room. She has accepted her first teaching job near Lake Charles and is thrilled over the prospects of being a wage earner. She was sartorially perfect in a green model with a soft felt hat of the same color.

Doris Beaman is another who yearns for the fuller, freer life of the business woman of today. She is taking a business course and can pound the typewriter like a professional.

"Steve" and Leila Stevens and their young daughter will settle down near the "shining big water." At Eagle's Nest lake, near Taos, the famous artist colony, they will keep a rendezvous with late summer. Bess James has been in Taos for a month or more sketching the mountains, the old Indian trails and also endeavoring to put on canvas the beauty of the crystal lakes.

It's one thing, according to Dorothy Bromley, feature writer in the New York World-Telegram, to remove legal discrimination against women, as Lena Madesin Phillips has recently urged before the Paris meeting of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women. But it's another thing to change men's personal prejudices and predilections. Mrs. Bromley says: "There has come to my attention the reflections of a Washington columnist who looks down his nose at the dynamic Mrs. Roosevelt, while he thanks his stars for the charming Mrs. Landon, who is troubled 'with no restless burning zeal to undo all the wrongs of the world,' and whose primary interest is her home.

"My quarrel with my fellow columnist is not that he likes Mrs. Landon's type but that he would relegate all women to 'the drawing room.' No doubt we should be thankful for the break he gives us in not relegating us all to the kitchen. And yet I'm not so certain. Women have an honest function in the kitchen, but their function in the drawing room is chiefly a decorative one.

"If there are no more drawing rooms and if it's not a false report that women have come of age, the question is, where are they going from here after they have raised their children? A young mother like Mrs. Landon can, with profit, devote a great deal of time to her children. If I am not mistaken Mrs. Roosevelt herself was very much of a home-body while her children were young. So, for all anyone knows, Mrs. Landon may turn out in the future to be another Mrs. Roosevelt, although I doubt that she would ever care to get around as much.

"In the meantime, I hope that the men who are so annoyed by Mrs. Roosevelt because she is a human being with broad interests, and because she does not stay shut up within four walls, will go to a psychoanalyst and have their prejudices analyzed."

Anniversary Observed

The gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thatcher's home supplied a cool and shady setting for the birthday party commemorating the seventh anniversary of their daughter, Beverly Ann.

Opening of the beautifully-wrapped gifts presented to the young celebrant by her friends was the high moment of the afternoon.

Games were introduced for diversion by Miss Johnette Register and resulted in Ouida Welch's and Elizabeth Ann Bates' receiving the prizes for their successful efforts.

The cutting of the beautifully-embossed birthday cake and the serving of the luscious ices and other confections completed the pleasures of the afternoon for the young hostess and Bettye Jean Gentry, Elizabeth Ann Bates, Carol Jean Williamson, Sue Hunt, Cherry Kay Thomas, John Ann Lewis, Doris Burdeaux, Billy F. Blazier, Mary Coats, Anna Joyce Coats, Georgene and Ouida Welch, Patsy Jean Lee, Bettye Jo Henry, Bettye Jo Berry, Russell Stellwagon, Jr., Mary Lou Young, Barbara Rae Buce, Mary Sue Lee, George Harold Miles, Harry Gene Howard, Wilburn Taylor, Donald Halsell, Jonas Dean Selig and Buddy Rogers.

Birthday Party

Betty Sue Shotwell, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Shotwell, wearing a French frock of blue organza with corsage of pink rosebuds, welcomed her most intimate friends in the ball room of Lakeside Country club Friday afternoon, when a party in commemoration of her eighth birthday anniversary was arranged by her mother.

Each guest received favors of crimson balloons, noise-makers, balls and whistles and each guest was privileged to cut the enormous birthday cake. It was a luscious confection surmounted with a crystalized doll holding a pink umbrella. Pink ices and individual cakes were served during the refreshment hour that climaxed an afternoon of merriment. The games were introduced by Miss Pollyanna Shotwell and Miss Beverly Russell.

Extending greetings to the young celebrant were Dilly Bernhardt, Cherry Bernstein, Jo Anne Biedenharn, Jerry Biedenharn, Ann Brown, Charlotte Cooper, Mary Dixon, Joe Durrett, Preston Fergus, Henry Fergus, Rai Fergus, Frances Fergus, B. K. Fluker, Bennie Frances Fluker, Boling Jones, Arden Girault, Gwen Walker, Jackie Walker, Cleta Godfrey, C. D. Business, Professional Women's Club Honored

"For things I hold most dear,
For silvered night or gold-barred day,
For singing birds when sunset's near,
For rest at eventide, I pray—
May these things never pass away.

"For river fog and a lifting mist,
For boats that seek the harbor bar,
For mountain tops, and hills sunkissed,
Or moon-drenched at the evening star
For these my thanks—the things that are."

Members of the Business and Professional Women's club joined the poet in this expression of appreciation of beauty and peace as they put aside the "cares that infest the day" for a few hours of relaxation on board the "Weto," with Captain and Mrs. G. B Cooley, hosts.

The Ouachita river is a constant source of interest and pleasure for those who find time to be entertained by its elusive fascination. Fortunate indeed are those who own their own craft and can put out from shore nightly to enjoy the moon-drenched evenings and the star-studded heavens.

The "Weto" dropped anchor at Pine Top, where supper was served under the towering pines. William Nettles, talented whistler, and Miss Olivia H Lyne, a dramatic reader who is visiting Mrs. Laura Slator, entertained in a most delightful manner.

Following the supper hour, the entire assemblage visited the new sanatorium, where a room has been dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Mildred White Richardson and Mrs. Gertrude Slay, late members of the Business and Professional Women's club.

Drifting down the river, late in the evening, those on board the "Weto" were reminded that happiness and beauty are found in the harmony of the spirit of things. The club woman's creed was also brought to mind: "Let us take time for all things; make us calm, serene and gentle. Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.

Present, in addition to Captain and Mrs. Cooley, were Miss Bernice Wright, Mr. and Mrs. George Wesley Smith, Mrs. Jennie Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Slator, Miss Olivia H. Lyne, Mrs. Flora Fritz, Miss Hazel Crye, Mrs. Thelma Oseland, Miss Mae McIntosh, Miss Doris Fleming, Mrs. Lena Griffis, Mrs. Dora Anish, Mrs. Birdie Mae Mulhearn, Miss Alice Baur, Mrs. Lillie Arant, Miss Mamie Ober, Mrs. Johnnie S. Elbert, Miss Nora Downes, Mrs. Lillian Jackson, Mrs. Margaret Coenen, Mrs. Goldie Copes, Miss Mary Hester and Mr. William Nettles.

Plans Completed For Tidwell-LaCour Wedding August 15

Vows Will Be Taken At Methodist Church

Joy Steele Named Maid Of Honor; Favorites, Socially, Included In Entourage

Society's attention is being drawn from vacation planning to muse at the loveliness of a young bride-to-be, Miss Happy Tidwell, who will walk altarward with Mr. Vernon LaCour of Thibadeaux, La., August 15.

Plans have all been completed for this notable wedding, around which considerable beauty of detail will be woven. The bridal entourage alone claims considerable interest, as it comprises several social favorites whose youth and beauty will add distinction to the processional.

Miss Joy Steele will act as maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Doris Beaman, Miss Lillie Thompson, Miss Louise Gray and Miss Dorothy Lee Taylor, of Wichita Falls, Tex., a former classmate of Miss Tidwell's at Gulf Park college.

Miss Jane Becker of Memphis, Tenn., will be the soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Dean Selig, violinist.

The ceremony will take place at the First Methodist church, with Rev. W. C. Scott, the pastor, officiating.

Two little flower girls, Clayton Campbell, daughter of Mrs. J. N. Knowles, Jr., and Mary Steele Corley, of Winnfield, cousin of the bride, will add beauty and grace to the bridal entourage.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception will be held in the gardens of the A. S. Tidwell home on Jackson street.

Miss Tidwell Feted

A beautifully planned luncheon, with Mrs. B. M. McKoin and Mrs. J. W. Cummings hostesses, at the McKoin home in Edgewater Gardens, was a charming compliment to Miss Happy Tidwell on Friday at 12:30 o'clock.

Pink Columbia roses and Texas bluebonnets, in the greatest profusion, adorned the reception suite and formed the central decor for the luncheon table, resplendent in silver and handsome china. The place cards were of bridal significance, with a crystal bell marking cover for the guest of honor.

A four-course luncheon was faultlessly served, followed by a conversational hour. The hostesses presented Miss Tidwell with a gift of handsome linen.

Members of Miss Tidwell's bridal entourage comprised the guest list.

Wilkerson-Webb

Lovely simplicity characterized the wedding of Miss Lila Grace Webb and Mr. R. H. Wilkerson Wednesday morning, July 29, at the West Monroe Baptist parsonage, with Rev. E. E. Huntsberry performing the impressive ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends and members of the family.

The only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fields.

The bride wore a smart white and green model with accessories of white and an exquisite corsage of white gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wilkerson left on a brief honeymoon and upon their return will be at home to their friends on Ludwig avenue, West Monroe.

Mrs. Wilkerson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Spence of Tulsa, Okla. She was graduated from the Ouachita Parish High school with the class of 1934.

Mr. Wilkerson, son of Mrs. India Wilkerson of Monroe, holds a responsible position with the Brown Paper mill.

Graham-Kline

Claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state was the marriage of Miss Wynne Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kline of Delhi, and Mr. Tillman Oliver Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Graham, at the Methodist church of Delhi, with Rev. A. D. St. Amant officiating.

Cathedral tapers burned in the midst of palms and fern and garden blossoms overflowed from tall white wicker floor baskets in the background.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. H. S. Johnson, sister of the bridegroom. Mr. H. S. Johnson rendered several vocal numbers.

Mrs. Robert Merryman, the matron of honor, wore a lovely pastel pink lace model and carried an arm bouquet of pink daisies. Mrs. Roy Snider, the bride's sister, acted as matron of honor. She also wore a pastel pink lace model and carried pink daisies.

Mr. S. Graham served as his brother's best man.

The bride wore the traditional white satin, princess style gown with a coat of Alencon lace fashioned with a Marie Antoinette collar. She carried a sheaf of Calla lillies in her arms.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the gardens of Mrs. Roy Snider's home.

Mrs. Graham, for the past two years, has been home service representative for the Louisiana Power and Light company.

Mr. Graham is a recent graduate of Mississippi State college, where he was a member of Kappa Gamma fraternity and Scabbard and Blade, by which he was awarded a medal as an outstanding commander.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. A. N. Williams of Mer Rouge announces the engagement of her daughter, Ruth, to Mr. George Caldwell Vordenbumen of Baton Rouge. The wedding day has been set for August 29 and the marriage will take place in Mer Rouge.

Much interest centers about the announcement, as the bride-elect is a member of a prominent family of this section. She was graduated from Louisiana State university with the class of 1935. She is a member of Kappa Delta, social sorority, and of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary sorority, and is now employed in the agricultural extension department of the university.

The bridegroom-elect, is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has made his home in Baton Rouge for a number of years, originally coming from Shreveport, where his father, Mr. E. H. Vordenbumen, still resides.

Miss Sarah Scalia, student nurse at St. Francis sanitarium, will leave today for a week's vacation in Shreveport.

Louis Langford accompanied his aunt, Miss Sara Larche, to Helena, Ark., last week. Miss Larche will be one of the bridal attendants in the wedding of Miss Virginia Sue Chaffin on August 3.

Miss Lela Mae Nelson has returned from a visit with a former classmate at Belhaven college, Miss Sara Frances Bent, of Jackson, Miss., and with Miss Lillian Swayze of Yazoo City, Miss.

Miss Ethel Mae Allen has returned home from a two months' visit with friends in Minden and Doyline.

Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Hart and Randolph Hart returned home last week from a visit in Manitoba, Canada, and Duluth, Minn. A few days were also spent with relatives in Kansas City.

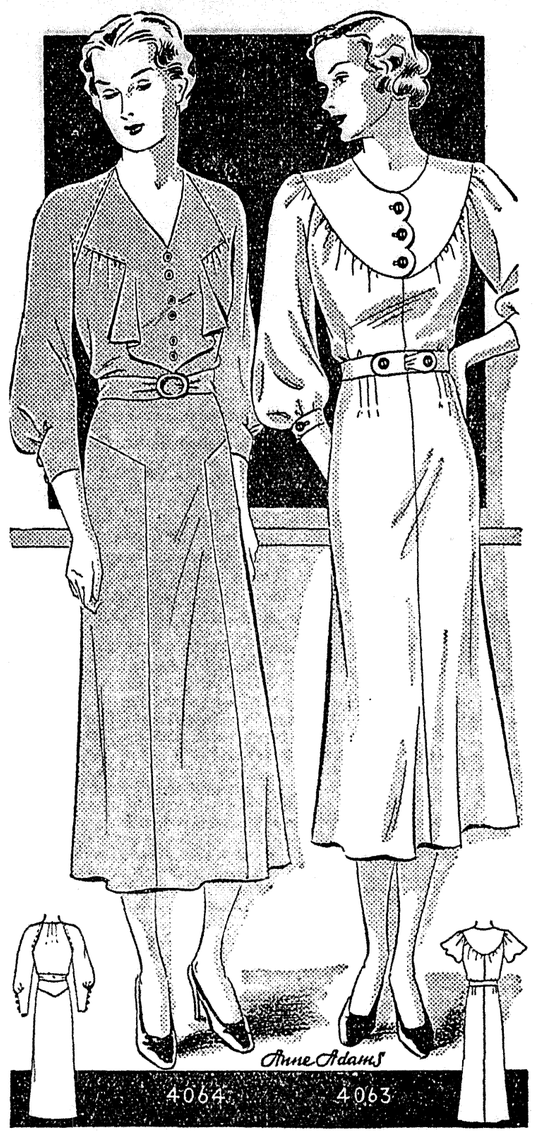

Mrs. Daniel O'Connor Bradford and Miss Eve Bradford left this morning for Los Angeles, Calif., where they will be guests during the month of August at the Arcady on Wilshire boulevard. They motored as far as Dallas with Mrs. Travis Oliver and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Oliver, Jr., who will spend a day visiting the Texas centennial.

Miss Lucy Williams of Asheville, N. C., daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Williams, former residents of this city, is a guest of Miss Maud S. Gill.

Friends will be glad to know that Miss Theodora Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hart, is convalescing nicely from an appendectomy at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic. Visitors, however, will not be permitted for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Parnell and their lovely young daughter, Helen Patricia, and Mrs. Parnell's sister, Mrs. Donie Harris, are spending their vacation in Dallas, Tex., attending the centennial.

Charming Frocks

PATTERNS 4064 AND 4063

Sparkling with originality, these two easily-made Anne Adams frocks cleverly outfit the fashion-wise miss and matron for all the gay occasions of mid-season and autumn! There never was a slimmer, brighter frock than Pattern 4064—distinguished by the soft styling of its unusual raglan sleeves, panel skirt, and stunning yoke terminating in a graceful jabot. You'll love it in crepe or winter sheer. Select a pretty wool georgette, bright synthetic or crepe for Pattern 4063—for a soft fabric will bring out the flattery of the deeply rounding yoke with its buttoned scallops, elbow or shorter length sleeves and daintily flared skirt.

Pattern 4064 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c.

Pattren 4063 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 5-8 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Be sure to order your copy of our ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK! See all the cool, lovely clothes you need for summer fun—pictured in smart, simple models that are even fun to make! Club Women Get Set For Autumn Activity

Monroe Garden Group Busy Throughout Year; Two Conventions Scheduled

Coming events cast their shadows before. Club women, following an unusually dull July, are now shaking off summer's inertia and looking ahead toward the month of September with its rush of activities.

One group of women however, members of the Monroe Garden club, have, with few exceptions, been alert throughout the summer. "Vigilance" is their watchword and they know full well the necessity of constant care of their garden. All members seem imbued with the fact that the garden club offers an absorbing interest, new avenues of beauty through the year, of joy, of peace, which no other organization has ever provided. Perhaps it is because "All the world loves a garden" and there is a universal response to the opportunity for creating, conserving and sharing beauty.

During the month of August, two state-wide assemblies will claim attention at a time when little else of interest is scheduled.

The meetings planned are the annual meeting of rural women at the farmer and farmwives short course, which will be held at Louisiana State university in Baton Rouge August 10 to 14 and the annual convention of the Louisiana department of the American Legion auxiliary, which will be held in New Orleans August 26, 27 and 28.

Home demonstration club members from all sections of the state will attend the Baton Rouge meeting, which will be under the general direction of Miss Ellen LeNoir, state home demonstration agent. A group of New Orleans club women under the leadership of Mrs. W. D. Clayton, parish home demonstration agent, are already making plans to attend the sessions, which are looked forward to each year. There will be both urban and rural women in attendance at the short course for all phases of homemaking are considered, classes are held in various subjects and other events claim attention.

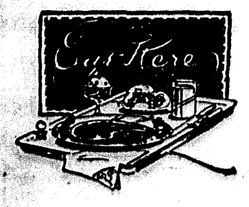

The short course will be featured also by the annual meeting of the Louisiana Home Demontsration club council, which will outline the program of work for next year. Reports will be given also on the meeting of Rural Women of the World, which was held in Washington, D. C., this spring and which was attended by a number of delegates from Louisiana.

Although the legion auxiliary convention is not until the very end of August, plans for this annual meeting are already well under way. Mrs. Robert Ramos, national historian and past state president, is convention chairman and under her able guidance local committees are already at work in preparation for the gathering which will bring a number of delegates to New Orleans.

Mrs. L. L. McCormick of Destrehan, state president, will preside over the sessions, which will be held jointly with the meeting of the American Legion. A number of national officers of both organizations are scheduled to attend and the convention promises to be an interesting one.

Major interest as far as auxiliary members are concerned will center as always in the election of new officers. Two candidates for president announced early in the year and these have appeared before many unit meetings. The announced candidates are Mrs. William Hamley of Lake Providence and Mrs. L. J. Hulin of Bunkie. Both have been active in the work of the auxiliary for some years and the election will no doubt be extremely close. Still other candidates may appear before convention time, but these two are the only ones who have formally announced.

St. Kilda, one of the Outer Hebrides, has no postoffice, so stamps cannot be purchased there. Letters are put in tin cans with the necessary amount of postage fastened to sheepskin buoys. These are cast into the water and allowed to drift until picked up.

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 7 p.m. The W. M. U. will continue to meet each Wednesday night at the church during the hot weather.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

There is a marked coincidence between the Epistle and Gospel for the eighth Sunday after Trinity. "The sons of God," says the former, are they that are "led by the Spirit of God," or, in other words, they that bring forth, "the fruits of the Spirit." So the Holy Gospel says ,"by their fruits ye shall know them." Instead of sowing to the flesh, therefore, or listening to "false prophets" "that come to you in sheep clothing," teaching worldly wisdom, as if "gain were godliness," we commit ourselves entirely to Him to decide what is good for us and what is hurtful. After all, the spirit of every true prayer is "Thy will be done." The services for the eighth Sunday after Trinity are as follows: The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. Please note that the 11 o'clock service is moved up to 9:30 a. m. Evensong will be said at St. David's, Rayville, at 4:30 o'clock and sermon preached. Thursday, August 6, is the Feast of the Transfiguration of Christ. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 9 a. m. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn Avenue and North Second Street

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m., Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 602 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 2, 1936. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." (I John 4). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is love. He is therefore the divine, infinite Principle, called Person or God." (p. 302).

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
Thomas and Richmond Streets
G. M. and Ina Lee Akin, Pastors

Worship begins at 9:45 a. m. with the convening of the Sunday school. Mr. S. P. Quigley is superintendent. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. by the pastors. N. Y. P. S. juniors meet at 5:30 p. m. The senior young people's group will meet at 6:45 p. m. Mrs. R. M. Gochenour will be in charge. The W. M. S. meets at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mrs. G. M. Akin is president. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Corner St. John and Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Director of Education and Music.

Rev. Hastings has returned from Flora, Miss., where he conducted a series of revival services, and will be in the pulpit for both services Sunday. We hope to have a splendid crowd to greet him. The services will be held as usual in the tabernacle auditorium, where there have been many favorable comments as to the comfort. Every member of the choir is urged to be present and will offer for the morning service the anthem "He Reigns." The various departments of the Sunday school will begin their programs promptly at 9:45 a. m. The B. T. U. will assemble at 6:45 p. m. There will be a Mandeville booster meeting at 7:30 Monday evening, at which time the Mandeville moving pictures will be shown by A. C Skannal of Shreveport.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Bible school at 9:45 a.m. Overcome the summer slump. Do not admit that tired feeling. Let every regular be there and bring one. Morning worship at 10:45. Our Lord's Supper. Sermon: "Imitating Christ." Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p.m. Evening worship at 7:45. Sermon: "Christians as Comforters." Wednesday evening meeting under the leadership of Mrs. R. O. Ware.

CHURCH OF CHRIST
South Second and Appple Streets
J. P. Lowery, Minister

"Blessed is every one that feareth Jehovah, that walketh in his ways. For thou shalt eat the labor of thy hands: happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee." Worship every Lord's day at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. Bible classes for all ages at 9:45 a.m. Parents, come and bring your children that we may study to show ourselves approved of God. Ladies' Bible class at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Bible study and prayer service at 7:45 Wednesday. It is encouraging to note the interest manifested in the Lord's work during the warm weather and the absence of the minister and many regular members from the city.

MODES of the MOMENT

For "don't dress nights," daylight dining and afternoon weddings, an American designer has created this "redingote dress" of midnight blue silk chiffon. It is made over a silk taffeta slip of the same hue and finished with short puffed sleeves and two front bands of embroidered white mousseline. A ribbon belt is caught with a blue and white nosegay. Short blue doeskin gloves and a wide-brimmed navy milan hat complete the costume.

Plans Completed For Tidwell-LaCour Wedding August 15

Vows Will Be Taken At Methodist Church

Joy Steele Named Maid Of Honor; Favorites, Socially, Included In Entourage

Society's attention is being drawn from vacation planning to muse at the loveliness of a young bride-to-be, Miss Happy Tidwell, who will walk altarward with Mr. Vernon LaCour of Thibadeaux, La., August 15.

Plans have all been completed for this notable wedding, around which considerable beauty of detail will be woven. The bridal entourage alone claims considerable interest, as it comprises several social favorites whose youth and beauty will add distinction to the processional.

Miss Joy Steele will act as maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Doris Beaman, Miss Lillie Thompson, Miss Louise Gray and Miss Dorothy Lee Taylor, of Wichita Falls, Tex., a former classmate of Miss Tidwell's at Gulf Park college.

Miss Jane Becker of Memphis, Tenn., will be the soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Dean Selig, violinist.

The ceremony will take place at the First Methodist church, with Rev. W. C. Scott, the pastor, officiating.

Two little flower girls, Clayton Campbell, daughter of Mrs. J. N. Knowles, Jr., and Mary Steele Corley, of Winnfield, cousin of the bride, will add beauty and grace to the bridal entourage.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception will be held in the gardens of the A. S. Tidwell home on Jackson street.

Miss Tidwell Feted

A beautifully planned luncheon, with Mrs. B. M. McKoin and Mrs. J. W. Cummings hostesses, at the McKoin home in Edgewater Gardens, was a charming compliment to Miss Happy Tidwell on Friday at 12:30 o'clock.

Pink Columbia roses and Texas bluebonnets, in the greatest profusion, adorned the reception suite and formed the central decor for the luncheon table, resplendent in silver and handsome china. The place cards were of bridal significance, with a crystal bell marking cover for the guest of honor.

A four-course luncheon was faultlessly served, followed by a conversational hour. The hostesses presented Miss Tidwell with a gift of handsome linen.

Members of Miss Tidwell's bridal entourage comprised the guest list.

Wilkerson-Webb

Lovely simplicity characterized the wedding of Miss Lila Grace Webb and Mr. R. H. Wilkerson Wednesday morning, July 29, at the West Monroe Baptist parsonage, with Rev. E. E. Huntsberry performing the impressive ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends and members of the family.

The only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fields.

The bride wore a smart white and green model with accessories of white and an exquisite corsage of white gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wilkerson left on a brief honeymoon and upon their return will be at home to their friends on Ludwig avenue, West Monroe.

Mrs. Wilkerson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Spence of Tulsa, Okla. She was graduated from the Ouachita Parish High school with the class of 1934.

Mr. Wilkerson, son of Mrs. India Wilkerson of Monroe, holds a responsible position with the Brown Paper mill.

Graham-Kline

Claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state was the marriage of Miss Wynne Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kline of Delhi, and Mr. Tillman Oliver Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Graham, at the Methodist church of Delhi, with Rev. A. D. St. Amant officiating.

Cathedral tapers burned in the midst of palms and fern and garden blossoms overflowed from tall white wicker floor baskets in the background.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. H. S. Johnson, sister of the bridegroom. Mr. H. S. Johnson rendered several vocal numbers.

Mrs. Robert Merryman, the matron of honor, wore a lovely pastel pink lace model and carried an arm bouquet of pink daisies. Mrs. Roy Snider, the bride's sister, acted as matron of honor. She also wore a pastel pink lace model and carried pink daisies.

Mr. S. Graham served as his brother's best man.

The bride wore the traditional white satin, princess style gown with a coat of Alencon lace fashioned with a Marie Antoinette collar. She carried a sheaf of Calla lillies in her arms.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the gardens of Mrs. Roy Snider's home.

Mrs. Graham, for the past two years, has been home service representative for the Louisiana Power and Light company.

Mr. Graham is a recent graduate of Mississippi State college, where he was a member of Kappa Gamma fraternity and Scabbard and Blade, by which he was awarded a medal as an outstanding commander.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. A. N. Williams of Mer Rouge announces the engagement of her daughter, Ruth, to Mr. George Caldwell Vordenbumen of Baton Rouge. The wedding day has been set for August 29 and the marriage will take place in Mer Rouge.

Much interest centers about the announcement, as the bride-elect is a member of a prominent family of this section. She was graduated from Louisiana State university with the class of 1935. She is a member of Kappa Delta, social sorority, and of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary sorority, and is now employed in the agricultural extension department of the university.

The bridegroom-elect is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has made his home in Baton Rouge for a number of years, originally coming from Shreveport, where his father, Mr. E. H. Vordenbumen, still resides.

Miss Sarah Scalia, student nurse at St. Francis sanitarium, will leave today for a week's vacation in Shreveport.

Louis Langford accompanied his aunt, Miss Sara Larche, to Helena, Ark., last week. Miss Larche will be one of the bridal attendants in the wedding of Miss Virginia Sue Chaffin on August 3.

Miss Lela Mae Nelson has returned from a visit with a former classmate at Belhaven college, Miss Sara Frances Bent, of Jackson, Miss., and with Miss Lillian Swayze of Yazoo City, Miss.

Miss Ethel Mae Allen has returned home from a two months' visit with friends in Minden and Doyline.

Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Hart and Randolph Hart returned home last week from a visit in Manitoba, Canada, and Duluth, Minn. A few days were also spent with relatives in Kansas City.

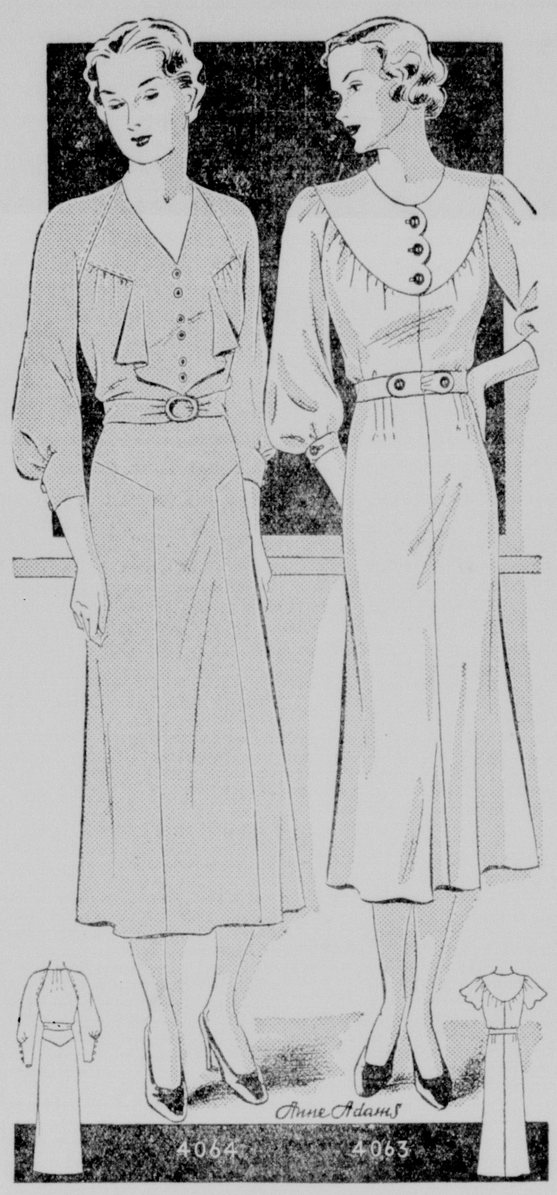

Mrs. Daniel O'Connor Bradford and Miss Eve Bradford left this morning for Los Angeles, Calif., where they will be guests during the month of August at the Arcady on Wilshire boulevard. They motored as far as Dallas with Mrs. Travis Oliver and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Oliver, Jr., who will spend a day visiting the Texas centennial.

Miss Lucy Williams of Asheville, N. C., daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Williams, former residents of this city, is a guest of Miss Maud S. Gill.

Friends will be glad to know that Miss Theodora Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hart, is convalescing nicely from an appendectomy at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic. Visitors, however, will not be permitted for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Parnell and their lovely young daughter, Helen Patricia, and Mrs. Parnell's sister, Mrs. Donie Harris, are spending their vacation in Dallas, Tex., attending the centennial.

Charming Frocks

PATTERNS 4064 AND 4063

Sparkling with originality, these two easily-made Anne Adams frocks cleverly outfit the fashion-wise miss and matron for all the gay occasions of mid-season and autumn! There never was a slimmer, brighter frock than Pattern 4064—distinguished by the soft styling of its unusual raglan sleeves, panel skirt, and stunning yoke terminating in a graceful jabot. You'll love it in crepe or winter sheer. Select a pretty wool georgette, bright synthetic or crepe for Pattern 4063—for a soft fabric will bring out the flattery of the deeply rounding yoke with its buttoned scallops, elbow or shorter length sleeves and daintily flared skirt.

Pattern 4064 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c.

Pattren 4063 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 5-8 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write plainly name, address and style number, BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Be sure to order your copy of our ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK! See all the cool, lovely clothes you need for summer fun—pictured in smart, simple models that are even fun to make! Perky house dresses and play outfits. Fetching frocks for parties. The latest slenderizing designs for stouts. Practical models for children. Advice on fabrics and sewing. BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. PATTERN FIFTEEN CENTS. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS FOR BOTH WHEN ORDERED TOGETHER.

Send your order to Monroe Morning World, Pattern Department, 243 West 17th street, New York, N. Y.

Club Women Get Set For Autumn Activity

Monroe Garden Group Busy Throughout Year; Two Conventions Scheduled

Coming events cast their shadows before. Club women, following an unusually dull July, are now shaking off summer's inertia and looking ahead toward the month of September with its rush of activities.

One group of women however, members of the Monroe Garden club, have, with few exceptions, been alert throughout the summer. "Vigilance" is their watchword and they know full well the necessity of constant care of their garden. All members seem imbued with the fact that the garden club offers an absorbing interest, new avenues of beauty through the year, of joy, of peace, which no other organization has ever provided. Perhaps it is because "All the world loves a garden" and there is a universal response to the opportunity for creating, conserving and sharing beauty.

During the month of August, two state-wide assemblies will claim attention at a time when little else of interest is scheduled.

The meetings planned are the annual meeting of rural women at the farmer and farmwives short course, which will be held at Louisiana State university in Baton Rouge August 10 to 14 and the annual convention of the Louisiana department of the American Legion auxiliary, which will be held in New Orleans August 26, 27 and 28.

Home demonstration club members from all sections of the state will attend the Baton Rouge meeting, which will be under the general direction of Miss Ellen LeNoir, state home demonstration agent. A group of New Orleans club women under the leadership of Mrs. W. D. Clayton, parish home demonstration agent, are already making plans to attend the sessions, which are looked forward to each year. There will be both urban and rural women in attendance at the short course for all phases of homemaking are considered, classes are held in various subjects and other events claim attention.

The short course will be featured also by the annual meeting of the Louisiana Home Demontsration club council, which will outline the program of work for next year. Reports will be given also on the meeting of Rural Women of the World, which was held in Washington, D. C., this spring and which was attended by a number of delegates from Louisiana.

Although the legion auxiliary convention is not until the very end of August, plans for this annual meeting are already well under way. Mrs. Robert Ramos, national historian and past state president, is convention chairman and under her able guidance local committees are already at work in preparation for the gathering which will bring a number of delegates to New Orleans.

Mrs. L. L. McCormick of Destrehan, state president, will preside over the sessions, which will be held jointly with the meeting of the American Legion. A number of national officers of both organizations are scheduled to attend and the convention promises to be an interesting one.

Major interest as far as auxiliary members are concerned will center as always in the election of new officers. Two candidates for president announced early in the year and these have appeared before many unit meetings. The announced candidates are Mrs. William Hamley of Lake Providence and Mrs. L. J. Hulin of Bunkie. Both have been active in the work of the auxiliary for some years and the election will no doubt be extremely close. Still other candidates may appear before convention time, but these two are the only ones who have formally announced.

St. Kilda, one of the Outer Hebrides, has no postoffice, so stamps cannot be purchased there. Letters are put in tin cans with the necessary amount of postage fastened to sheepskin buoys. These are cast into the water and allowed to drift until picked up.

The messages outlined for Sunday, morning and evening, will be a continuation of the thought of last Sunday. They are: Sunday morning, "An Open Heart"; Sunday evening, "An Open Hand." The church added nine members last Sunday. Large crowds are attending both services. Baptismal services will be conducted at the opening of the Sunday evening services.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Ernest Duncan Holloway, Minister

"Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." Acts 8:4. Church school 9:30 a.m. "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." You are cordially invited to be present at this hour of study. There is a class for every member of the family. Therefore come and bring your child or children. Dr. George Booth, pastor of the First Presbyterian church Natchez, Miss., will give the message at 11 a.m. Count it a privilege to be in your pew on the Lord's day and invite your friends to this period of worship.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH
Jackson At Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

On Sunday morning, Rev. J. A. McCormick will occupy our pulpit. We are glad indeed to have Rev. McCormick with us again and urge all members of the congregation to be present to welcome him and hear his message. There will be no evening services in this church during the month of August. Church school meets promptly at 9:30 a.m., in the children's division and 9:45 a.m. in all other departments. There is a well-organized class for every age group and you are cordially invited to join your group next Sunday. Epworth league meets every Sunday evening at 7 p.m., in the church annex. The Woman's Missionary society will meet at the church on Tuesday for its monthly business meeting, which begins promptly at 3 p.m. The spiritual life group meets in the prayer room at 2:30 p.m. The finance committee of the board of stewards will meet in the church office Monday evening at 7:30.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH
Stone Avenue and South Third Street
I. L. Yeager, Pastor

"Soul shall find soul; there is no distance
That bars love's brave insistance,
And nothing truly dies
In all the infinite realm of woe and weal;
Throughout creation's bound thrill answers thrill
And love to love replies."—Gilder.

ASSEMBLY OF GOD
West Monroe
E. L. Tanner, Pastor

Owing to the pastor's being out of town Sunday, the officers of the church will have charge of both the morning and evening services. Sunday is Missionary day in the Sunday school. We are expecting a great day full of blessings from the Lord. The annual business meeting will be held Tuesday night, August 11. At this meeting, the pastor and officers of the church for the ensuing year will be chosen. The entire membership is urged to be present.

IMMANUEL BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe
Rev. A. H. Johnson, Pastor

During the absence of Rev. Johnson and family who are visiting relatives and friends in Chicago, Rev. Selby Aswell of the First Baptist church, Monroe, will supply Sunday morning. His message will be "The Prodigal." This is not to be confused with the "prodigal son," however. Sunday evening, he will speak on "God's Commending Love." Both subjects are worthy of great sermons. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 7 p.m. The W. M. U. will continue to meet each Wednesday night at the church during the hot weather.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

There is a marked coincidence between the Epistle and Gospel for the eighth Sunday after Trinity. "The sons of God," says the former, are they that are "led by the Spirit of God," or, in other words, they that bring forth, "the fruits of the Spirit." So the Holy Gospel says ,"by their fruits ye shall know them." Instead of sowing to the flesh, therefore, or listening to "false prophets" "that come to you in sheep clothing," teaching worldly wisdom, as if "gain were godliness," we commit ourselves entirely to Him to decide what is good for us and what is hurtful. After all, the spirit of every true prayer is "Thy will be done." The services for the eighth Sunday after Trinity are as follows: The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. Please note that the 11 o'clock service is moved up to 9:30 a. m. Evensong will be said at St. David's, Rayville, at 4:30 o'clock and sermon preached. Thursday, August 6, is the Feast of the Transfiguration of Christ. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 9 a. m. The church is open daily from 7:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn Avenue and North Second Street

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m., Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock, Reading room, 602 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, August 2, 1936. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." (I John 4). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is love. He is therefore the divine, infinite Principle, called Person or God." (p. 302).

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
Thomas and Richmond Streets
G. M. and Ina Lee Akin, Pastors

Worship begins at 9:45 a. m. with the convening of the Sunday school. Mr. S. P. Quigley is superintendent. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. by the pastors. N. Y. P. S. juniors meet at 5:30 p. m. The senior young people's group will meet at 6:45 p. m. Mrs. R. M. Gochenour will be in charge. The W. M. S. meets at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mrs. G. M. Akin is president. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
Corner St. John and Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Director of Education and Music.

Rev. Hastings has returned from Flora, Miss., where he conducted a series of revival services, and will be in the pulpit for both services Sunday. We hope to have a splendid crowd to greet him. The services will be held as usual in the tabernacle auditorium, where there have been many favorable comments as to the comfort. Every member of the choir is urged to be present and will offer for the morning service the anthem "He Reigns." The various departments of the Sunday school will begin their programs promptly at 9:45 a. m. The B. T. U. will assemble at 6:45 p. m. There will be a Mandeville booster meeting at 7:30 Monday evening, at which time the Mandeville moving pictures will be shown by A. C. Skannal of Shreveport.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Crayton S. Brooks, Minister

Bible school at 9:45 a.m. Overcome the summer slump. Do not admit that tired feeling. Let every regular be there and bring one. Morning worship at 10:45. Our Lord's Supper. Sermon: "Imitating Christ." Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p.m. Evening worship at 7:45. Sermon: "Christians as Comforters." Wednesday evening meeting under the leadership of Mrs. R. O. Ware.

CHURCH OF CHRIST
South Second and Apple Streets
J. P. Lowery, Minister

"Blessed is every one that feareth Jehovah, that walketh in his ways. For thou shalt eat the labor of thy hands: happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee." Worship every Lord's day at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. Bible classes for all ages at 9:45 a.m. Parents, come and bring your children that we may study to show ourselves approved of God. Ladies' Bible class at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Bible study and prayer service at 7:45 Wednesday. It is encouraging to note the interest manifested in the Lord's work during the warm weather and the absence of the minister and many regular members from the city.

MODES of the MOMENT

For "don't dress nights," daylight dining and afternoon weddings, an American designer has created this "redingote dress" of midnight blue silk chiffon. It is made over a silk taffeta slip of the same hue and finished with short puffed sleeves and two front bands of embroidered white mousseline. A ribbon belt is caught with a blue and white nosegay. Short blue doeskin gloves and a wide-brimmed navy milan hat complete the costume.

HOME COURSE IN PIANO PLAYING—LESSON NO. 17

Copyright, 1927, by W. Scott Grove, Scranton, Pa. GROVE'S MUSIC SIMPLIFIER is fully protected by copyrights in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, the countries of Continental Europe and their colonies.

The key of B Flat Major has two flats, and in this lesson, the seventeenth of the series, the chart shows how to play accompaniments in the key of B Flat Major.

INSTRUCTION—Place the chart at right angles with the keyboard, so that the small white letter D with a dash above it on the chart is directly over D on the keyboard. Then the white spaces on the chart will be over the white keys and black spaces over the black keys. The top, middle and bottom sections on the chart represent the three chords, a mastery of which will enable any one to accompany on the piano or organ any song or melody in the key of B Flat Major. The white letters are to be played with the left hand, the black letters with the right hand.

Now, having placed the chart on the piano, play the white letter on the top section with the left hand, and then the three black letters in unison with the right hand. Next play the middle section in the same way, then the bottom section and then return to the top section. The small white letter D with a dash above it, which gives the chart position, must not be played. After a brief practice this chord can be memorized and you may play without the use of the chart. But with the chart a person who never struck a note on the piano or organ before may in a few minutes play the harmonious chords correctly, and then accompany his or her songs or the songs of friends.

Proficiency requires a little practice, but no previous knowledge of music.

Every triad in black letter is marked 1, 3, 5. Always read it so, no matter in what vertical order the notes may be written. Note that the small letter D with a dash above it must not be played.

NEXT LESSON—Key of G Minor which is the relative of the key of B Flat Major.

YOU CAN'T TELL BY SIGHT, TASTE OR SMELL!

Leading authorities agree that food may seem all right—yet actually be dangerous to eat. The one sure way to know whether your food is being kept safely is to check up on your ice box or mechanical refrigerator—"take its temperature." That's why we, as local sponsors for National Food-Safety Check-Up, offer this valuable Cold-Gauge FREE to adults calling at our store. It's not an ordinary thermometer, but an instrument designed to check temperatures of ice and mechanical refrigerators.

Find out now if your refrigerator is cold enough! 50 degrees is the danger line. Even at a few degrees above that point, many kinds of dangerous bacteria multiply by the millions and may become a serious menace to health. Frequently this is the real cause of many hot weather "upsets," especially those common to babies and children.

Recent surveys show that an amazing percentage of ice and mechanical refrigerators fail to keep safe, low temperatures during hot summer weather. So check up on yours right away. Stop in at our store and get your Cold-Gauge free while the supply lasts. Act at once.

HOME COURSE IN PIANO PLAYING—LESSON NO. 17

Copyright, 1927, by W. Scott Grove, Scranton, Pa.

GROVE'S MUSIC SIMPLIFIER is fully protected by copyrights in the United States, Canada, Great Britain, the countries of Continental Europe and their colonies.

The key of B Flat Major has two flats, and in this lesson, the seventeenth of the series, the chart shows how to play accompaniments in the key of B Flat Major.

INSTRUCTION—Place the chart at right angles with the keyboard, so that the small white letter D with a dash above it on the chart is directly over D on the keyboard. Then the white spaces on the chart will be over the white keys and black spaces over the black keys. The top, middle and bottom sections on the chart represent the three chords, a mastery of which will enable any one to accompany on the piano or organ any song or melody in the key of B Flat Major. The white letters are to be played with the left hand, the black letters with the right hand.

Now, having placed the chart on the piano, play the white letter on the top section with the left hand, and then the three black letters in unison with the right hand. Next play the middle section in the same way, then the bottom section and then return to the top section. The small white letter D with a dash above it, which gives the chart position, must not be played. After a brief practice this chord can be memorized and you may play without the use of the chart. But with the chart a person who never struck a note on the piano or organ before may in a few minutes play the harmonious chords correctly, and then accompany his or her songs or the songs of friends.

Proficiency requires a little practice, but no previous knowledge of music.

Every triad in black letter is marked 1, 3, 5. Always read it so, no matter in what vertical order the notes may be written. Note that the small letter D with a dash above it must not be played.

NEXT LESSON—Key of G Minor which is the relative of the key of B Flat Major.

HOW MRS. WILSON LEARNED THE CAUSE OF MANY HOT WEATHER "UPSETS"!

YOU CAN'T TELL BY SIGHT, TASTE OR SMELL!

Leading authorities agree that food may seem all right—yet actually be dangerous to eat. The one sure way to know whether your food is being kept safely is to check up on your ice box or mechanical refrigerator—"take its temperature." That's why we, as local sponsors for National Food-Safety Check-Up, offer this valuable Cold-Gauge FREE to adults calling at our store. It's not an ordinary thermometer, but an instrument designed to check temperatures of ice and mechanical refrigerators.

Find out now if your refrigerator is cold enough! 50 degrees is the danger line. Even at a few degrees above that point, many kinds of dangerous bacteria multiply by the millions and may become a serious menace to health. Frequently this is the real cause of many hot weather "upsets," especially those common to babies and children.

Recent surveys show that an amazing percentage of ice and mechanical refrigerators fail to keep safe, low temperatures during hot summer weather. So check up on yours right away. Stop in at our store and get your Cold-Gauge free while the supply lasts. Act at once.

Urge To Believe Scandal Is Theme Of 'These Three'

Three Stars Featured At Paramount

Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon And Joel McCrea Head Big Cast

THE unhappy observation that people are more eager to believe evil than good of their fellow man provided Lillian Hellman, brilliant Broadway playwright, with the theme of "These Three," her new screen play for Samuel Goldwyn, which plays at the Paramount theater today and tomorrow, with Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea in the title roles.

The powerful story, which offers picturegoers something entirely new in the way of gripping dramatic situations, shows how one scandalous lie, the invention of a spiteful 12-year-old schoolgirl, hurled ruin, like a bombshell, into the lives of three innocent adults, who would otherwise have led a happy, peaceful existence.

Thus does Miss Hellman, who is under a long-term contract to Goldwyn, establish her point: Had the child said only complimentary things, who would have paid any attention to her?

"It is one of the tragedies of civilization," observes Miss Hellman, "that the nice things we know or hear about our fellow men seem of little importance. We make no effort to pass them on.

"But just let us chance to hear or suspect something derogatory or detrimental and we seem to become human systems of rapid communcation."

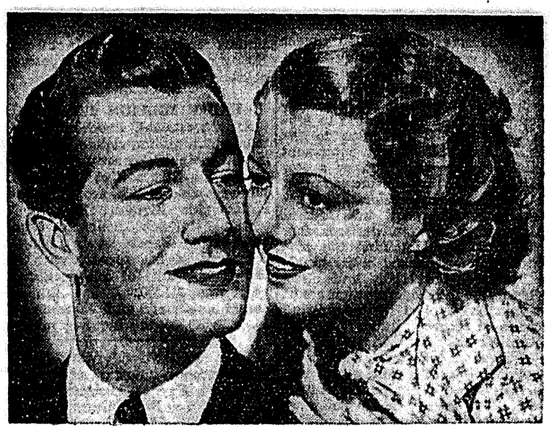

The victims of the vicious lie that motivates the story are Karen Wright and Martha Dobie, two young college women who establish a small girls' school in New England, and Dr. Joseph Cardin, the young local doctor-fiance of Karen, whom Martha secretly also loves. The roles are played by Merle Oberon, Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea, respectively, while the part of Mary Tilford, the 12-year-old "heavy" of the piece, is played by Bonita Granville, who has been pronounced a genuine "find" and is said to give a performance so brilliant that it raises her role almost to stellar importance.

Miss Hellman has shown a remarkable grasp of a child's capacity for rationalization by depicting the young villain as launching her utterly ruthless "whispering campaign" for no better reason than that she does not like to do her school work. Undoubtedly, neither this child nor any other 12-year-old has a sufficient acumen to realize the damage that can be wrought by a vicious lie, but, it is the author's contention, even a child of these years seems to know instinctively that her elders will give her their wholehearted attention when the intelligence she has to offer is tinged with scandal.

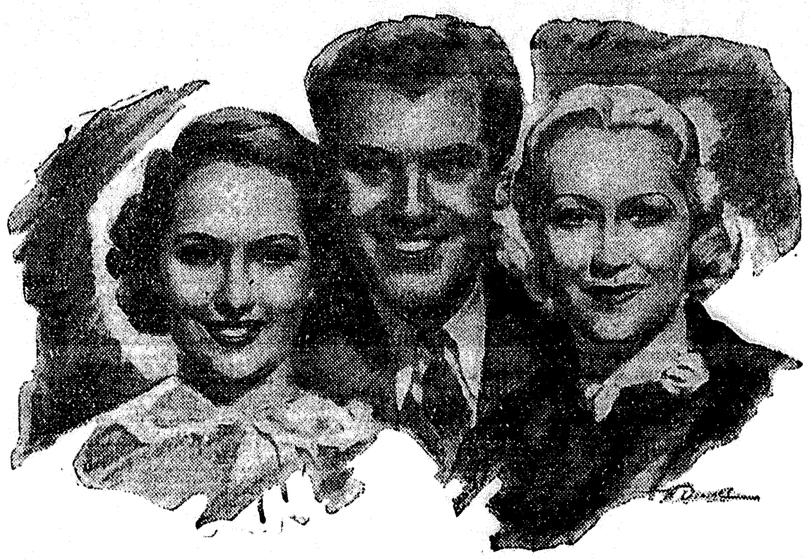

Others prominent in the cast of "These Three" are Catherine Doucet, Alma Kruger, Marcia Mae Jones, Carmencita Johnson, Margaret Hamilton, Marie Louise Cooper, and Walter Brennan. The film was directed by William Wyler and is released through United Artists.

Ann Loring and Warner Baxter in a scene from the exciting romance of a bandit who defied a nation, "Robin Hood of El Dorado" the attraction at the Capitol theater Thursday, with Bruce Cabot, Margo, J. Carroll Naish, Eric Linden and Edgar Kennedy. The story deals with the old West and brings back the splendor of the "covered wagon" days.

Popular Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor make up what is considered the film's most perfect couple. The two are co-starred in Ben Ames William's story of chaotic runaway marriage, "Small Town Girl," the feature at the Capitol theater Tuesday and Wednesday. Binnie Barnes, Lewis Stone, Andy Devine, Elizabeth Patterson and Frank Craven head the supporting cast.

Merle Oberon, Joel McCrea and Miriam Hopkins who are co-starred in the most talked about picture of the year, "These Three," the attraction at the Paramount theater today and Monday. Behind closed doors, wicked tongues wagged, poisoned minds festered and three free souls, gay and brave, stood on the brink of disaster! One man and two women, one he loved, the other he adored, and he was true to both. Alone in a hostile world they stood together, fighting to find happiness again, together. It's the season's dramatic hit.

A society deb's daring tears the lid from crimeland's newest racket in "Human Cargo," the attraction at the Capitol theater Friday. Claire Trevor plays the leading role, with Ralph Morgan and Rita Cansino heading the notable supporting cast in this fast action romance of thrills and adventure amid the bright lights of a big city.

Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur will play a special return engagement at the Paramount theater Tuesday and Wednesday in the new idea in gay romantic comedy, "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town," Frank Capra's latest bid for the ten best of the year, topping his own "It Happened One Night" for ribcracking fun, throbbing romance and the most startling climax the screen has ever known. George Bancroft, Lionel Stander, Douglas Dumbrille and H. B. Warner heard the big supporting cast. It has proven the surprise hit of the year.

Ray Milland, Gertrude Michael and Sir Guy Standing in a scene from thrilling romance "The Return of Sophie Lang" the attraction at the Capitol theater today and Monday. The blonde bandit's back again . . . more daring . . . more baffling . . . more bewitching than ever. She steals the world's largest diamond from a guy who thought he was was the world's smoothest crook.

Harry Woods and Ken Maynard in an exciting scene from the western romance "Heroes of the Range," the attraction at the Capitol theater Saturday,

Robert Donat, the hero of Monte Cristo, and Medeleine Carroll who are co-starred in the thrilling mystery romance of spies and intrigue, "The 39 Steps," which plays at the Paramount theater Thursday and Friday. The story is concerned with spies and a clever plot to steal out of the country an air ministry secret in such a way that the government would never know it had been stolen.

'Return Of Sophie Lang' At Capitol

Thrilling Tale Of Blonde Bandit Is Depicted In New Screen Hit

THE notorious thief of hearts and jewels who made a deep impression on American film audiences when she first appeared on the screen two years ago, stages a comeback in "The Return of Sophie Lang," opening today at the Capitol theater.

Title role in the fast-moving story of the reappearance of an international diamond thief is played by blonde, southern Gertrude Michael, who created "Sophie" in the original picture, "The Notorious Sophie Lang." The first picture marked Miss Michael's advance to stardom.

"The Return of Sophie Lang" picks up the story where "The Notorious Sophie Lang" dropped it. Sophie, believed dead by the police of two continents, is disclosed as having been in hiding. Reformed, she is seeking to conceal her true identity.

She is in the employ of an elderly woman, Elizabeth Patterson, who is a collector of valuable gems. As the picture opens the pair are sailing to America, with Miss Patterson having in her possession a famous gem, the Krueger diamond, which she has just purchased.

On shipboard Miss Michael meets Sir Guy Standing, her former associate in jewel thefts. Sir Guy, himself intent on getting his hands on the Krueger diamond, assumes that Sophie is playing the same game, refusing to believe her protestations that she has reformed.

Meanwhile, on board ship, a romance has begun between Miss Michael and Ray Milland, cast as a foreign newspaper correspondent.

Sir Guy steals the diamond, then is faced with the need of getting it ashore in America. He slips it into Milland's pocket.

The means by which Miss Michael regains the gem for her employer, clears herself of suspicion, and brings her romance to a happy conclusion, make the balance of the story.

PICNIC PLANNED

Members of the Mount Gilead Baptist church (negro) will sponsor a moonlight picnic and hay-ride at the Chapel Hill Baptist church Tuesday night, according to Felix Thompson, pastor of Mount Gilead church.

Notes On Life In Hollywood

By Robbin Coons

Heat wave movies:

Gary Cooper, looking just about as he did before his boss, Adolph Zukor, put a value of $4,000,000 on his future services, is in his first day of work on "The Plainsman." The set is outdoors, under a broiling sun, and represents a steamboat landing at Leavenworth, Kas., with prospective pioneers of the plains.

Cecil B. DeMille, wearing a lavender shirt, green riding breeches and shiny boots, is directing. He rides on the camera crane, swung low for this shot of Cooper as Wild Bick Hickok, James Ellison as Buffalo Bill, and Helen Burgess as Mrs. Buffalo Bill disembarking with a swarm of extras.

A youth is holding the loudspeaker before DeMille, solicitously.

"Stop all this talking," DeMille is scolding the extras through it. "How can I talk against Niagara Falls?"

Gary Keeps Mum

An assistant pleads for "intelligent confusion" as the passengers land.

Whether the confusion he gets is "intelligent" is for mob experts to decide, not for sun-wilted visitors. But scene, and Gary comes off the set.

Amiable and taciturn as always, he isn't talking about this "alienation of business affections" suit Zukor filed against Sam Goldwyn. "I think it's all a publicity stunt," he comments facetiously of the court action arising from his signing a contract to leave Paramount for Goldwyn's studio.

Cooper was an extra about a year before Goldwyn selected him for a featured role in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," his first of importance—"unless," he said, "you can count a two-reeler I did, playing in support of a dog."

Politics In The Sun

The sun beats scorchingly upon an early American political meeting while Clarence Brown gets a stirring scene for "The Gorgeous Hussy." Andrew Jackson's opponents have come to excoriate him outside his hotel. Jackson (Lionel Barrymore) has stormed into the mob to battle a belligerent. Daniel Webster (Sidney Toler) calls for peace. Jackson, he announces, has been elected president!

There are sudden cheers, bitterness forgotten. Bleeding, Jackson staggers forward, exclaims: "Rachel! I must find Rachel."

But Barrymore goes not to Rachel but to his canvas back chair in the shade.

Robert Donat, the hero of Monte Cristo, and Medeleine Carroll who are co-starred in the thrilling mystery romance of spies and intrigue, "The 39 Steps," which plays at the Paramount theater Thursday and Friday. The story is concerned with spies and a clever plot to steal out of the country an air ministry secret in such a way that the government would never know it had been stolen.

Notes On Life In Hollywood

By Robbin Coons

Heat wave movies:

Gary Cooper, looking just about as he did before his boss, Adolph Zukor, put a value of $4,000,000 on his future services, is in his first day of work on "The Plainsman." The set is outdoors, under a broiling sun, and represents a steamboat landing at Leavenworth, Kas., with prospective pioneers of the plains.

Cecil B. DeMille, wearing a lavender shirt, green riding breeches and shiny boots, is directing. He rides on the camera crane, swung low for this shot of Cooper as Wild Bick Hickok, James Ellison as Buffalo Bill, and Helen Burgess as Mrs. Buffalo Bill disembarking with a swarm of extras.

A youth is holding the loudspeaker before DeMille, solicitously.

"Stop all this talking," DeMille is scolding the extras through it. "How can I talk against Niagara Falls?"

Gary Keeps Mum

An assistant pleads for "intelligent confusion" as the passengers land.

Whether the confusion he gets is "intelligent" is for mob experts to decide, not for sun-wilted visitors. But scene, and Gary comes off the set.

Amiable and taciturn as always, he isn't talking about this "alienation of business affections" suit Zukor filed against Sam Goldwyn. "I think it's all a publicity stunt," he comments facetiously of the court action arising from his signing a contract to leave Paramount for Goldwyn's studio.

Cooper was an extra about a year before Goldwyn selected him for a featured role in "The Winning of Barbara Worth," his first of importance—"unless," he said, "you can count a two-reeler I did, playing in support of a dog."

Politics In The Sun

The sun beats scorchingly upon an early American political meeting while Clarence Brown gets a stirring scene for "The Gorgeous Hussy." Andrew Jackson's opponents have come to excoriate him outside his hotel. Jackson (Lionel Barrymore) has stormed into the mob to battle a belligerent. Daniel Webster (Sidney Toler) calls for peace. Jackson, he announces, has been elected president!

There are sudden cheers, bitterness forgotten. Bleeding, Jackson staggers forward, exclaims: "Rachel! I must find Rachel."

But Barrymore goes not to Rachel but to his canvas back chair in the shade.

Davis, principal of Colfax High school, receiving his master of arts degree at the same time.

Artificial ice is not new. It was used industrially as far back as 1880.

'Return Of Sophie Lang' At Capitol

Thrilling Tale Of Blonde Bandit Is Depicted In New Screen Hit

THE notorious thief of hearts and jewels who made a deep impression on American film audiences when she first appeared on the screen two years ago, stages a comeback in "The Return of Sophie Lang," opening today at the Capitol theater.

Title role in the fast-moving story of the reappearance of an international diamond thief is played by blonde, southern Gertrude Michael, who created "Sophie" in the original picture, "The Notorious Sophie Lang." The first picture marked Miss Michael's advance to stardom.

"The Return of Sophie Lang" picks up the story where "The Notorious Sophie Lang" dropped it. Sophie, believed dead by the police of two continents, is disclosed as having been in hiding. Reformed, she is seeking to conceal her true identity.

She is in the employ of an elderly woman, Elizabeth Patterson, who is a collector of valuable gems. As the picture opens the pair are sailing to America, with Miss Patterson having in her possession a famous gem, the Krueger diamond, which she has just purchased.

On shipboard Miss Michael meets Sir Guy Standing, her former associate in jewel thefts. Sir Guy, himself intent on getting his hands on the Krueger diamond, assumes that Sophie is playing the same game, refusing to believe her protestations that she has reformed.

Meanwhile, on board ship, a romance has begun between Miss Michael and Ray Milland, cast as a foreign newspaper correspondent.

Sir Guy steals the diamond, then is faced with the need of getting it ashore in America. He slips it into Milland's pocket.

The means by which Miss Michael regains the gem for her employer, clears herself of suspicion, and brings her romance to a happy conclusion, make the balance of the story.

REALTY VALUES STABILIZED NOW

Real Estate Man Declares Healthier Condition Exists In His Line

Real estate values in Monroe and West Monroe are becoming stabilized, according to Luther Reed, former president of the Monroe Real Estate board. He regards this as a most healthy condition.

"Values here were a wild guess formerly, a property being valued at almost any figure that the purchaser could be induced to pay for it," he said. "But with the governmental financing agencies entering the field, safe and sane values have been established."

Mr. Reed said that efforts are being exerted to speed up the operations of the FHA here and that the fall promises to see far more construction than has been the case in the past. He cited the city of Jackson, Miss., where 250 to 300 houses are now being erected, largely through government aid.

Need for much heavier volume of construction is seen here by Mr. Reed because of a shortage of available houses. Virtually all rent houses are occupied and business houses along DeSiard street, he said, show few if any vacancies.

From what seemed reliable information, Mr. Reed stated that during the past 12 months, the building and loan organizations here had sold from two million to two and a half million dollars worth of property. He termed this a phenominal record. To be sure, he admitted, some had been sold on transfers made on stock held in the companies, but just the same, he said, it has worked out toward putting Monroe and West Monroe on a safer and far more substantial realty basis.

All real estate men are active and each day shows an increasing volume of sales, Mr. Reed stated. He said there was a decided demand for suburban property, where a buyer can maintain a cow and chickens and have several acres of land for a small family garden.

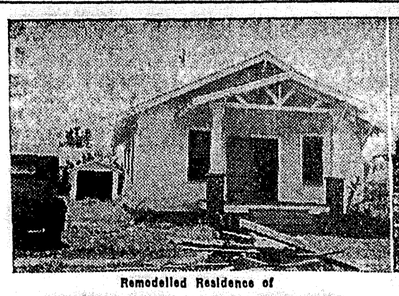

Reverting to the stabilizing of values, Mr. Reed again stressed its importance and gave it as his opinion that this is the most important development from a real estate man's viewpoint that has happened in Monroe for years, ane that will give more confidence to the purchaser, who will know that there is no inflation and that he can later resell at a price that will show a conservative profit.

GUILD ESTABLISHED

NORFOLK, Va.—Business men here have established a guild plan, which is a cooperative organization selling goods or services to the home or property owner. The program of the Federal Housing administration will be explained to interested persons. The guild will maintain permanent headquarters and employs a regular staff.

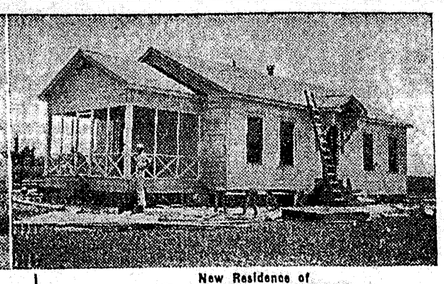

MINIATURE MODELS

PORTLAND, Ore.—An exhibit of miniature model homes prepared by students of the several high schools of the city has been held in the auditorium of a local store, under the sponsorship of the housing division of the Federated Women's organizations. Numerous prizes and awards were given, including two scholarships to universities.

Bathroom Construction Must Withstand Weight Of Fixtures

There are several things about the construction of a bathroom that should be given careful consideration when planning to build or remodel.

In the first place, it must be remembered that there is a good deal of concentrated weight, for the fixtures are heavy and placed close together, and the tile floor, if there is to be a tile floor, has a concrete base about three inches thick which weighs considerably more than an ordinary wood floor. So the floor construction must be strong enough to hold this added weight without excessive deflection that might crack the plaster of the ceiling below.

Next, if there is to be a tile floor, the tops of the joists should be leveled off and wood forms placed between the joists at the depth necessary to provide the three-inch concrete base.

Before the base is poured, all pipes must be in place, and any pipes that must be run in this three-inch space occupied by the concrete should be bridged with a piece of tin or other sheet metal or a piece of metal lath bent in a half circle so that the pipes will be free to expand and contract in this tunnel without cracking the concrete.

If the tub is of the built-in type, a light steel angle should be screwed to the studs so that the rim of the tub at the wall can rest on it. This eliminates, to a large extent, the possibility of a crack appearing where the wall finish meets the tub. Besides these things, it is advisable to install pieces of 2 by 4's in between the studs about four feet above the floor to form a continuous nailing strip around the room. This makes it possible to put up towel bars and glass holders and other accessories wherever they may be wanted without depending upon the plaster or tile to support them.

In the matter of lighting it should be borne in mind that water and metal pipes are excellent conductors, so switches and light plugs should be placed in such locations that they cannot be reached from the tub or from the basin. Pull-chain fixtures should be avoided if possible, but if they are installed they should have a nonconducting link in the chain. Remember, when you select the wall finish that it will be subjected to excessive moisture and even warm vapor and use something that will withstand this.

Modernization credit funds obtained from a financial institution which holds a contract of insurance with the federal housing administration may be used to remodel the bathroom.

Air Conditioning Unit For Winter Systems Found

A newcomer in the field of air-conditioning is a compact unit for use in connection with hot-water or steam-heating systems. This type of equipment may be purchased and installed under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

This new unit converts the usual hot-water or steam-heating system into a winter air-conditioning system by performing the following desirable functions: Filtering, circulating and humidifying the air. It may also be arranged to provide ventilation by a connection to the outdoor air.

Especially noteworthy is its compactness, actually little larger than a suitcase, making for ease of installation in either new or existing heating systems.

Important advantages of the unit are its adaptability to automatic control, which makes for convenience and better heat distribution throughout the house; its ability to add the required moisture to the dry-heated air; and, of course quite important, its economy of operation due to its beneficial effect on the regular heating system and because it consumes no more current than a 60-watt lamp.

For those who wish summer cooling in addition to the air circulation provided by the unit, a cooling coil may be added which is connected to a refrigerating machine.

CHICAGO BUYS CARS

The number of new motor cars sold in Cook county (Chicago), Ill., in June, according to a report in the Chicago Tribune, amounted to 13,140 units, boosting the total for the first six months of this year to 66,205 units. This is a new all-time high for this period, the previous record occurring in the comparable period of 1929, when dealers sold 65,558 units.

FIRE PREVENTION

When the garage is attached directly to the house, it is well to build the connecting wall of non-flammable material and put a fire door on the garage side of the opening connecting it to the house proper. This should be in addition to the ordinary door that will be installed on the house side.

PROVISION FOR DRAIN

At the bottom of an outside cellar stairway, or any other flight of steps that leads down from grade to an entrance into a house, there should be an area at least six inches deep with a drain in it that leads to some escape for the water that will flow down the pipes.

REGIMENTATION TO BE AVOIDED

Variation In Construction Plans Urged By Housing Administration

Low-priced houses, except in the rural districts, for economic reasons are necessarily on small lots, which makes the question of light and air a vital one. This can be taken care of to a large extent by abandoning the old custom of having every house toe the building line, according to the federal housing administration, which has made a study of small-house planning. If some of the houses are placed back from the line, the side windows can be cleared so that the sun and air can reach them.

This system of irregular setbacks has another advantage: The houses themselves can be used as units in a large design, which relieves the monotony of the unbroken rows so common in our inexpensive neighborhoods. By this means small courts can be worked out, with the houses that are set back on opposite sides of the street forming the sides, and the adjacent houses that are set near the street forming the ends. Thus a series of small courts can be arranged, and no sense of regimentation will be present.

With some variations in exterior treatment, a few good floor plans can be used without any consciousness on the part of the observer of repetition because he can only see a few houses at a time.

Another thing that helps to make a harmonious whole is to avoid the use of contrasting colors in juxtaposition. If the individual houses are treated like units in a large design, like the various elements in a large building, a pleasing feeling of harmony will be present without any monotony. One of the chief charms of our New England villages is the uniformity of color and general style. Our modern suburbs lack this and are consequently much less pleasing to the eye.

BUILD PORCHES LOW

A living porch that is close to the earth gives the feeling of out of doors more than one that stands two or three feet above grade. Even with houses built well off the ground, the porch can be placed near grade, and a decorative flight of steps to the door can be the connecting link. This calls for unusually high pillars or posts, but they can be made quite effective.

POTENTIAL MARKET SHOWN IN BOOKLET

'The Modernization Credit Plan' Is Given In New Publication

Pointing out that the market for financing repairs, alterations, and additions to homes and other real property is estimated at between one billion and one and a half billion dollars per year, the federal housing administration outlines the tremendous modernization possibilities in a new bulletin distributed to financial institutions. This booklet, "The Modernization Credit Plan," is a republication embodying certain modifications of regulations previously issued under title 1 of the national housing act.

In the new publication the federal housing administration explains that the original purpose of the modernization credit plan in 1934 was to provide an immediate stimulus to the building construction and equipment industry, which was then at a low ebb. After outlining the progress that has been made in accelerating business and employment the federal housing administration declares that in addition to maintaining the momentum now established in the building industry, the credit and other machinery of the modernization credit plan must be applied to the growing demands of recovery itself.

"Families that doubled up during the depression are, with wider employment, branching out again into separate homes," the administration states. "The same improvement in employment conditions is making it easier for young people to marry and establish homes of their own. Thousands of these family units will best be served at this time with small housekeeping suites and apartments created by remodeling existing houses and other structures.

"As incomes increase, a better standard of accommodations will be demanded by tenants of individual houses and apartment buildings. New bathrooms and kitchens, modern heating systems, additional bedrooms, redecorating, and repairs, garages, and other improvements will be required. Home owners will make the same investments in the houses they occupy.

"Merchants will need larger and more modern stores to keep up with the rising volume of trade and competitive developments in their field. Manufacturers will replace obsolete equipment to cut costs and increase production. Office buildings and other commercial structures will require remodeling, redecorating, and re-equipment.

"It is vital that adequate credit facilities be available for encouraging this trend toward higher standards and progressive expansion. Gradually developing from the influence of economic improvement, it intensifies and sustains the improvement that caused it."

The federal housing administration called attention also to the addition of section 6 to title 1. This is designed to assist in the rehabilitation of property damaged or destroyed in recent floods, tornadoes, and other catastrophes.

BETTER OFF TODAY

Four million families are better off today than they were in 1929 and therefore have more money for home ownership, according to Harold T. Donaldson, United States Building and Loan league official in the New York Herald Tribune. He reports that the payrolls of wage earners in manufacturing industries in this country increased 52 per cent from 1932 to 1936. This increase, he reports, is continuing and that payrolls in April, 1936, show a 10 per cent increase over payrolls of April, 1935.

EIGHT MILLION INCREASE

An investment increase of more than eight million dollars was noted in Philadelphia's construction volume during the first half of 1936 over the similar period of 1935, according to the Philadelphia Inquirer. Building operations and construction investment reached the highest levels during the first half of the current year since 1931. Total value of construction this year was $11,590,960. For the same period a year ago total value amounted to $3,503,360, the Inquirer said.

PAYING ITS WAY

The cement industry, according to George H. Snyder, business editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is back on a profitable basis due to the rising volume of construction work all over the country. Mr. Snyder reports that some producers managed during the past two years to make money. But the industry as a whole lost a good deal of ground during the depression. This year, he writes, the average producer will make a profit.

PAINT SALES GAIN STEADILY IN 1936

Figures Show Increase For The Present Year Over Those Of 1935

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Marked gains in sales are reported by the paint industry during the first five months of 1936 as compared with the same period last year, according to a compilation by the bureau of the census.

Reports from 344 paint manufacturers showed that during the first five months this year total sales amounted to $151,499,921 as compared to $137,620,187 for the same period last year, a gain of 10.1 per cent.

Total paint sales for May, 1936, showed an 11 per cent gain over the same month last year. The figures: Sales, May 1936, $40,989,663; May 1935, $36,160,067.

It has been estimated that since the inception of the federal housing administration's modernization credit plan that approximately 20 per cent of the modernizer's dollar is spent for paint or paint materials and labor.

FOR KITCHEN COMFORT

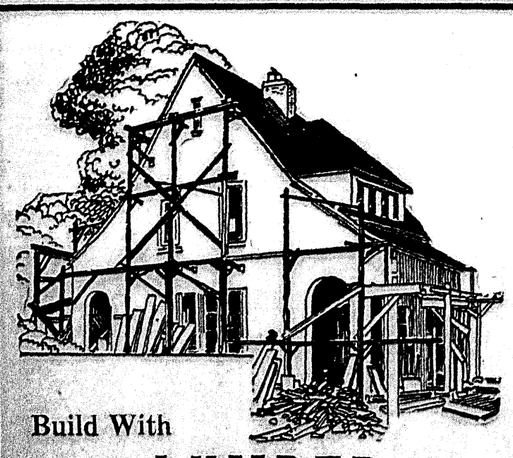

A portion of the counter shelf in the kitchen should have knee room below it and a high stool provided that will slip underneath when not in use. With such a space and stool the worker can sit down to the preparation of vegetables and other tasks and save a good deal of fatigue that is caused by long hours of standing.

REALTY VALUES STABILIZED NOW

Real Estate Man Declares Healthier Condition Exists In His Line

Real estate values in Monroe and West Monroe are becoming stabilized, according to Luther Reed, former president of the Monroe Real Estate board. He regards this as a most healthy condition.

"Values here were a wild guess formerly, a property being valued at almost any figure that the purchaser could be induced to pay for it," he said. "But with the governmental financing agencies entering the field, safe and sane values have been established."

Mr. Reed said that efforts are being exerted to speed up the operations of the FHA here and that the fall promises to see far more construction than has been the case in the past. He cited the city of Jackson, Miss., where 250 to 300 houses are now being erected, largely through government aid.

Need for much heavier volume of construction is seen here by Mr. Reed because of a shortage of available houses. Virtually all rent houses are occupied and business houses along DeSiard street, he said, show few if any vacancies.

From what seemed reliable information, Mr. Reed stated that during the past 12 months, the building and loan organizations here had sold from two million to two and a half million dollars worth of property. He termed this a phenominal record. To be sure, he admitted, some had been sold on transfers made on stock held in the companies, but just the same, he said, it has worked out toward putting Monroe and West Monroe on a safer and far more substantial realty basis.

All real estate men are active and each day shows an increasing volume of sales, Mr. Reed stated. He said there was a decided demand for suburban property, where a buyer can maintain a cow and chickens and have several acres of land for a small family garden.

Reverting to the stabilizing of values, Mr. Reed again stressed its importance and gave it as his opinion that this is the most important development from a real estate man's viewpoint that has happened in Monroe for years, ane that will give more confidence to the purchaser, who will know that there is no inflation and that he can later resell at a price that will show a conservative profit.

GUILD ESTABLISHED

NORFOLK, Va.—Business men here have established a guild plan, which is a cooperative organization selling goods or services to the home or property owner. The program of the Federal Housing administration will be explained to interested persons. The guild will maintain permanent headquarters and employs a regular staff.

MINIATURE MODELS

PORTLAND, Ore.—An exhibit of miniature model homes prepared by students of the several high schools of the city has been held in the auditorium of a local store, under the sponsorship of the housing division of the Federated Women's organizations. Numerous prizes and awards were given, including two scholarships to universities.

Bathroom Construction Must Withstand Weight Of Fixtures

There are several things about the construction of a bathroom that should be given careful consideration when planning to build or remodel.

In the first place, it must be remembered that there is a good deal of concentrated weight, for the fixtures are heavy and placed close together, and the tile floor, if there is to be a tile floor, has a concrete base about three inches thick which weighs considerably more than an ordinary wood floor. So the floor construction must be strong enough to hold this added weight without excessive deflection that might crack the plaster of the ceiling below.

Next, if there is to be a tile floor, the tops of the joists should be leveled off and wood forms placed between the joists at the depth necessary to provide the three-inch concrete base.

Before the base is poured, all pipes must be in place, and any pipes that must be run in this three-inch space occupied by the concrete should be bridged with a piece of tin or other sheet metal or a piece of metal lath bent in a half circle so that the pipes will be free to expand and contract in this tunnel without cracking the concrete.

If the tub is of the built-in type, a light steel angle should be screwed to the studs so that the rim of the tub at the wall can rest on it. This eliminates, to a large extent, the possibility of a crack appearing where the wall finish meets the tub. Besides these things, it is advisable to install pieces of 2 by 4's in between the studs about four feet above the floor to form a continuous nailing strip around the room. This makes it possible to put up towel bars and glass holders and other accessories wherever they may be wanted without depending upon the plaster or tile to support them.

In the matter of lighting it should be borne in mind that water and metal pipes are excellent conductors, so switches and light plugs should be placed in such locations that they cannot be reached from the tub or from the basin. Pull-chain fixtures should be avoided if possible, but if they are installed they should have a nonconducting link in the chain. Remember, when you select the wall finish that it will be subjected to excessive moisture and even warm vapor and use something that will withstand this.

Modernization credit funds obtained from a financial institution which holds a contract of insurance with the federal housing administration may be used to remodel the bathroom.

Air Conditioning Unit For Winter Systems Found

A newcomer in the field of air-conditioning is a compact unit for use in connection with hot-water or steam-heating systems. This type of equipment may be purchased and installed under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

This new unit converts the usual hot-water or steam-heating system into a winter air-conditioning system by performing the following desirable functions: Filtering, circulating and humidifying the air. It may also be arranged to provide ventilation by a connection to the outdoor air.

Especially noteworthy is its compactness, actually little larger than a suitcase, making for ease of installation in either new or existing heating systems.

Important advantages of the unit are its adaptability to automatic control, which makes for convenience and better heat distribution throughout the house; its ability to add the required moisture to the dry-heated air; and, of course quite important, its economy of operation due to its beneficial effect on the regular heating system and because it consumes no more current than a 60-watt lamp.

For those who wish summer cooling in addition to the air circulation provided by the unit, a cooling coil may be added which is connected to a refrigerating machine.

CHICAGO BUYS CARS

The number of new motor cars sold in Cook county (Chicago), Ill., in June, according to a report in the Chicago Tribune, amounted to 13,140 units, boosting the total for the first six months of this year to 66,205 units. This is a new all-time high for this period, the previous record occurring in the comparable period of 1929, when dealers sold 65,558 units.

FIRE PREVENTION

When the garage is attached directly to the house, it is well to build the connecting wall of non-flammable material and put a fire door on the garage side of the opening connecting it to the house proper. This should be in addition to the ordinary door that will be installed on the house side.

PROVISION FOR DRAIN

At the bottom of an outside cellar stairway, or any other flight of steps that leads down from grade to an entrance into a house, there should be an area at least six inches deep with a drain in it that leads to some escape for the water that will flow down the pipes.

REGIMENTATION TO BE AVOIDED

Variation In Construction Plans Urged By Housing Administration

Low-priced houses, except in the rural districts, for economic reasons are necessarily on small lots, which makes the question of light and air a vital one. This can be taken care of to a large extent by abandoning the old custom of having every house toe the building line, according to the federal housing administration, which has made a study of small-house planning. If some of the houses are placed back from the line, the side windows can be cleared so that the sun and air can reach them.

This system of irregular setbacks has another advantage: The houses themselves can be used as units in a large design, which relieves the monotony of the unbroken rows so common in our inexpensive neighborhoods. By this means small courts can be worked out, with the houses that are set back on opposite sides of the street forming the sides, and the adjacent houses that are set near the street forming the ends. Thus a series of small courts can be arranged, and no sense of regimentation will be present.

With some variations in exterior treatment, a few good floor plans can be used without any consciousness on the part of the observer of repetition because he can only see a few houses at a time.

Another thing that helps to make a harmonious whole is to avoid the use of contrasting colors in juxtaposition. If the individual houses are treated like units in a large design, like the various elements in a large building, a pleasing feeling of harmony will be present without any monotony. One of the chief charms of our New England villages is the uniformity of color and general style. Our modern suburbs lack this and are consequently much less pleasing to the eye.

BUILD PORCHES LOW

A living porch that is close to the earth gives the feeling of out of doors more than one that stands two or three feet above grade. Even with houses built well off the ground, the porch can be placed near grade, and a decorative flight of steps to the door can be the connecting link. This calls for unusually high pillars or posts, but they can be made quite effective.

POTENTIAL MARKET SHOWN IN BOOKLET

'The Modernization Credit Plan' Is Given In New Publication

Pointing out that the market for financing repairs, alterations, and additions to homes and other real property is estimated at between one billion and one and a half billion dollars per year, the federal housing administration outlines the tremendous modernization possibilities in a new bulletin distributed to financial institutions. This booklet, "The Modernization Credit Plan," is a republication embodying certain modifications of regulations previously issued under title 1 of the national housing act.

In the new publication the federal housing administration explains that the original purpose of the modernization credit plan in 1934 was to provide an immediate stimulus to the building construction and equipment industry, which was then at a low ebb. After outlining the progress that has been made in accelerating business and employment the federal housing administration declares that in addition to maintaining the momentum now established in the building industry, the credit and other machinery of the modernization credit plan must be applied to the growing demands of recovery itself.

"Families that doubled up during the depression are, with wider employment, branching out again into separate homes," the administration states. "The same improvement in employment conditions is making it easier for young people to marry and establish homes of their own. Thousands of these family units will best be served at 'this' time with small housekeeping suites and apartments created by remodeling existing houses and other structures.

"As incomes increase, a better standard of accommodations will be demanded by tenants of individual houses and apartment buildings. New bathrooms and kitchens, modern heating systems, additional bedrooms, redecorating, and repairs, garages, and other improvements will be required. Home owners will make the same investments in the houses they occupy.

"Merchants will need larger and more modern stores to keep up with the rising volume of trade and competitive developments in their field. Manufacturers will replace obsolete equipment to cut costs and increase production. Office buildings and other commercial structures will require remodeling, redecorating, and re-equipment.

"It is vital that adequate credit facilities be available for encouraging this trend toward higher standards and progressive expansion. Gradually developing from the influence of economic improvement, it intensifies and sustains the improvement that caused it."

The federal housing administration called attention also to the addition of section 6 to title 1. This is designed to assist in the rehabilitation of property damaged or destroyed in recent floods, tornadoes, and other catastrophes.

BETTER OFF TODAY

Four million families are better off today than they were in 1929 and therefore have more money for home ownership, according to Harold T. Donaldson, United States Building and Loan league official in the New York Herald Tribune. He reports that the payrolls of wage earners in manufacturing industries in this country increased 52 per cent from 1932 to 1936. This increase, he reports, is continuing and that payrolls in April, 1936, show a 10 per cent increase over payrolls of April, 1935.

EIGHT MILLION INCREASE

An investment increase of more than eight million dollars was noted in Philadelphia's construction volume during the first half of 1936 over the similar period of 1935, according to the Philadelphia Inquirer. Building operations and construction investment reached the highest levels during the first half of the current year since 1931. Total value of construction this year was $11,590,960. For the same period a year ago total value amounted to $3,503,360, the Inquirer said.

PAYING ITS WAY

The cement industry, according to George H. Snyder, business editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is back on a profitable basis due to the rising volume of construction work all over the country. Mr. Snyder reports that some producers managed during the past two years to make money. But the industry as a whole lost a good deal of ground during the depression. This year, he writes, the average producer will make a profit.

PAINT SALES GAIN STEADILY IN 1936

Figures Show Increase For The Present Year Over Those Of 1935

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Marked gains in sales are reported by the paint industry during the first five months of 1936 as compared with the same period last year, according to a compilation by the bureau of the census.

Reports from 344 paint manufacturers showed that during the first five months this year total sales amounted to $151,499,921 as compared to $137,620,187 for the same period last year, a gain of 10.1 per cent.

Total paint sales for May, 1936, showed an 11 per cent gain over the same month last year. The figures: Sales, May 1936, $40,989,663; May 1935, $36,160,067.

It has been estimated that since the inception of the federal housing administration's modernization credit plan that approximately 20 per cent of the modernizer's dollar is spent for paint or paint materials and labor.

NEIGHBORHOOD'S PLANNING TOPIC OF NEW BOOKLET

FHA Offers Suggestions To Those Interested In Small Houses

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The federal housing administration has published a bulletin, just off the press, entitled "Planning Neighborhoods for Small Houses."

The purpose of this publication, according to the housing administration, is to offer suggestions to the architects, land planners, developers, and operative builders which will result in the production of more neighborhoods for modest homes—"neighborhoods to which, with investment secure, mortgage money will flow at attractive rates, and in which owners will find lasting enjoyment and satisfaction."

Supplement

The publication, known as Technical bulletin No. 5, supplements the information provided in a recent bulletin, "Principles of Planning Small Houses."

"For many years," the new booklet states, "planning has been characteristic of 'exclusive' neighborhoods or subdivisions of high-priced homes. Such neighborhoods have been carefully laid out, subjected to architectural and landscaping control, and protected by covenants restricting property against uses inharmonious with the neighborhood. The individual who invests in high-priced residential property makes no objection to limiting the use of his own property. In fact, he is induced to invest because of these limitations, realizing as he does that this mutual restriction of the right of use by the separate owners protects them all in the broadest possible enjoyment of their holdings.

No Planning

"Unfortunately, neighborhoods for modest dwellings have only rarely been developed in this manner. Frequently they have been produced devoid of plan or protection as lot-selling schemes wholly unrelated to the character of dwellings which might some time be built. As a result, acres of land in and surrounding our cities have been subdivided, partially built up or abandoned, possessed of no identity as neighborhoods, uncontrolled as to land use, monotonous and unappealing in appearance. From the peak of the first sales hysteria values stagnate, and owners find little or nothing to encourage the maintenance of their properties or to hold their interest in the locality.

Home Safeguarded

"From this result arises the paradox that the small home, which by all economic theory should be the safest and most liquid of all investments, often becomes a commodity in which speculation is greatest and in which long-term security is lacking. This condition, of course is not universal; it need not even be general. Neighborhoods can be produced as satisfactorily for modest homes as for expensive homes and in many cases with lower land-development costs."

Suggestions concerning low-priced home neighborhood planning contained in the booklet include "general principles," "site and topography," accessibility, transportation, utilities, city planning and zoning, deed restrictions, neighborhood design, thoroughfares, shape of lots, lot lines, alleys, and many others.

FREIGHT PEAK

For the third time in a month railroad freight volume reached a new high for the year, according to a report in the Chicago Tribune. A total for the nation last week of 695,845 cars not only marked a new record peak for 1936 but marked the tenth consecutive time that a new weekly record was established. Miscellaneous freight and less-than-car-lot merchandise made an impressive showing in the gain over last week. Trade analysts regarded this as important steps in the current business recovery.

BREAKING "PAR"

The New York Times published a report by George A. Sloan, chairman of the Consumers' Goods Industries committee, in which he finds that industry is "maintaining improved wage and hour standards and employment is approaching and in some cases exceeding 1929 levels." The statement was a digest of reports from 12 diversified industries covering a substantial proportion of the country's employers in both durable and consumer goods industries.

Housing Question Box

Q. Every time there is a bad rainstorm our cellar gets an inch or so of water in it. Builders tell me that the only thing to do is dig up around the house and waterproof the walls. Isn't there some other way?

A. Cellar walls and floors can be waterproofed from the inside by applying a coat of neat Portland cement plaster in conjunction with a waterproofing material. The coating must be applied in one continuous sheet and should be put on by experts. However, the quantity of water that enters your cellar would warrant a thorough search for the source of the water before any expense is incurred on the walls. It may be from the roof rains or from some drain running near the wall; or it may be that the ground immediately around the house slopes toward the house instead of away from it.

Q. Are lending institutions which have been approved by the federal housing administration authorized to make loans for minor improvements to farm property?

A. The regulations cover a wide range of work and give the farm owner whose property is improved by a complete dwelling house the opportunity to make needed repairs or improvements at once. New foundations may be put in or old ones repaired; walks and steps repaired, feeding floors built in, driveways laid, barn and poultry houses built or repaired, milk houses and cooling tanks constructed, and retaining walls built. Insured loans are not commonly made for less than $100, but a number of these minor repairs may be grouped into one loan to make or exceed this sum.

Q. I intend to make several repairs to my farm property, provided I am able to negotiate the necessary loan. I want to know if it would be permissible for me to superintend the work, as there is no contractor in the neighborhood?

A. Yes. If the lending agency is satisfied, there is no objection under the federal housing administration regulations.

Q. Is it necessary to have those wooden door sills under all inside doors?

A. No. The only place they are needed is where the floor materials on each side of the door are different; for instance, at a bathroom door where there is wood on one side and tile on another. They are also used where the direction of the flooring boards is different on each side of the door. Then a saddle, or sill, is used to cover the junction between the flooring boards. If the floors are carefully laid, however, saddles may be omitted at such door.

Q. The fences of my farm are in disrepair. They were originally of wood, but I have added wire here and there. Can I obtain a loan under the federal housing administration's modernization credit plan and put in permanent wire fencing throughout?

A. Yes. Fencing is eligible for a modernization credit loan.

MAGAZINE CUPBOARD

In a living room or library or even in the hall, if there is a space to build a cupboard for the storage of old magazines and other things that accumulate but can't be thrown out immediately, such a cupboard is a great convenience and a boon for the housekeeper whose duster must keep the rooms clean.

APPROVAL IN JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J.—Thirty-five developments have been approved throughout New Jersey by the state office of the federal housing administration, according to the report of the chief valuator. Building has already started on 32 of these tracts, with plans calling for the construction of 100 to 200 houses in each case.

ALL-TIME HIGH

A sharp increase in deposits during the second quarter lifted the volume in Chicago banks to a new all-time record of $3,144,000,000, according to a Chicago dispatch in the Pittsburgh Press. This figure, which was the total at the end of June, compares with $2,796,000,000 on March 4 last and the previous peak of $2,942,000,000 at the close of 1928.

SPONSORS THIRD SHOW

HEMPSTEAD, L. I.—The better housing committee of this city, in cooperation with the Hempstead Association of Commerce, has opened its third annual Better Housing exposition. The first was held in 1934. There are 50 exhibits at the show, which is being held in the Hempstead armory, and more than 10,000 visitors are expected.

WOODEN PLATFORMS

Laundry trays, or tubs as they are commonly called, that are set on a concrete floor should have a small wooden slab platform in front of them so that the laundress need not stand on the wet floor. These platforms should be movable so the floor may be cleaned and the platform aired.

WEATHER STRIP FOR INSULATION

Variety Of Types Available Will Reduce Fuel Cost During Winter

When thinking of insulating a home, the average home owner immediately attempts to reach a decision on which commercial materials now on the market will give him the best results for the least expenditure. He may obtain modernization credit, insured by the federal housing administration, for the financing of this work.

Before selecting insulation materials, the home owner should give very careful attention to the weatherstripping of his doors and windows. Research has shown that a major part of the heat loss of a house is through the cracks around windows and doors.

For houses already erected, a number of types of weatherstripping are available, usually of either a metallic or a felted form. For new houses, several manufacturers are now building fabricated windows complete with frames into which are built efficient metallic weatherstripping, or similar metallic or felted weatherstripping may be applied at the time of erection of the house when ordinary windows are used. Tests show that by providing weatherstripping only, without any other form of insulation, fuel savings will amount to from 15 per cent to 20 per cent. If storm sash are used in addition to the weatherstripping, the fuel savings may run as high as 30 per cent.

INDIANAPOLIS' RECORD

The Indianapolis Times publishes the results of a building survey conducted by the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce and reports the fact that the first six months of 1936 show a 150 per cent increase in home building over the comparable period for 1935. Chief stimulus in the building industry, the Times reports, comes from a prevailing shortage of desirable homes and the availability of loans from local institutions for home-building purposes.

CLOSET OPENINGS

A shallow closet is made much more usable if it has a wide opening. This can be accomplished by using double doors instead of a single door. Thus there are no dead ends in the closet that are awkward to use, and the double doors project into the room only half the distance that a single door would which was made for the same opening.

SURVEY SHOWS REASON FOR USE OF FHA PROGRAM

Builders And Real Estate Salesmen Concur In Advantages Of Plan

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Four reasons why operative builders throughout the United States are favorable to the federal housing administration's program were outstanding in a recent survey in which 1,200 builders and real estate salesmen were interviewed in 22 large population centers.

The reasons in which most of them concurred were:

Four Points

1. That the insured mortgage system is the best type of financing available to the buyer.

2. That the convenient system of monthly payments of taxes and insurance is an advantageous feature of the plan.

3. That the "payment like rent" plan is of great benefit to persons desiring homes of their own.

4. That much benefit is derived from the rigid inspections of properties coming under the plan with the attending assurance of proper construction practices.

Building Stipulated

It was generally conceded in widely divergent sections of the country that the federal housing administration's programs has made more private capital available to borrowers and has greatly stimulated new-home building.

The survey also revealed several interesting percentages. Of the builders interviewed, 87 per cent were acquainted with the housing administration's plan for insuring home mortgages; 62 per cent expressed a favorable attitude toward the housing administration; 22 per cent were neutral in their attitude; 57 per cent recommended the plan to customers; an additional 33 per cent professed making it optional; only 10 per cent expressed disapproval of the plan.

Modernization Of Tenements Made Possible

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Owners of tenements have been greatly benefited by the cooperation of the federal housing administration, according to Langdon W. Post, tenement house commissioner.

A total of 516 applications has been handled by the representatives of the housing administration assigned to the tenement commission offices. Many of these have come from owners with tenement house department violations pending against their buildings and who have not had the necessary funds to comply with the department's orders.

Numerous banks have been extending funds for the repair of tenements at a low rate of interest with the housing administration insuring the loans.

GREATEST EVER!

The New York Times, collecting building reports from all sections of the Metropolitan area and up-state New York, believes that builders are awakening from a six-year lethargy to initiate the greatest building era "that ever visited this section of the country." The Times cites the fact that since June 1 plans have been filed in New York for 132 apartment operations to cost $28,000,000. Employment, pay rolls, and working hours have shown a steady advance in the state.

DIXIE ADVANCES

And the south, too, shows an important gain in construction during the first six months of 1936, according to an Associated Press report in the Washington Post. Industrial expansion in the 16 southern states set the pace for building, the Associated Press finds. Construction awards for the half year amounted to more than $423,000,000 for a six-year high mark. This is an increase of 80 per cent over the same period of 1935.

CITIZENS ORGANIZE HOUSING COMPANY

Between 100 And 200 Low-Cost Homes To Be Constructed Under Plan

NEWCASTLE, Ind.—The construction of between 100 and 200 low-priced homes during the present summer and fall is the aim of a new housing corporation recently formed by business and civic leaders of Newcastle.

With the city facing a serious housing shortage, business men have felt that steps should be taken to insure the building of a sufficient number of dwellings to house the existing population. Since individuals were unable to take the responsibility of building so large a number of houses, a group of public-spirited citizens called upon Thomas McConnell, associated director of the Indianapolis office of the federal housing administration, to aid them in solving their problems.

As a result, a meeting was held in Newcastle on June 19, at which preliminary plans were laid for the building of 100 homes in blocks of between six and eight dwellings. Present plans call for the immediate construction of 100 homes, selling for between $2,500 and $3,500. As the sales of these initial houses are consummated, the company will reemploy its capital in the construction of additional dwellings. It is hoped that by the end of the summer at least 1,000 houses will be completed.

The insured mortgage system of the federal housing administration will be used as a basis for the project. Operative builders' commitments will be obtained by the new corporation on each house constructed, and prospective home buyers will qualify to obtain an insured mortgage loan on the home which they desire to purchase.

NEIGHBORHOOD'S PLANNING TOPIC OF NEW BOOKLET

FHA Offers Suggestions To Those Interested In Small Houses

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The federal housing administration has published a bulletin, just off the press, entitled "Planning Neighborhoods for Small Houses."

The purpose of this publication, according to the housing administration, is to offer suggestions to the architects, land planners, developers, and operative builders which will result in the production of more neighborhoods for modest homes—"neighborhoods to which, with investment secure, mortgage money will flow at attractive rates, and in which owners will find lasting enjoyment and satisfaction."

Supplement

The publication, known as Technical bulletin No. 5, supplements the information provided in a recent bulletin, "Principles of Planning Small Houses."

"For many years," the new booklet states, "planning has been characteristic of 'exclusive' neighborhoods or subdivisions of high-priced homes. Such neighborhoods have been carefully laid out, subjected to architectural and landscaping control, and protected by covenants restricting property against uses inharmonious with the neighborhood. The individual who invests in high-priced residential property makes no objection to limiting the use of his own property. In fact, he is induced to invest because of these limitations, realizing as he does that this mutual restriction of the right of use by the separate owners protects them all in the broadest possible enjoyment of their holdings.

No Planning

"Unfortunately, neighborhoods for modest dwellings have only rarely been developed in this manner. Frequently they have been produced devoid of plan or protection as lot-selling schemes wholly unrelated to the character of dwellings which might some time be built. As a result, acres of land in and surrounding our cities have been subdivided, partially built up or abandoned, possessed of no identity as neighborhoods, uncontrolled as to land use, monotonous and unappealing in appearance. From the peak of the first sales hysteria values stagnate, and owners find little or nothing to encourage the maintenance of their properties or to hold their interest in the locality.

Home Safeguarded

"From this result arises the paradox that the small home, which by all economic theory should be the safest and most liquid of all investments, often becomes a commodity in which speculation is greatest and in which long-term security is lacking. This condition, of course is not universal: it need not even be general. Neighborhoods can be produced as satisfactorily for modest homes as for expensive homes and in many cases with lower land-development costs."

Suggestions concerning low-priced home neighborhood planning contained in the booklet include "general principles," "site and topography," accessibility, transportation, utilities, city planning and zoning, deed restrictions, neighborhood design, thoroughfares, shape of lots, lot lines, alleys, and many others.

FREIGHT PEAK

For the third time in a month railroad freight volume reached a new high for the year, according to a report in the Chicago Tribune. A total for the nation last week of 695,845 cars not only marked a new record peak for 1936 but marked the tenth consecutive time that a new weekly record was established. Miscellaneous freight and less-than-car-lot merchandise made an impressive showing in the gain over last week. Trade analysts regarded this as important steps in the current business recovery.

BREAKING "PAR"

The New York Times published a report by George A. Sloan, chairman of the Consumers' Goods Industries committee, in which he finds that industry is "maintaining improved wage and hour standards and employment is approaching and in some cases exceeding 1929 levels." The statement was a digest of reports from 12 diversified industries covering a substantial proportion of the country's employers in both durable and consumer goods industries.

Housing Question Box

Q. Every time there is a bad rainstorm our cellar gets an inch or so of water in it. Builders tell me that the only thing to do is dig up around the house and waterproof the walls. Isn't there some other way?

A. Cellar walls and floors can be waterproofed from the inside by applying a coat of neat Portland cement plaster in conjunction with a waterproofing material. The coating must be applied in one continuous sheet and should be put on by experts However, the quantity of water that enters your cellar would warrant a thorough search for the source of the water before any expense is incurred on the walls. It may be from the roof rains or from some drain running near the wall; or it may be that the ground immediately around the house slopes toward the house instead of away from it.

Q. Are lending institutions which have been approved by the federal housing administration authorized to make loans for minor improvements to farm property?

A. The regulations cover a wide range of work and give the farm owner whose property is improved by a complete dwelling house the opportunity to make needed repairs or improvements at once. New foundations may be put in or old ones repaired; walks and steps repaired, feeding floors built in, driveways laid, barn and poultry houses built or repaired, milk houses and cooling tanks constructed, and retaining walls built. Insured loans are not commonly made for less than $100, but a number of these minor repairs may be grouped into one loan to make or exceed this sum.

Q. I intend to make several repairs to my farm property, provided I am able to negotiate the necessary loan. I want to know if it would be permissible for me to superintend the work, as there is no contractor in the neighborhood?

A. Yes. If the lending agency is satisfied, there is no objection under the federal housing administration regulations.

Q. Is it necessary to have those wooden door sills under all inside doors?

A. No. The only place they are needed is where the floor materials on each side of the door are different; for instance, at a bathroom door where there is wood on one side and tile on another. They are also used where the direction of the flooring boards is different on each side of the door. Then a saddle, or sill, is used to cover the junction between the flooring boards. If the floors are carefully laid, however, saddles may be omitted at such door.

Q. The fences of my farm are in disrepair. They were originally of wood, but I have added wire here and there. Can I obtain a loan under the federal housing administration's modernization credit plan and put in permanent wire fencing throughout?

A. Yes. Fencing is eligible for a modernization credit loan.

MAGAZINE CUPBOARD

In a living room or library or even in the hall, if there is a space to build a cupboard for the storage of old magazines and other things that accumulate but can't be thrown out immediately, such a cupboard is a great convenience and a boon for the housekeeper whose duster must keep the rooms clean.

APPROVAL IN JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J.—Thirty-five developments have been approved throughout New Jersey by the state office of the federal housing administration, according to the report of the chief valuator. Building has already started on 32 of these tracts, with plans calling for the construction of 100 to 200 houses in each case.

ALL-TIME HIGH

A sharp increase in deposits during the second quarter lifted the volume in Chicago banks to a new all-time record of $3,144,000,000, according to a Chicago dispatch in the Pittsburgh Press. This figure, which was the total at the end of June, compares with $2,796,000,000 on March 4 last and the previous peak of $2,942,000,000 at the close of 1928.

SPONSORS THIRD SHOW

HEMPSTEAD, L. I.—The better housing committee of this city, in cooperation with the Hempstead Association of Commerce, has opened its third annual Better Housing exposition. The first was held in 1934. There are 50 exhibits at the show, which is being held in the Hempstead armory, and more than 10,000 visitors are expected.

CALHOUN SCHOOL TO BE REPAIRED

Contract Awarded To Salley And Ellis For $5,107.50

The contract for the repair of the old Calhoun school building was awarded Saturday morning to Salley and Ellis, low bidders, for the sum of $5,107.50. Work will be started at once and will be completed by September 14, when the fall term of school opens, it was stated Saturday at the offices of T. O. Brown, parish school superintendent.

The Ouachita parish school board, at its last meeting, authorized a complete overhauling of this structure. Plastering will be required in all of the eight rooms, and new blackboards will be installed. Painting and interior decorating will be necessary and when completed the building will be in first class condition for school purposes, it was said.

Plans for the overhauling were drawn by the architectural firm of J. W. Smith and Associates.

This building was erected 20 years ago and has not had any considerable expenditure in its repairs for many years.

ALL CITY ALLEYS BEING GRAVELLED

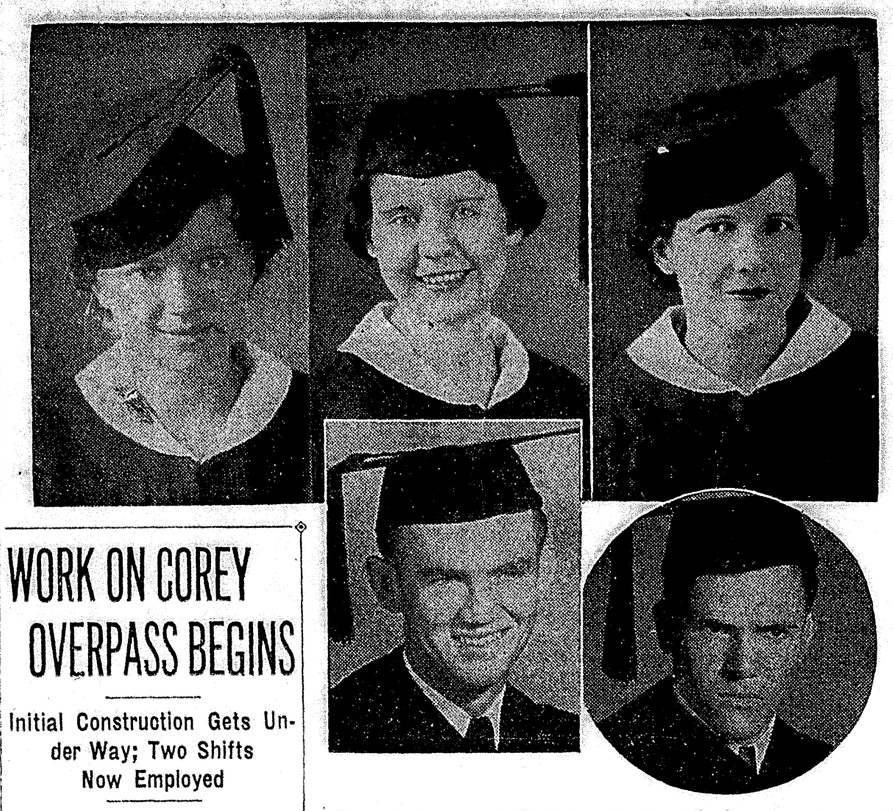

With gravel mined from the city's pit with labor provided by the Works Progress administration, R. D. Swayze, commissioner of streets and parks, is surfacing alleys throughout Monroe.

Mr. Swayze said yesterday that he was gravelling the alleys for three purposes—to retard the growth of weeds and grass, to render the passageways more passable and to lessen the burden of keeping them clean.

Mr. Swayze launched his program of alley improvement several months ago. He said it would continue until all of the alleys of the city are gravelled. The alleys deepest in weeds and in the most congested sections of the city were being improved first, he said.

In connection with the alley program, Mr. Swayze said practically every inhabited street in the unpaved section of the city was gravelled. He said he started gravelling the unimproved streets in 1934 and would continue until every one was surfaced. More than 60 miles of streets, he asserted, have already been gravelled.

NORMAL COLLEGE HONOR STUDENTS

WORK ON COREY OVERPASS BEGINS

Initial Construction Gets Under Way; Two Shifts Now Employed

Excavation and other work in connection with the overpass at Corey, near Columbia, on the line of the Missouri Pacific railroad, is now starting and there are two shifts of men of from 15 to 18 who have been supplied by the Louisiana state employment service.

The pile driver has been set up, forms are being built, and cement is being poured for the piling foundations.

The contract for this project was awarded to the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company for approximately $100,000.

Another project, workmen for which are being furnished by the state employment service, is the paving which will connect with the present Winnsboro road paving giving a continuous hard surfaced highway to Alto.

This strip, which is 6.22 miles in length, is now open for traffic, although it has not been formally turned over to the highway department.

The Cadeville-Calhoun, farm-to-market road, a six-mile stretch, will be gravelled for the entire distance. Originally but four miles were to be surfaced but later orders gave an extension of two miles. The contract for this work was awarded to Sullivan, Long and Hagerty.

R. E. Young, manager of the Louisiana state employment service, said that there is a far greater demand for skilled labor than he is able to secure. His office seeks to provide skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled labor. Skilled mechanics, bricklayers, stenographers and office assistants are particularly in great demand at this time, Mr. Young said, and he is anxious to be able to provide men and women to meet constantly occurring requirements.

The date of Easter is not determined by the real full moon, but by the paschal full moon, which comes on the 14th day of a lunar month. This is two or three days behind the true astronomical full moon.

LEGION GROUPS TO GATHER HERE

Fifth District Conference Planned At Hotel Virginia Today

Plans had been completed last night for the fifth district conference of the American Legion and auxiliary at Hotel Virginia here today. General arrangements were in charge of Edward L. Gladney, Jr., fifth district commander.

Registration will begin at Hotel Virginia, mezzanine floor, at 9:30 a.m., and a joint assembly is scheduled for the roof at 10 a.m.

The address of welcome will be given by Bill Perhamus, L. B. Faulk post commander, with response by A. C. Dykes of the Farmerville post. Mrs. Vera Roderick Cohron, fifth district auxiliary president, will extend greetings from her group. Immediately thereafter officials and guests will be introduced by Warren Hunt, fifth district vice-commander.

The auxiliary will then retire to the Cameo room where they will hold their sessions.

Roll call of posts will be held and the future program of work will be outlined by Roland Cocreham, department adjutant.

Plans for the 1937 Legion membership drive will be given with discussion led by Mr. Perhamus. Policies of the Legion will be outlined by George J. Ginsberg, department judge advocate.

Other talks to be made are as follows: "Service and Rehabilitation" by Claude Brown, service officer of Arkansas; general discussion by Linden Dalferes, state service commissioner, "Forty and Eight and Its Program," by Ernest Hawkins, grand chef de gare; "The Department Convention," by Edwin Meyer, department vice-commander; "Americanism Program," by B. Nominations will then be made for officers for the ensuing year.

Dinner will be served at the hotel at 1 p.m.

TRAFFIC REROUTED ON SHREVEPORT HIGHWAY

Traffic by bus, truck and passenger cars over the Dixie-Overland highway between Monroe and Shreveport has been delayed since Friday afternoon because of the partial burning of a bridge over Black lake one mile east of Gibsland.

Traffic is being directed from Arcadia to Bryceland to Gibsland to Shreveport which makes the distance more circuitous from here to the Caddo seat city.

The damage to the bridge was estimated at $15,000 by L. S. Lanoir, highway engineer. It will require from 30 days to six weeks to make complete restoration.

The Gibsland volunteer fire department, assisted by the Arcadia department, using water from a nearby creek, extinguished the blaze and saved the span from complete destruction. The structure was constructed of creosote lumber covered with concrete.

33 FIRE ALARMS ANSWERED HERE

Thirty-three calls were answered by the Monroe fire department during July, according to a monthly report compiled by the alarm operator. Twenty-eight calls were made within the city limits, and five alarms were answered outside the city.

Firemen of the department worked 20 hours and seven minutes on calls answered, 1,850 feet of hose were used, and 54 feet of ladder were operated.

Following is a classification of the alarms: business fires, 2; residence fires, 2; grass fires, 5; trash fires, 3; automobile fires, 3; miscellaneous fires, 5; miscellaneous calls, 12. There was one false alarm.

Monroe Lady Says Gly-Cas First Not To Disappoint Her

Mrs. Barlow's Entire System Toned By New Remedy; Stomach And Kidneys Now Fine; Eats And Sleeps Good, New Strength And Energy Restored, Nerves Quieted.

It is a striking fact that in many instances of awful suffering where all kinds of medicines and treatments had flatly failed, this amazing new medical discovery, Gly-Cas, has given results which are astonishing.

MRS. J. D. BARLOW

Read what Mrs. J. D. Barlow, 210 Seventh street, Monroe, highly respected lady of this city who has lived here for the past twelve years, said recently in a statement reaching the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city:

"I now realize why so many people are praising Gly-Cas," said Mrs. Barlow. "Indigestion had been a constant source of suffering for me for years. After every meal I ate I was sure to suffer severely afterwards. Gas formed so badly I would bloat until I could hardly breathe, often felt as if I would surely smother. My Kidneys were affected too and I could not get a good night's sleep, up at all hours, rest was broken continually and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything to help me. I was bothered continually with severe headaches, was terribly nervous and felt tired and worn-out all of the time. I had to force myself out of bed each morning and lacked the energy to do my work as I should. I spent all kinds of money but met only with repeated failure until I began Gly-Cas—it was what I should have had all the time.

"I was about ready to give up when I was persuaded to give this new Gly-Cas a trial and today I am again enjoying the blessing of good and glorious health," continued Mrs. Barlow. "My years of constipation were corrected almost at once, poisons and gases removed from my system. In a very short time my kidneys became normal and my stomach was fine. I now eat and sleep good, my nerves are quieted, new strength and energy has been restored and I am freed of all those years of suffering. Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have taken that did not disappoint me—there can be no doubt of its merit for this new herbal remedy gives desired results."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., Monroe, and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

BOOSTER CLUBS WILL ENJOY OUTING TODAY

The Booster clubs of Monroe and McGehee of the Missouri Pacific railroad will participate in an outing at Lake Village, Ark., today. All other employes and their families are also invited to participate.

A special Missouri Pacific train will leave Monroe at 7 a.m. and will pick up railroad groups at all stations en route. Arrival at Lake Village is scheduled for 10:45 a.m. Immediately upon arrival, buses will be in readiness to convey the party to a country clubhouse six miles distant along the lake shore. There a barbecue dinner will be served.

Boating, swimming, fishing and games will be the attractions provided and several bands will furnish music.

The return trip by special train will start at 7 p.m., and will reach Monroe at 10:50 p.m.

HANKINS REUNION SLATED THURSDAY

Members of the Hankins family in both Arkansas and Louisiana will assemble at Oakland park, in Pine Bluff, Ark., Thursday, August 6, for the second annual family reunion. T. M. Hankins of Pine Bluff is general chairman of the arrangements.

The event has been sanctioned by the Arkansas centennial commission as a centennial event.

The first annual reunion of the Hankins class was held at Pine Bluff a year ago, and there were 3,000 present from several states.

This year more than 2,000 letters of invitation have been mailed to members of the family and assurances are given that there will be representation present from nine or 10 states.

The Monroe vicinity has a number of members of the Hankins family. One of these is Tilton P. Hankins, 107 Hampton avenue. Another well known member of the family is V. D. Hankins of Columbia.

CARRYING THE TORCH

Thirteen young Greek girls took part in the solemn ceremony at Olympia in which the Olympic torch was lit by the sun's rays, focused through a magnifying glass, and presented to the first of a relay of 3,000 runners who bore it to Berlin, 3,000 miles away.

52 BUILDING PERMITS GIVEN HERE IN MONTH

The total expenditures of construction work in Monroe last month slumped slightly below that of July, 1935, although there were nearly three times as many permits issued, according to the monthly report of the city building inspector. A $12,000 apartment house and a repair and addition job amounting to $8,550 in July, 1935, caused the difference, according to the inspector.

Last month 52 permits, totaling $34,082, were issued by the inspector, and the same month a year ago only 18 permits were granted, amounting to $39,300.

In July, 1935, only four residence permits were issued, amounting to $6,150. Last month 13 residence permits were obtained, and they totaled $19,507. Five non-residence permits in July, 1935, amounted to $12,600, and six non-residence permits last month were valued at only $3,874.

There were 31 permits for repairs and alterations last month, totaling $10,701. In July, 1935, there were eight permits for repairs and alterations, amounting to $8,550.

Two permits were issued last month for the construction of small sandwich shops, and three permits were obtained to demolish buildings.

ENCAMPMENT AT KI-RO-LI ENDS

Fifty Camp Fire Girls returned home early Saturday morning from Ki-Ro-Li, where they had been encamped since Monday morning.

Each day was well filled with studies, games, swimming and other diversions. The finale of the week was the council fire held Friday night when many of the girls were accorded advanced ranks and honors. This was presided over by Mrs. F. B. Neeley, Camp Fire executive.

Friday was also notable in other ways than for the holding of the council fire. In the early afternoon, buses and private cars were made available and conveyed the girls to the G. B. Cooley tuberculosis hospital, now under construction, on Bayou D'Arbonne. They inspected the new building for white patients and the negro building. Then Mrs. J. G. Cobb, guardian and instructor in nature study, explained Indian lore and plants that were used by the redskins for foods and medicine.

Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, Camp Fire president, told the girls of the Indian mounds and the methods of burial of the dead.

The buses and cars took the girls back to Ki-Ro-Li in time for their 6 o'clock supper, after which the council fire was held in the late evening.

Contract Awarded To Salley And Ellis For $5,107.50

The contract for the repair of the old Calhoun school building was awarded Saturday morning to Salley and Ellis, low bidders, for the sum of $5,107.50. Work will be started at once and will be completed by September 14, when the fall term of school opens, it was stated Saturday at the offices of T. O. Brown, parish school superintendent.

The Ouachita parish school board, at its last meeting, authorized a complete overhauling of this structure. Plastering will be required in all of the eight rooms, and new blackboards will be installed. Painting and interior decorating will be necessary and when completed the building will be in first class condition for school purposes, it was said.

Plans for the overhauling were drawn by the architectural firm of J. W. Smith and Associates.

This building was erected 20 years ago and has not had any considerable expenditure in its repairs for many years.

ALL CITY ALLEYS BEING GRAVELLED

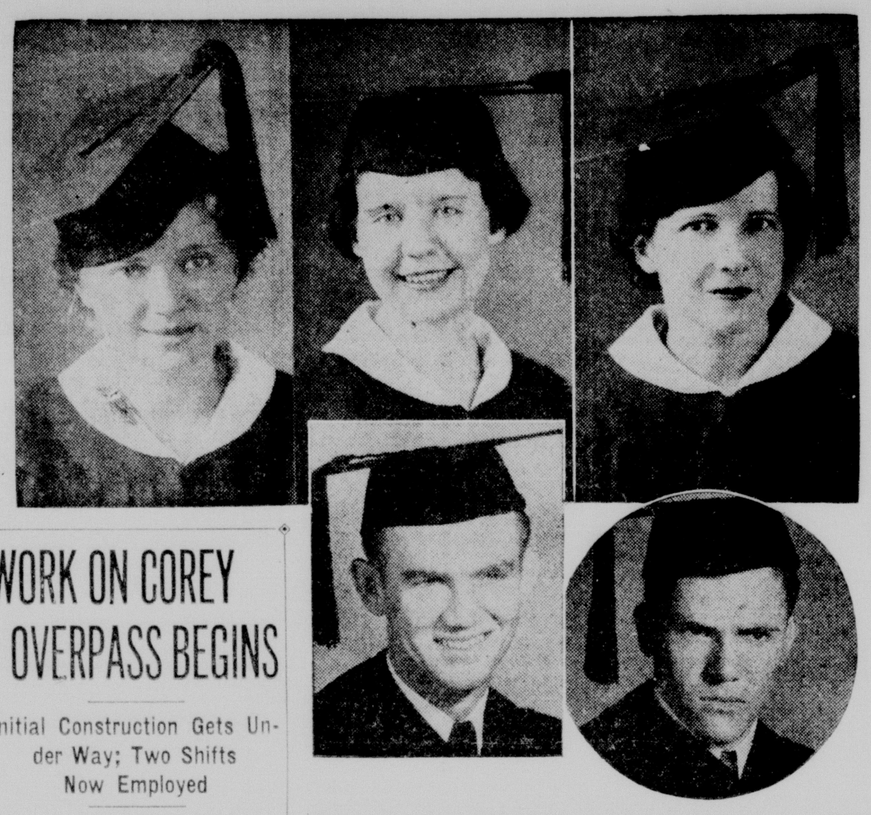

With gravel mined from the city's pit with labor provided by the Works Progress administration, R. D. Swayze, commissioner of streets and parks, is surfacing alleys throughout Monroe.

Mr. Swayze said yesterday that he was gravelling the alleys for three purposes—to retard the growth of weeds and grass, to render the passageways more passable and to lessen the burden of keeping them clean.

Mr. Swayze launched his program of alley improvement several months ago. He said it would continue until all of the alleys of the city are gravelled. The alleys deepest in weeds and in the most congested sections of the city were being improved first, he said.

In connection with the alley program, Mr. Swayze said practically every inhabited street in the unpaved section of the city was gravelled. He said he started gravelling the unimproved streets in 1934 and would continue until every one was surfaced. More than 60 miles of streets, he asserted, have already been gravelled.

Initial Construction Gets Under Way; Two Shifts Now Employed

Excavation and other work in connection with the overpass at Corey, near Columbia, on the line of the Missouri Pacific railroad, is now starting and there are two shifts of men of from 15 to 18 who have been supplied by the Louisiana state employment service.

The pile driver has been set up, forms are being built, and cement is being poured for the piling foundations.

The contract for this project was awarded to the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company for approximately $100,000.

Another project, workmen for which are being furnished by the state employment service, is the paving which will connect with the present Winnsboro road paving giving a continuous hard surfaced highway to Alto.

This strip, which is 6.22 miles in length, is now open for traffic, although it has not been formally turned over to the highway department.

The Cadeville-Calhoun, farm-to-market road, a six-mile stretch, will be gravelled for the entire distance. Originally but four miles were to be surfaced but later orders gave an extension of two miles. The contract for this work was awarded to Sullivan, Long and Hagerty.

R. E. Young, manager of the Louisiana state employment service, said that there is a far greater demand for skilled labor than he is able to secure. His office seeks to provide skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled labor. Skilled mechanics, bricklayers, stenographers and office assistants are particularly in great demand at this time, Mr. Young said, and he is anxious to be able to provide men and women to meet constantly occurring requirements.

Cooley tuberculosis hospital, now under construction, on Bayou D'Arbonne. They inspected the new building for white patients and the negro building. Then Mrs. J. G. Cobb, guardian and instructor in nature study, explained Indian lore and plants that were used by the redskins for foods and medicine.

Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, Camp Fire president, told the girls of the Indian mounds and the methods of burial of the dead.

The buses and cars took the girls back to Ki-Ro-Li in time for their 6 o'clock supper, after which the council fire was held in the late evening.

METHODISTS TO CAMP KI-RO-LI

Training Conference Will Be Held There Aug. 17-21

The Methodist young people of northeast Louisiana, between the ages of 16 and 23 years, will participate in the annual training conference camp at Ki-Ro-Li on August 17-21. The camp is being promoted by the Monroe and Ruston districts and young people from this section are entitled to enroll. This is the fourth successive summer that the camp has been conducted and a large registration is anticipated.

Since the camp was held a year ago, several changes have been made in class administration in order that the best can be offered the campers.

Three courses will be offered as follows: "The Life of Christ," which will be the theme of a series of lectures by Rev. Guy M. Hicks of Ruston; "Alcohol and Ourselves" will be the subject of lectures by Rev. D. W. Poole of Mangham; "Recreation and Personal Development" will be the theme of talks made by Lydel Sims of Natchitoches.

Miss Hazel Lea Nowel, of Ruston, will have charge of vespers each evening and Mrs. A. D. Stamant, of Delhi, will direct morning meditation. Many attractions are planned for evening hours.

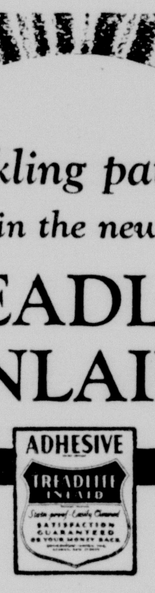

Miss Audrey Bess Hoffpauir, of Ruston, will serve as dean of the camp and Miss Elizabeth Langford, of Monroe, will be the business manager.

Those planning to attend are requested to register with Miss Langford at the First Methodist church office, as early as possible.

Not only do hops give beer and ale their bitter taste, but they act as a preservative for these beverages.

TARZAN'S SACRIFICE

FROM BEHIND THE ROCK STEPPED RUFUS FLINT, WHO HAD BEEN AFRAID TO REMAIN IN THE JUNGLE AFTER TARZAN LEFT.

"SO YOU TRIED TO DOUBLE-CROSS ME!" HE CRIED. "DON'T SHOOT!" GORREY PLEADED, "I'LL GIVE YOU A SHARE OF THE GOLD!"

"WHY, YOU CHEAP THIEF!" FLINT SCOFFED, "STEALING A FEW POUNDS OF GOLD WHEN THERE ARE TONS OF IT AROUND!"

"THE THING TO DO," HE EXPLAINED, "IS TO GET CONTROL OF THE WHOLE WORKS. THAT TAKES A MAN WITH BRAINS—LIKE ME."

"I CAN HELP," GORREY OFFERED EAGERLY; "I'VE GOT INFLUENCE WITH THESE BARBARIANS."

"O.K., I CAN USE YOU," FLINT AGREED; "BUT GIVE ME YOUR GUNS; THEN LEAD THE WAY TO YOUR QUARTERS."

MEANWHILE SOLDIERS PRESSED THE SEARCH FOR TARZAN. ONE ENTERPRISING BAND BEGAN TO EXPLORE THE HOUSES.

THEY CAME INTO HALAM'S HOUSE. IN THE SECRET CELLAR, LETHOR GROWLED INSTINCTIVELY BEFORE TARZAN COULD STAY HIM.

"IT'S LETHOR, WITH TARZAN!" ONE SOLDIER CRIED, AND ALL TAPPED THEIR SPEARS ON THE FLOOR UNTIL THEY FOUND THE TRAPDOOR.

LETHOR SPRANG TOWARD THE SPEAR-BLOCKED EXIT. "KILL THE LION," THE CAPTAIN SHOUTED; "HE KILLED OUR COMRADES."

"HALT, LETHOR!" TARZAN COMMANDED. THEN HE CALLED UP: "IF YOU TOUCH LETHOR, I'LL KILL HALF OF YOU BEFORE YOU CAN KILL ME."

HFOSTER

LETHOR WAS HIS FRIEND AND TARZAN'S FRIENDSHIP KNEW NO BOUNDS. "BUT SPARE THE LION," HE ADDED CALMLY. "AND I'LL GO WITH YOU!"

DICK TRACY

By CHESTER GOULD

QUIET! QUIET! WE'RE NOT FAR FROM THEM NOW.

AFTER BEING PICKED UP FROM THE DARK OCEAN WATERS BY THE COAST GUARD BOAT — TRACY AND PAT ARE RETURNED TO TOWN. BOB HONOR OVERHEARS A DISCUSSION OF THE CASE AND VOLUNTEERS HIS SERVICES, BELIEVING HE CAN LEAD TRACY TO TOYEE'S WATERFRONT HANGOUT.

YOU SEE, I HAPPENED TO KNOW — THAT TOYEE USED TO MAINTAIN HEADQUARTERS OVER HERE ACROSS THE BAY FOR HIS DOPE TRADE.

BOY! IT'S PLENTY DARK BACK IN THAT PASSAGE.

HERE, BOYS, PUT A DAB OF THIS PHOSPHORESCENT CALCIUM SULFIDE ON YOUR NOSES.

THIS STUFF SHINES IN THE DARK AND WILL ENABLE US TO SPOT EACH OTHER. — IF WE GO INTO A DARK ROOM.

I KNEW I SHOULD NEVER HAVE LISTENED TO YOU! YOU'VE BROUGHT NOTHING BUT TROUBLE!

BUT IT'S OUR CHANCE TO RUB OUT THIS WHOLE MESS OF NOSEY COPS.

YOU TALKED ME INTO ONE ATTEMPT TO RUB THEM OUT — YOU CANNOT TALK ME INTO A SECOND!

THEY'LL SHOOT TO KILL THIS TIME — BUT I WON'T BE HERE.

GO, YOU FOOL! I'M STAYING!

HASTENING DOWN A RICKETY STAIRWAY, TOYEE ENTERS A ROOM AT THE WATER'S EDGE.

QUICK, MINGLO, THE KNIFE!

WITH ONE DEFT STROKE, HE SLITS A HUGE STURGEON FROM TAIL TO GILLS.

ALL RIGHT, MASTER — CLIMB IN.

WIRE IT SECURELY SHUT AND SWING THE SLIT SIDE TO THE WALL.

LOOK! A STRIP OF LIGHT UNDER A DOOR.

THAT'S THE ROOM!

FISHER'S HISTORY OF BOXING

MAX WENT TO ASBURY PARK TO TRAIN FOR THE CARNERA FIGHT. THE AMBLING ALP HAD WON THE TITLE FROM SHARKEY BY THE KAYO ROUTE, AND EVERYONE SAID HE WAS THE DESTROYER OF ALL TIME. "HE'D PROBABLY KILL BAER" SAID THE HYSTERICAL.

WHY THIS CARNERA WON'T BE BEATEN FOR YEARS.

NOBODY BIG ENOUGH TO FIGHT HIM. HE'S A MASTODON.

THIS WRITER NEVER SAW THE PUNCH THAT KAYOED SHARKEY--- AND NEITHER DID MANY OTHER SPORT SCRIBES SITTING WITHIN TWO FEET OF THE FIGHTERS. --- LATER EVENTS PROVED THAT CARNERA COULDN'T KNOCK A WEAKLING OUT.

YOO-HOO!

BAER CLOWNED A LOT IN TRAINING. WE WERE STANDING IN THE RING WITH MAX AFTER A WORKOUT, WHEN COMMISSIONER BROWN OF N.Y. JUMPED UP, AND THREATENED TO CALL THE FIGHT OFF.

THAT CLOWN IS IN NO CONDITION TO FIGHT. HE HAS NO RIGHT IN THE SAME RING WITH CARNERA.

OH BOY! THIS IS WHAT I CALLS A REAL VACATION NO WIMMEN TO TELL YOU WHAT YOU CAN AND CAN'T DO, OR ANYTHING

HUH?

I SAID YOU'RE SITTING IN MY CHAIR.

WELL, SIT DOWN, SISTER- I WAS JEST HOPING SOME PRETTY GAL WOULD COME ALONG THAT I COULD OFFER IT TO.

OH, YOU FLATTERER!

BUT THEN I GUESS IT'LL HAFTA BE A CASE OF "AGE BEFORE BEAUTY" THIS TIME.

WHY- HUMPH! OOP-OOF WHY-- ----

THAT'S FUNNY SHE MUSTA GOT SEASICK OR SOMETHIN'.

YOUNG MAN, DID YOU GET FRESH WITH MY WIFE?

I DON'T KNOW, PAL. WHO IS YOUR WIFE?

GENTLEMEN, GENTLEMEN, STEP INSIDE IF YOU MUST BANDY WORDS. DON'T YELL OUT IN PUBLIC.

THIS FELLOW SAID SOMETHING TO MY WIFE THAT LEFT HER PRACTICALLY SPEECHLESS AND I'M-

WELL, WHAT'D YOU SAY TO HER, MOON?

I CAN'T THINK OF ANY-THING.

I'M NOT INTERESTED IN WHAT HE SAID. MY WIFE WILL TELL ME WHEN SHE REGAINS HER VOICE-I DEMAND AN APOLOGY!

MY DEAR SIR, YOU MAKE ENTIRELY TOO MUCH NOISE

I DEMAND AN AP---.

I TELL YOU I AIN'T GOT THE SLIGHTEST IDEA WHAT I SAID.

WELL, TRY AND THINK.

I DEMAND AN APOLOGY, SIR!

OH, WILL YOU DRY UP? HOW DO YOU EXPECK HIM TO CONSECRATE?

ZOK!

NOW THINK REAL HARD, MOONSHINE- I MAY WANT TO SPRING IT ON MAMIE MYSELF WHEN WE GET HOME.

MUSTAPHA KEMAL, liberator of the Turks, was defying the Sultan in 1920, when he was forced to face another enemy, the Greeks. A well-equipped army was advancing on Angora, Kemal's new capital. Moving along the Sakaria river, the invaders came to a narrow gorge, walled by steep cliffs. And facing them, from cliff to cliff, was a living dam—a ragged, impoverished army of patriotic Turks determined to turn back the Greeks at this spot.

Men had forged swords from the hoops of cartwheels. Women were wielding axes and picks. Boys and girls over 14, half naked, almost starving, many even without weapons, stood there in a solid phalanx. Guns went into action. Thousands fell, but still the wall of humanity held. For 22 days and 22 nights, the Greeks attacked and the Turks resisted. Finally, exhausted, the enemy withdrew. At the cost of thousands of lives, Angora was saved. Sakaria Gorge, shown on stamps of 1926 and 1930, symbolized Turkish freedom.
